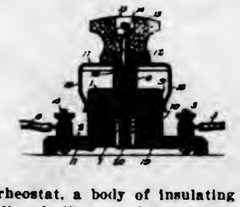
1,429,856. ADSORPTION APPARATUS FOR SOLVENT RECOVERY, ETC. ROLLAND R. ETTER, East Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 7, 1921. Serial No. 435,573. 10 Claims. (Cl. 252.)



2. In apparatus for solvent recovery, the combination of an annular chamber having approximately concentrically disposed perforate walls, solid adsorbent material filling such chambers, and connections whereby vapor-laden gases and a heating medium may be passed transversely through said chamber thus filled, from the exterior to the open central space surrounded by said chamber or vice versa as desired.

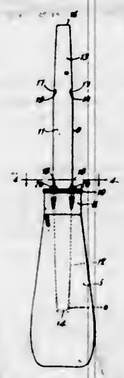
1,429,857. CRUDE-OIL BURNER. CHARLES B. EYER, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed June 28, 1921. Serial No. 481,043. 6 Claims. (Cl. 158—53.)

6. A fuel burner of the character specified comprising a burner cap, an expanding and mixing chamber in communication with the burner and having a lateral extension, a diametrically disposed casing, a valve mechanism within said casing for controlling the supply of fuel, a mixing chamber forming connecting means between said casing and the expanding and mixing chamber, a horn connected with the mixing chamber, a fan within the expanding and mixing chamber, a second fan beyond the burner cap and connected with the fan in the expanding and mixing chamber and serving to distribute and spread the heat, and a fuel feed pipe passing through the expanding and mixing chamber and the extension thereof and having connection with the said valve mechanism.

1,429,858. RHEOSTAT. ERNEST CHARLES FASOLDT, Albany, N. Y., assignor of two-thirds to Louis R. Krug, Albany, N. Y. Filed Apr. 7, 1922. Serial No. 550,370. 5 Claims. (Cl. 219—56.)

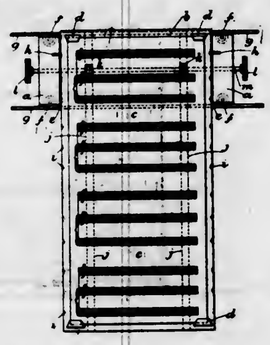
1. In a rheostat, a body of insulating material, a resistance coil spirally wound around the body, an internally threaded sleeve in the body, a screw movable in the sleeve, a plate fixed to turn with the screw, spring fingers integral with the plate contacting with the coil to delicately regulate current flow, and a handle of insulating material resting on the plate and secured to the screw for turning the same.

1,429,859. BOLT. CHARLES FASSETT, St. Johnsbury, Vt. Filed Mar. 21, 1922. Serial No. 545,459. 7 Claims. (Cl. 85—3.)



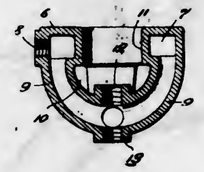
1. A device of the character described comprising a longitudinally slotted bolt stem, a head member slidable in the slot, means for frictionally retaining said head in the slot, and means slidable through said slot for extending the head.

1,429,860. SNAP SWITCH. NICHOLAS FEINEN, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed June 25, 1921. Serial No. 480,413. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—167.)



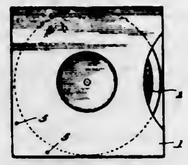
1. A switch of the class described comprising a base, contacts thereon, a hollow member rotatably supported by the base, a switch blade connected with the hollow member and engaging the contacts, a cap member connected with the hollow member and having an opening therein, a stationary member passing through the hollow shaft and an indicator disc connected with the stationary member and located within the cap.

1,429,861. SCREW DRIVER. CARL M. FLODIN, East Boston, Mass. Filed Sept. 1, 1921. Serial No. 497,629. 3 Claims. (Cl. 145—64.)



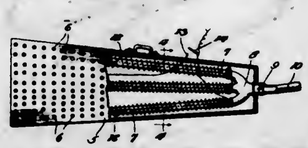
3. A tool having, in combination, a handle provided with a longitudinal recess therein, a blade located within said recess and projecting outwardly therefrom, said blade having a work engaging tip at each extremity and being provided with a plurality of sets of oppositely disposed grooves formed in the opposite edges thereof and having an enlarged intermediate portion between said sets of grooves thereby forming projecting shoulders adjacent to said grooves, a locking member rotatably mounted upon said handle surrounding said blade and adapted to be rotated into the grooves of said blade to fasten said blade within said handle, said locking member being provided with a plurality of segmental slots formed therein and means extending through said slots into said handle adapted to fasten said locking member to said handle and limit the rotary movement of said locking member thereon, said locking member also constituting a stop to engage said shoulders and thereby limit the extent to which each end of said blade may be inserted within said handle.

1,429,862. TYPEWRITING MACHINE FOR MUSIC. LUIGI FORTONI, London, England. Filed Feb. 3, 1920. Serial No. 355,928. 7 Claims. (Cl. 197—8.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



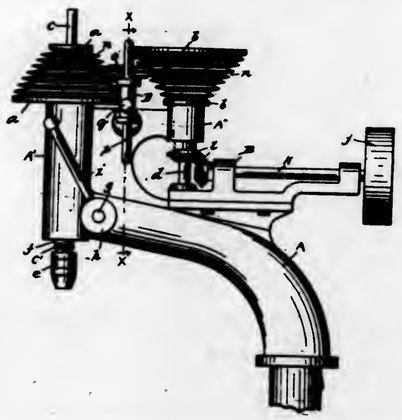
1. In a machine for typewriting music, the combination of printing levers and revoluble polygonal blocks applied to all of the levers and carrying musical note characters for printing above and below the stave or directly on the stave and also for alphabetical printing whereby music notes, words of a song, or ordinary printed matter may be typed by the one machine.

1,429,863. WATER-HEATING DRUM. ALFRED T. FOWLES, Dallas, Tex. Filed June 13, 1919. Serial No. 304,042. 1 Claim. (Cl. 122—20.)



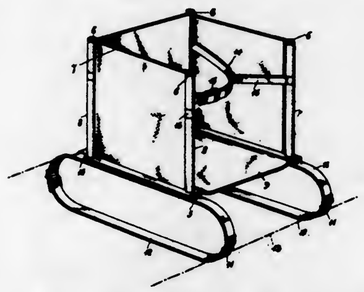
A water heating drum, comprising a hollow ring-like top having an outlet in its outer periphery, a plural armed hollow spider depending from the top, each arm of the spider being in communication with the top, and upper and lower threaded nipples on the spider at its center.

1,429,864. RECORD BINDER. ROBERT H. FRASER, Battle Creek, Mich. Filed June 7, 1921. Serial No. 475,757. 1 Claim. (Cl. 129—20.)



A holder for phonographic records comprising a base, a number of record-receiving envelopes, said envelopes and base having registering openings, said openings being arranged at one corner of each envelope, a lacing passing through the opening for hingedly connecting the parts together and spacer plates having openings therein registering with the openings in the envelopes, one of said spacer plates being arranged to receive an index.

1,429,865. PRESSING MACHINE. SAM FRIEDMAN, Atlanta, Ga. Filed Apr. 8, 1920. Serial No. 372,234. 1 Claim. (Cl. 219—19.)



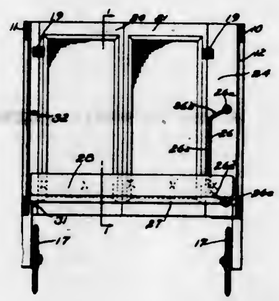
The combination with a hollow movable buck of a clothes pressing machine, of heating means therefor comprising an inlet pipe section mounted in one end wall of the buck, a plurality of pipes connected with and independently supplied with water through said section, said pipes relatively diverging from each other from their connection with the inlet section and being in substantially the same horizontal plane, the lower portion of each pipe having spaced perforations, an electrical heating coil arranged about each pipe from end to end, and means for energizing said coils, whereby to convert the water in each pipe into steam and permit the escape of the steam through such perforations.

1,429,866. DRILL PRESS. JAMES D. GIBBS, Louisville, Ky. Filed Jan. 29, 1921. Serial No. 440,968. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—26.)

1. A variable speed mechanism comprising two reversely placed multi-grooved cone wheels journaled on parallel axes, a member mounted to have reciprocating motion perpendicular to the said axes, said member carrying a part extending parallel to said axes, a bracket arm slidably carried by said part and having a suitable operating handle, an idle wheel rotatably carried by said bracket arm, and adapted to engage the grooves of said cone wheels, and spring means acting on said slidable member to press the idle wheel towards the cone wheels.

1,429,867. REMOVABLE CHAIR ATTACHMENT. AMY R. GOLDSMITH, Portland, Oreg. Filed Dec. 17, 1921. Serial No. 523,102. 4 Claims. (Cl. 155—131.)

1. In a chair attachment of the class specified, a rigid base, a flexible body supported on the base and having a closed seat, upright sides and back, the body being fully open at the front, and flexible attaching straps extending longitudinally on opposite sides of the base and beyond the front and rear portions of said base and having securing straps connected to the ends thereof for holding the chair on and fastening it around a support.



1,429,868. DRAFT EQUALIZER. CLARKE L. GORDON, Stavely, Alberta, Canada. Filed Sept. 22, 1921. Serial No. 502,424. 2 Claims. (Cl. 54—1.)

1. In combination with a hame; of a draft bar adapted to be arranged at the side of the draft animal, said bar having its forward end arcuated inwardly toward the hame for connection therewith whereby the body portion of the bar will be arranged in spaced relation to the animal, an equalizer link pivotally connected to the rear end of said bar, a trace having connection with the link between its ends, and a second trace having connection with the lower end of said link.

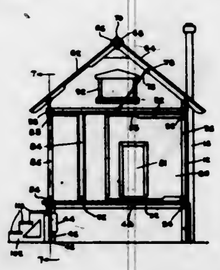
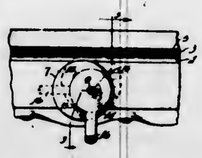
1,429,869. FOLDING CRIB. ERNEST E. GOWELL, South Portland, Me., assignor to The E. T. Burrowes Company, Portland, Me., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Aug. 25, 1919. Serial No. 319,619. 4 Claims. (Cl. 5—58.)



1. A combined crib and coop, comprising end members and side members hinged together for folding, one of said side members equipped at its ends with guides consisting in vertically extending portions and diagonally extending portions at the top and bottom of said vertical portions, and a mattress frame mounted to slide and swing on said guides and adapted to be supported at one side, at either of two elevations thereby and the other of said side members serving as a lateral abutment for the mattress frame when horizontal and preventing casual displacement thereof in the upper one of its two elevations.

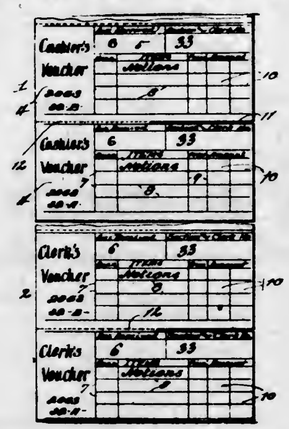
1,429,870. OVEN. ARVIN GUSSA, Roswell, N. Mex. Filed June 11, 1921. Serial No. 476,782. 6 Claims. (Cl. 126—340.)



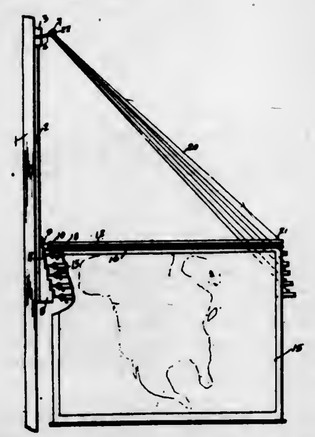
1. In an apparatus of the character described, an oven, a tray supporting frame in the oven, a door hinged to the floor of the oven and adapted to swing downwardly and outwardly, brackets secured to the floor of the oven, levers pivotally connected at one end to the brackets and at their other ends to the frame, jointed arms pivotally connected to the free edge of the door and to the intermediate portions of the levers, whereby opening of the door lifts the frame out of the oven and seats the same on the door.

1,429,871. COLLAPSIBLE TOY HOUSE. GUNIL J. HANSON, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Apr. 14, 1921. Serial No. 461,182. 5 Claims. (Cl. 46—37.)

1. A collapsible toy house comprising a rear wall member, two side wall members, means associated with said members for detachably holding them together at their corners, a ceiling member adapted to be slid in horizontal grooves carried by said side members, a roof member, and hooks for detachably securing said roof member and said ceiling member together, whereby both of them are held in place.



1,429,872. WINDOW SILENCER. HANS P. HANSON, Cambridge, Minn. Filed May 12, 1921. Serial No. 468,876. 1 Claim. (Cl. 292—232.)

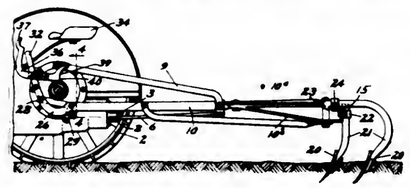


The combination with a window sill having a slot therein, a window frame slidably disposed in the slot, and a glass carried by said frame, of a screw carried by said sill, a resilient disk eccentrically mounted on said screw, plates concentrically mounted on said screw and being disposed on both sides of said disk, said plates having integral prongs adapted to engage with said disk, and a handle carried by one of said plates.

1,429,873. CASH-SALES BOOK. GEORGE HARTRICK, Oak Park, Ill., assignor to Carson, Pirie, Scott and Company, Chicago, Ill. Filed Nov. 27, 1918. Serial No. 264,388. 2 Claims. (Cl. 282—23.)

1. A sales book comprising in combination, a plurality of sets of leaves each set comprising multiple leaves, the leaves of each set being divided by scorings permitting easy detachment into a plurality of slips, the slips of each leaf of the set being of corresponding number, and corresponding slips of each leaf of the set being arranged to relate to one sales transaction, the different slips being provided with rulings and legends indicating suitable data to be inserted, the slips of each set also having voucher and check designations and being serially marked successively from the bottom to the top of each sheet, a portion of the back of the uppermost slips of each set being coated with transfer material.

1,429,874. MAP HOLDER. WILLIAM E. HASKELL, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jan. 11, 1921. Serial No. 436,503. 2 Claims. (Cl. 40—128.)



1. A suspended sheet holder comprising a supporting block, brackets fixed thereto and having vertically spaced projecting ends, arms having split ends received over said bracket ends, pivot pins extending through said split ends of the arms and through said bracket ends, means for detachably connecting the sheets to said arms, and swinging suspension wires for the arms.

1,429,875. CULTIVATOR ATTACHMENT FOR TRACTORS. OTTO F. HEER, Narod, Calif. Filed June 20, 1921. Serial No. 478,989. 3 Claims. (Cl. 97—34.)

1. The combination with a tractor having a seat above the rear axle housing and a connecting plate directly below the seat, of a transverse bar, a frame extending forwardly from the bar a considerable distance and rigidly secured to the connecting plate, braces extending forwardly and upwardly from the transverse bar and rigidly connected to the axle housing, a rock frame pivotally connected to the transverse bar and having side bars extending forwardly and backwardly, the forward ends of the side bars extending under the axle housing, the rear ends of the side bars being adapted to carry a cultivator or the like, means for adjusting the contacts between the forward ends of the side bars and the axle housing to limit the downward swing of the cultivator, an arm extending upwardly and forwardly from one side bar in front of the axle housing, and a latch pivotally connected to the arm and adapted to engage the axle housing, so that when the arm is forced forwardly the cultivator is raised and the latch holds the cultivator in its elevated position.

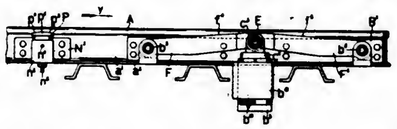
1,429,876. COLLOIDAL SOLUTION AND METHOD OF PREPARING SAME. HUGO HEMELMANN, Hanover, Germany. Filed Oct. 1, 1919. Serial No. 327,826. 10 Claims. (Cl. 252.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



1. The herein described process, which consists in treating finely divided matter with cherry gum and a dispersing medium.

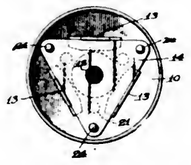
1,429,877. HIGH-POWERED MULTICYLINDER INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. JOHN H. HEUSER, Morse Bluff, Nebr., assignor of one-half to Emil E. Wolf, Morse Bluff, Nebr. Filed Dec. 29, 1919. Serial No. 347,994. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—54.)

1. In an internal combustion engine, the combination of a cylinder block, comprising a plurality of vertical cylinders, the number of which is a multiple of four, said cylinders being arranged in staggered relation in said cylinder-block, a crank shaft provided with a separate crank for each cylinder the cranks being arranged in pairs and the cranks of each pair being angularly displaced 45° and serving adjacent cylinders.

1,429,878. RECORDING DEVICE FOR RAILWAYS. HEINRICH HEYN, Datteln, and FRIEDRICH ZIMMERMANN, Essen, Germany, assignors to Fried. Krupp Aktiengesellschaft, Essen-on-the-Ruhr, Germany. Filed Feb. 14, 1921. Serial No. 444,864. 8 Claims. (Cl. 234—12.5.)

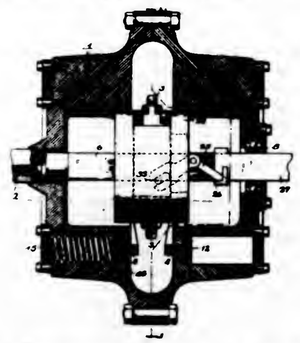
2. A recording device for railways comprising two electric contact devices positioned adjacent the track rails and adapted to be actuated by different axle pressures of the cars passing over the track, a recording device embodying an intermittently rotatable drum and recording members displaceable by a clock mechanism longitudinally of said drum, and electrical circuits including said contact devices and said recording means whereby there will be recorded upon said drum the number, running direction, axle pressure and time of the axles travelling across said track.

1,429,879. CORE BINDER. GEORGE B. HILL, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to American Hominy Company, Indianapolis, Ind., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Sept. 15, 1919. Serial No. 324,013. 4 Claims. (Cl. 22—188.)



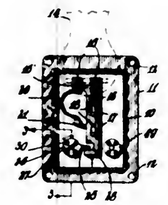
4. A core binder comprising dry partially gelatinized corn flour, the proteid matter in which is finely divided and has a relatively large surface area.

1,429,880. CREASING IRON. FRED GEORGE HOFMANN, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 2, 1921. Serial No. 458,123. 5 Claims. (Cl. 219—21.)



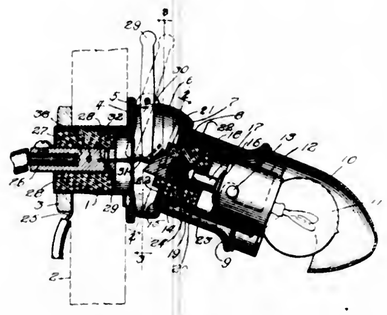
1. A creasing iron, including a shank terminating in an edge, and a blade movably secured to said shank and adjacent the edge thereof.

1,429,881. PIVOT. CHARLES J. HOWE, Detroit, Mich. Filed Mar. 9, 1921. Serial No. 450,830. 3 Claims. (Cl. 296—92.)



1. A pivot construction comprising a ratchet member having a series of depressions therein at equal radial distances from the center and a co-operating triangular spring pawl having elevated portions near each corner adapted to engage depressions in the ratchet member at points substantially equi-distant from each other, and means for adjusting the tension of the spring pawl.

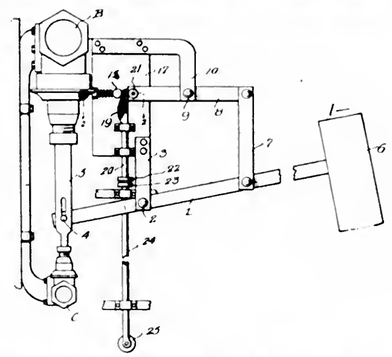
1,429,882. TRANSMISSION FOR AUTOMOBILES. JOHN E. JOHNSON, De Kalb, Ill. Filed Dec. 3, 1920. Serial No. 427,969. 19 Claims. (Cl. 192—52.)



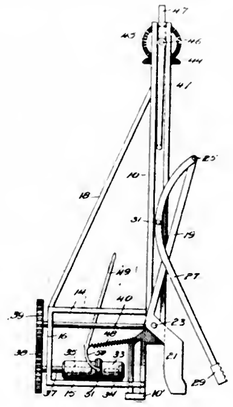
1. In a transmission for connecting a pair of coaxially rotatable members, an arm extending radially of one member, and two spring pressed means carried by the other member and arranged for frictionally engaging the said arm when between the said means while normally permitting the arm to pass between the said means.

1,429,883. PADLOCK. JOHN KACZANOWSKI, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 18, 1922. Serial No. 554,851. 4 Claims. (Cl. 70—115.)

3. A lock comprising a casing, a bolt, a key-engageable spindle rotatably mounted in said casing and adapted to operate said bolt, disk fixed on said spindle and having a series of hollow bosses thereon spaced around the spindle and extending parallel thereto, spring-pressed pins guided in said bosses and held against rotation by a fixed part of the casing, the front wall of the casing having openings therein registering with the said pins when the lock-bolt is in operative position.



1,429,884. INSTRUMENT-BOARD LAMP. THOMAS J. KERWIN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Edmunds & Jones Corporation, a Corporation of New York. Filed July 30, 1921. Serial No. 488,556. 18 Claims. (Cl. 240—7.)

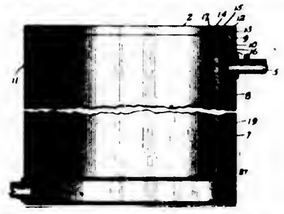


1. In a lamp socket, a pair of outer shells arranged to extend in continuation of each other and equipped with relatively overlapping flanges, and an inner lamp-receiving shell having one end clenched over and housing the edges of both of said flanges.

1,429,885. AUTOMATIC TRAIN STOP. CLARENCE A. KISSEL, Detroit, Mich. Filed Feb. 20, 1922. Serial No. 538,067. 6 Claims. (Cl. 246—186.)

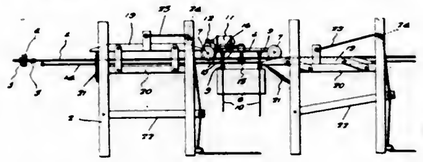
4. In an automatic train stop, the combination with the control mechanism of a locomotive, of a pivotally mounted weighted lever, a second pivotally mounted lever connected thereto, means associated with said second pivotally mounted lever for restraining said weighted lever from movement, and means for releasing said restraining means.

1,429,886. MACHINE WRENCH. RUDOLPH KLEIN, Fults, and GEORGE B. RITZEL, Valmeyer, Ill. Filed Sept. 13, 1921. Serial No. 500,308. 2 Claims. (Cl. 81—56.)



1. In a machine wrench a vertically disposed frame having its lower portion adapted to extend over the tread of a rail and to oppose the web and base of the rail, an auxiliary frame projecting outwardly from that portion of the vertical frame opposing the web and base of the rail, a nut removing element carried by the auxiliary frame, operating means for said element mounted on the said frames, clamping elements pivotally connected to the lower portion of the vertical frame and having foot portions adapted to engage the rail on that side of the latter opposite the side to which the vertical frame is positioned, and levers pivotally connected to the upper ends of the clamping elements and to said vertical frame at a point above the pivots of said clamping elements.

1,429,887. ICE-CREAM-STORAGE APPARATUS. CARL A. KULENKAMPFF, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 13, 1921. Serial No. 461,153. 2 Claims. (Cl. 220—9.)



2. In an ice cream storage apparatus, a receptacle comprising an outer casing, an inner casing spaced therefrom, a ring secured to said outer casing and having an inwardly extending flange, a second ring fitting flatwise against said flange and provided with an inwardly extending flange projecting within the first mentioned ring, the flange of the second mentioned ring being rigidly secured to said inner casing and clamping screws for clamping said rings rigidly together.

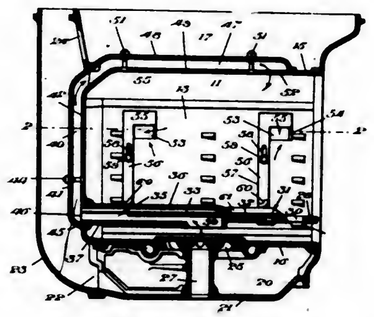
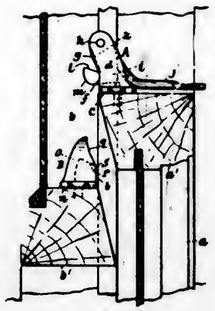
1,429,888. TELPHERAGE SYSTEM. JAMES LAMB, Canton, Ill. Filed Apr. 12, 1922. Serial No. 551,932. 2 Claims. (Cl. 104—149.)



1. An apparatus of the class described comprising a track, a vehicle having its wheels engaging the track, a motor for propelling the vehicle, a trolley wire, a trolley wheel engaging the same and having connections with the motor, a switch in said connections, a hinged member carrying part of the switch, means located along the track for raising such member to open the switch, the frictional engagement between such means and the movable member also acting as brake means.

1,429,889. DEVELOPING BASKET. GEORGE B. LAMBERT, Huntingdon, Tenn. Filed Dec. 17, 1920. Serial No. 431,386. 1 Claim. (Cl. 95—100.)



A developing basket for photographic films, the films being doubled at their central points; comprising an open rectangular frame; a plurality of transverse bars across the top of the frame adapted to support the doubled films; and releasable weights for grasping the lower double ends of the films.

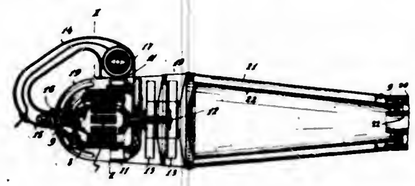
1,429,890. COMBINATION COAL AND GAS OVEN. HENRY LANGE, Quincy, Ill. Filed Apr. 19, 1921. Serial No. 462,578. 7 Claims. (Cl. 126—36.)

1. An oven, a burner at the bottom thereof, said oven having a flue for conducting products of combustion from one point to another point, and a flue member removably supported in the oven for conducting products of combustion from over the burner to said flue, said member extending over the burner ad having a detachable connection with said flue, and said member being removable from the oven so as to leave no obstruction in the oven over the bottom thereof.

1,429,891. SASH LOCK. WILLIAM A. LAUFER and ANDREW KUFTA, Paterson, N. J. Filed June 15, 1921. Serial No. 477,637. 1 Claim. (Cl. 292—241.)

A sash-lock including, in combination, a pair of members adapted to be respectively secured on the top surfaces of the meeting rails of two sashes and arranged to face each other and form a narrow space between them when said rails face each other, a hook pendently pivoted in the relatively inner member and having a V-shaped hook notch normally in substantially vertical coincidence with its pivot and in substantial coincidence at its apex with said space when said members are so arranged, the other member having an inwardly projecting catch shoulder engaged by said hook when said members are so arranged.

1,429,892. COMBINED WAGON AND AUTOMOBILE DUMP. FRANK J. LEECH, Ottawa, and WILLIAM H. MYERS, Utica, Ill. Filed July 16, 1920. Serial No. 396,728. 3 Claims. (Cl. 214—49.)



1. A structure of the class described including a tiltable dumping device onto which a vehicle may be run to dump with the tilting of said device, and brake means therefor comprising a depending element pivotally secured at its uppr end to said tilting device, pivotally mounted braking elements between which the first-mentioned element has guided movement, and optionally operable means to cause said second-mentioned braking elements to have braking engagement with the first element.

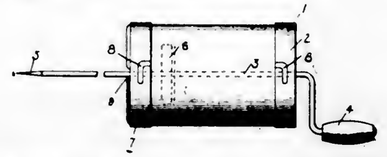
1,429,893. VACUUM CLEANING AND DUSTING APPARATUS. GUSTAV OSCAR LEHMANN, Berlin, Germany. Filed May 18, 1922. Serial No. 562,014. 1 Claim. (Cl. 15—16.)

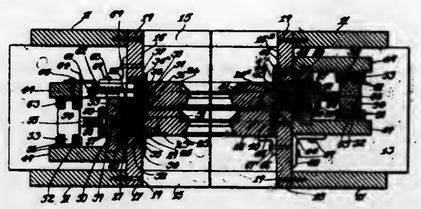
A portable vacuum dusting and cleaning apparatus comprising an electromotor, a fan, a dust bag, a casing and a handle for manipulating the appliance, characterized in that the handle is fixed directly to the frame of the motor, spanning an arc of about 90 degrees, and having one end fixed to the frame approximately in line with the motor axis and the other end abutting against the frame radially near the center of gravity of the appliance.

1,429,894. PNEUMATIC WHEEL FOR VEHICLES. GEORGES LENTZ, deceased, late of Pontoise, France, by Paul Denizot, administrator, Pontoise, France. Filed Mar. 31, 1921. Serial No. 457,486. 2 Claims. (Cl. 152—10.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



1. A pneumatic vehicle having a hub, concave disks connected thereto, the rounded peripheries of said disks arranged to approach each other, outward extensions located in parallelism on the disks, a tread band loosely mounted between said extensions, said tread band having a series of apertures, bolts carried by the extensions and extending through said apertures, a floating rim positioned between the disks, and an air chamber interposed between said rim and the rounded peripheries of the disks.

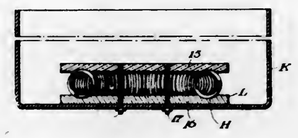
1,429,895. FRICTIONLESS RAIL JOINT. ONIS J. LENTZ, Oakland, Calif. Filed Sept. 12, 1921. Serial No. 500,009. 4 Claims. (Cl. 238—200.)



1. In a rail joint, a base plate for receiving and supporting the abutting rail ends and provided in its upper side with a longitudinal groove which inclines upwardly and outwardly and a fish plate having a flange at its lower edge inclined inwardly and downwardly to snugly fit the upwardly and outwardly inclined longitudinal groove of the base plate to form interlocking connection therewith.

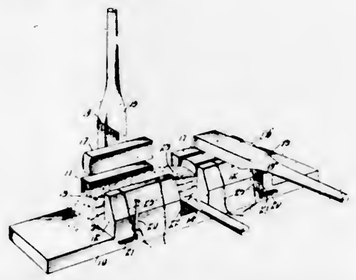
1,429,896. VEGETABLE SLICER. WILLIAM R. MCCLURE, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 18, 1922. Serial No. 554,643. 2 Claims. (Cl. 146—11.)

1. A device of the class described comprising a container having one end open, a cap for covering said end, cutters carried by the cap, a spindle passing through the container and having a pointed end so that it can be passed through the article to be cut, a pressure member on the spindle for pressing the article against the cutters and a handle on the extended end of said spindle.



1,429,897. WINDOW. DANIEL A. MACASKILL, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor of one-third to Joseph A. Izzo and one-third to Angelo Pacelli, both of Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Jan. 3, 1921. Serial No. 434,557. 6 Claims. (Cl. 20—11.)

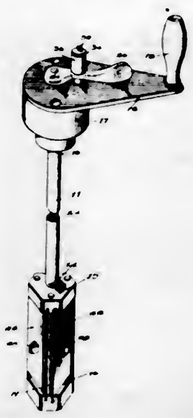
1. In a window structure, a frame comprising a pair of parallel, vertical, spaced apart strips; a sash slidable in said frame; a counterbalance operatively connected to said sash, and vertically movable in said frame; and means for slidably receiving and guiding one side of said sash and the counterbalance therefor, comprising a pair of



jamb forming strips, each member thereof connected to one of the parallel vertical strips and extending toward, but spaced apart from the other member of the pair to form a groove for slidably receiving a side of said sash, and means straddling the rear of said groove and connecting the respective jamb forming strips and maintaining the side of the sash and the counterbalance in parallel operative relation; the sash, the counterbalance and the means for slidably receiving the same being removable as a unit from the frame.

1,429,898. ELECTRIC HEATER. BARNETT WRIGHT MACY, Jacksonville, Fla., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Electric Heating Corporation, a Corporation of Florida. Filed Nov. 6, 1920. Serial No. 422,224. 2 Claims. (Cl. 219—44.)

1. An electric heater comprising, a vessel, an insulator within the vessel and comprising an upper disc and a lower disc having their confronting faces formed at corresponding points with annular grooves, a resistance coil interposed between the discs and within said grooves, and means for securing one of the discs to the vessel and for securing the other disc in clamping engagement with respect to said coil.



1,429,899. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR SAMPLING COTTON. WILLIAM DUNCAN MALLORY, Memphis, Tenn. Filed Nov. 1, 1919. Serial No. 335,221. 11 Claims. (Cl. 73—21.)

1. The method of sampling cotton consisting in removing samples from various portions of the cotton entering into a merchantable bale, collocating the samples into a miniature bale, and providing means for identifying the samples and the portions of the merchantable bale from which the samples were removed.

1,429,900. CLEANER FOR THE CASTING POTS OR POT WELLS OF LINOTYPE AND INTERTYPE MACHINES. JOHN M. PEIFFER, Bloomington, Ill., assignor of one-half to Elmer J. German, Normal, Ill. Filed Feb. 2, 1922. Serial No. 533,580. 9 Claims. (Cl. 15—104.02.)

1. A casting pot scraper and cleaner including a stem having a handle at one end, and a scraping head at the opposite end of the stem having a series of tangentially shiftable blades normally held in retracted position and loosely guided within the head, and means for shifting the blades tangentially beyond the head, including an element on which the blades have limited rotative movement.

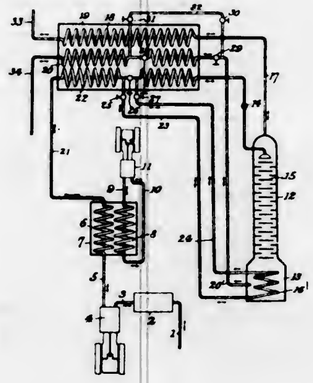
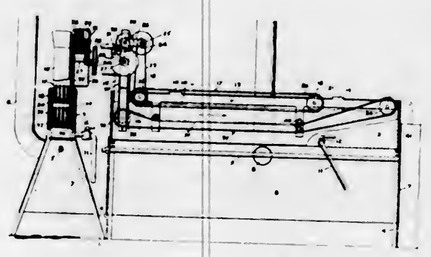
1,429,901. DEMOUNTABLE RIM. JOHN T. CLARK, Provo, Utah. Filed May 10, 1922. Serial No. 559,840. 1 Claim. (Cl. 301—30.)



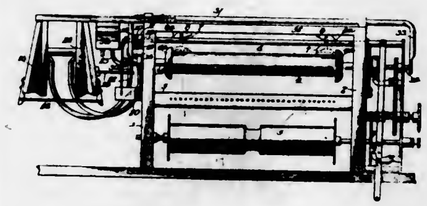
In a demountable rim the combination of two annular rings having coacting tire engaging portions, a sectioned rim with outwardly extended flanges on each edge within said rings; rivets near each end of each section of said rim, with portions radially extended; and fastening plates spanning the ends of said rim sections having slotted holes in each to engage the extended portions of said rivets.

1,429,902. VEHICLE SPRING CONSTRUCTION. FRANK V. COOKE, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Karl B. Goddard, Detroit, Mich. Filed Aug. 26, 1920. Serial No. 406,139. 12 Claims. (Cl. 267—36.)



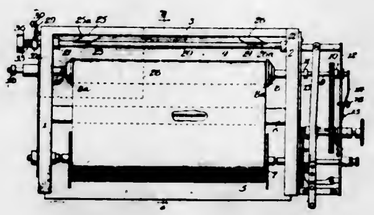
1. In a motor vehicle, in combination, with a frame member, an axle, a spring pivoted to one end of the frame member and to the opposite end of the axle, a second spring pivoted to the other end of the frame member and to the end of the axle farther therefrom, a fulcrum member adapted to embrace the intermediate portion of said frame member and provided with means for being secured thereto, said fulcrum member comprising a pair of U-shaped sockets each of which is adapted to receive a spring so as to permit movement of said spring longitudinally therein.

1,429,903. APPARATUS FOR THE SEPARATION OF GASEOUS MIXTURES. PIERRE E. HAYNES, Buffalo, N. Y., assignor to The Linde Air Products Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Apr. 12, 1919. Serial No. 289,594. 3 Claims. (Cl. 62—122.)



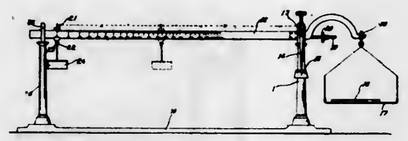
2. In apparatus for fractionating gas mixture by a process involving liquefaction of at least a part of the mixture, a gas compressor, an expansion nozzle, a receptacle adapted to collect liquid issuing from or formed at said expansion nozzle, a heater for said receptacle, a conduit connecting the compressor to the heater, a first cooler in said conduit adapted to be refrigerated by gases which have passed the expansion nozzle, a conduit connecting the heater to the expansion nozzle, a second cooler in said latter conduit, and means for leading gases which have passed said expansion nozzle to said second cooler.

1,429,904. DOUGHNUT-COOKING MACHINE. JOHN N. JUDSON, Oakland, Calif. Filed May 3, 1920. Serial No. 378,399. 2 Claims. (Cl. 53—7.)



1. A doughnut cooking machine comprising a receptacle containing a cooking fluid, an endless conveyor for the most part submerged in said fluid and having one end extending above the level of the fluid, means for dropping uncooked doughnuts into the receptacle so that the doughnuts will in sinking contact with the submerged end of the conveyor and be moved forwardly thereby and means into contact with which the doughnuts are moved by a conveyor for moving the uncooked doughnuts submerged through the fluid to a point where the doughnuts will contact with the portion of the first named conveyor which extends above the level of he fluid.

1,429,905. SHEET-CONTROLLING MECHANISM. ADOLPH P. GUSTAFSON, Chicago, Ill., assignor to M. Schulz Company, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 26, 1917. Serial No. 171,109. 12 Claims. (Cl. 84—136.)



1. The combination with the tracker, music spool and means for supporting said spool, of means for automatically engaging and disengaging said spool, and mechanism for continuously effecting an automatic relative adjustment between said spool and tracker for trackage purposes during the playing operation.

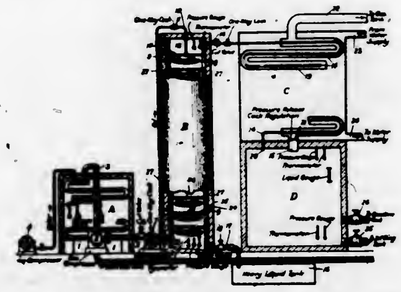
1,429,906. SHEET CONTROLLING MECHANISM. ADOLPH P. GUSTAFSON, Chicago, Ill., assignor to M. Schulz Co., Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 24, 1917. Serial No. 187,942. 14 Claims. (Cl. 84—136.)

1. The combination with means for supporting a music roll of means for engaging said roll to adjust it in position, said engaging means being mounted for movement into and out of engagement with said roll, and means for automatically moving said engaging means into engagement with the roll and holding the same in such engagement during playing.

1,429,907. CALCULATING BALANCE. ARTHUR E. KRICK, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to The Humidity Control Company, Indianapolis, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed Aug. 4, 1920. Serial No. 401,088. 5 Claims. (Cl. 265—30.)

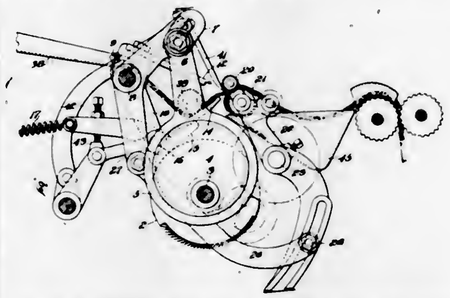
1. A calculating balance, comprising a pivoted beam, a scale pan mounted on one arm thereof, a weight folder arranged to hold a weight variable in value, said weight holder and its carried weight being slidable inward and outward along the other arm of said beam independent of any weight-shifting along the first arm, said last-named arm being provided with a scale each graduation of which indicates directly the ratio between two scale arm lengths of which at least one is the distance from such graduation to a fixed point on the scale arm.

1,429,908. GRAIN-MILLING MACHINE. JAMES B. RIGHTER, East Ellsworth, Wis. Filed Dec. 19, 1921. Serial No. 523,316. 1 Claim. (Cl. 83—8.)



A grain milling machine comprising a case having intake and discharge ports, a vertically disposed partition secured in said case and having grinding surfaces on its opposite faces, a pair of rotary disks working in said case one at each side of said partition and having each a grinding face cooperating with the adjacent grinding face of the partition, said partition having an upwardly opening receiving duct registering with the intake port of the case and opening downwardly toward the grinding face of one of the disks, and said partition having also a transfer port through its lower portion, through which the partially ground material may be passed from one side to the other of said partition.

1,429,909. METHOD OF PREPARING FURNACE LININGS. MAGNUS UNGER, Pittsfield, Mass., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 13, 1920. Serial No. 416,670. 7 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.)

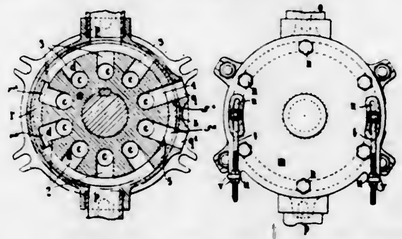


1. The method of starting an induction furnace which consists in placing within the heating space of said furnace a plurality of closed conductors respectively melting at different temperatures, and inducing a heating current therein of sufficient power to successvely melt said conductors.

1,429,910. PROCESS FOR THE CONSTRUCTIVE CONVERSION OF HYDROCARBONS. HAROLD R. BERRY, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Aug. 10, 1922. Serial No. 580,958. 14 Claims. (Cl. 196—25.)

5. A process for the constructive conversion of hydrocarbons of higher boiling points and hydrogen containing gas into liquid hydrocarbons of lower boiling points, which consists in establishing, in a confined space, a counter flow of heated hydrogen containing gas, carrying hydrocarbon vapors, against relatively cool oil, filmed to fineness, so that the oil flows into increasing temperatures and the gas and vapor into decreasing temperatures, with regulation of heat and pressures so that, through heat absorption, oil compounds acquire sufficient molecular instability to cause increase of their hydrogen-content and molecular re-adjustment, thus effecting the lowering of boiling points, the hydrocarbon vapors, in this manner, not being permitted to attain sufficient temperature for molecular disruption and carbon deposit.

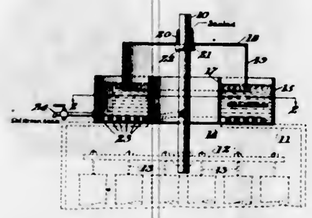
1,429,911. WOOL-COMBING MACHINE. MAX BÖHMER, Chemnitz, Germany, assignor to Otto A. Belger, Newtonville, Mass. Filed July 17, 1922. Serial No. 575,607. 9 Claims. (Cl. 19—121.)



1. In a combing machine of the character described, the combination of combing means, a nipper mechanism movable to and fro, a detaching mechanism also movable to and fro, and a driving member having an oscillating movement and connected with both of said mechanisms to impart their to and fro movements to them.

1,429,912. PROCESS OF MAKING GREEN CHROME OXIDE. ALEXANDER L. DUVAL D'ADRIAN, Washington, Pa. Filed Nov. 5, 1921. Serial No. 513,135. 2 Claims. (Cl. 23—13.)

2. The process of producing a green chrome oxide, which consists in mixing substantially 100 parts by weight of an alkali metal chromate with substantially 50 parts by weight of ammonium sulphate, subjecting this mixture to the action of heat of approximately 400 degrees C. for from 15 minutes to 2 hours, subjecting the product thus obtained to the action of water to dissolve the soluble constituents, and separating out the insoluble chromium oxide.



1,429,913. FILTERING APPARATUS. EDWARD WALTER WOLFE KEENE, Bristol, England. Filed Apr. 20, 1922. Serial No. 555,701. 5 Claims. (Cl. 210—200.)

1. In filtering apparatus of the type referred to, the provision of a rotary valve comprising a rotary ported member, a fied member co-operating with and surrounding said rotary member and having outlets provided therein and an adjustable sliding member located between the rotary member and the fixed member and having ports whereby the functions of the ports of the rotary member may be controlled and regulated substantially as described and for the purpose set forth.

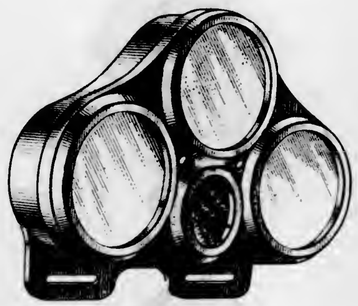
1,429,914. OIL-SEAL INSULATOR. GEORGE R. LEWERS, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Research Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 8, 1918. Serial No. 261,677. 9 Claims. (Cl. 173—311.)

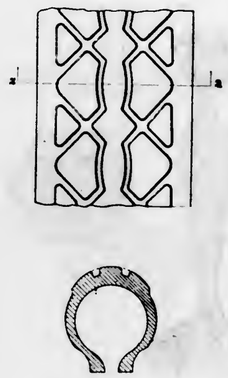
1. The combination with a structure having an opening and an electrical conductor passing therethrough, of means for insulating said structure from the conductor, said means comprising an annular vessel seated on the structure and defining a central passage substantially in alignment with said opening, a hood having a portion extending into the space defined by the inner and outer wall of the annular vessel, and an insulating medium in the annular vessel forming a seal between the latter and the hood, the hood having a central aperture through which the conductor passes.

REISSUES.



15,457. ELECTRIC STORAGE BATTERY. MATTHEW LECHNER, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 31, 1921. Serial No. 497,378. Original No. 1,359,259, dated Nov. 16, 1920, Serial No. 247,111, filed July 29, 1918. 3 Claims. (Cl. 204—29.)

1. In a storage battery cell, the combination of a container, positive and negative plates therein said plates being combined in the form of a unit and having their upright edges, at all points, out of contact with the inner wall of the container, and spaced bridge elements in said container whereby said unit is supported in position, the supporting edges of the plates of at least one set having no more than a single point of contact with one of said bridge elements and being spaced from the other bridge elements that support other plates.



DESIGNS.

61,492. DIRECTION INDICATOR FOR VEHICLES. THOMAS C. ANTHONY, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Jan. 11, 1921. Serial No. 436,574. Term of patent 14 years.

DECISIONS OF THE U. S. COURTS.

Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

DOSENBACH v. WEBSTER.

No. 1477. Decided February 6, 1922.

[278 Fed. Rep., 395.]

PATENTS—INTERFERENCE—PROCESS FOR CONCENTRATING ORES.

In interference proceedings involving an invention of a process for concentrating copper ores evidence Held to show that the essential feature of the invention was the precipitation of copper in a metallic state to be thereafter separated by some known process, so that a party who, before the conception of the other, had conceived only the idea of separating the metallic copper from the ore by flotation did not show a conception of the invention in issue.

Mr. John M. Coit, Mr. James A. Watson, and Mr. J. Edgar Bull for the appellant.

Mr. Archibald Cox, Mr. Harry A. English, and Mr. William G. Henderson for the appellee.

VAN ORSDEL, J.:

This appeal is in an interference proceeding in which the tribunals of the Patent Office concurred in awarding priority of invention to appellee Webster.

The invention in issue is set forth in eleven counts. The following two of which are illustrative:

1. A concentration process comprising the operations of leaching the ore, precipitating the dissolved metal in the metallic state in the ore, and separating such precipitated metal from the ore by flotation.

7. The process of extracting copper from its ore, comprising comminuting the ore, mixing the ore with a copper solvent, and precipitating the copper from the solvent in the form of metallic copper; and separating the metallic copper from the ore pulp by concentration.

The invention is described in the opinion of the Assistant Commissioner as follows:

The subject matter of this interference is a process for treating copper ores and particularly those known as oxide ores which are not susceptible of concentration by the flotation process commonly used with sulphide ores. The process consists in grinding the ore, treating the ground material with sulphuric acid to dissolve the copper values present in the ore, introducing metallic iron which combines with the copper sulphate, forming iron sulphate and precipitating the copper, and in separating the precipitated copper by concentration, by gravity or by flotation.

Appellant Dosenbach claims to have conceived and reduced the invention to practice in November, 1914, while Webster claims to have conceived the idea of concentrating the ores and precipitating the dissolved metal into the pulp in October, 1914. The parties, however, seem to differ as to the real gist of the invention here involved. Dosenbach's conception seems to have been limited to the idea of separating the metallic copper from the ore by flotation, while Webster seems to have directed his energies toward the process of precipitating the copper in a metallic state to be separated by some known process. On this point we agree with the Commissioner that precipitation is the essential step in the invention and that flotation might be replaced by some other method of concentration without destroying the process in issue.

We think, therefore, that Dosenbach has failed to show even conception of the essential feature of the invention in issue on the dates claimed by him. On the other hand Webster's dates are well corroborated and his efforts were directed to the development of the invention of the issue. Indeed, the present contention of Dosenbach that separation by flotation constitutes the chief feature of the invention is not consistent with his original specification wherein he seems to treat the matter of flotation as a secondary feature. In his specification he states—my process is not restricted to the use, or non-use, or the use of any particular floating agent, and includes the operation regardless of whether the flotation be affected by the addition of frothing agents or by the properties imported to the pulp by the various salts formed in the leaching operation.

He also refers in his specification to affecting flotation "in any of the well known forms of apparatus * * * or by means of jets" as illustrated in the prior art.

Without stopping to review the testimony, we are of the opinion that Webster, as unanimously found by the tribunals below, has clearly established his claim to priority.

The decision of the Commissioner is affirmed.

Affirmed.

In the absence of Mr. Chief Justice SMYTH, Mr. Justice HOEHLING of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia participated in the hearing and disposition of this case.

Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

DOSENBACH v. WEBSTER.

No. 1478. Decided February 6, 1922.

[278 Fed. Rep. 397.]

1. PATENTS—INTERFERENCE—CONCEPTION OF INVENTION.

In interference proceedings involving an invention of a process for concentrating copper ores where sulphide and nonsulphide ores were mixed evidence that the experiments of the prior inventor were conducted with ore from the mine which produced a mixture of sulphide and nonsulphide ores Held to establish the conception of the invention in issue, though there was nothing in the record to show he conceived the idea of applying the process to such mixed ores.

2. SAME—SAME—PATENT GIVEN NO ADVANTAGE OVER COPENDING APPLICATION.

A patentee is entitled in interference proceedings to no advantage from the issuance of his patent where the interfering applications were copending in the Patent Office.

Mr. John M. Coit, Mr. James A. Watson, and Mr. J. Edgar Bull for the appellant.

Mr. Archibald Cox, Mr. Harry A. English, and Mr. William G. Henderson for the appellee.

VAN ORSDEL, J.:

This appeal is from the decision of the Commissioner of Patents awarding priority of invention to appellee Webster.

The interference is between a patent to Dosenbach issued June 11, 1918, on an application filed March 7, 1918, and an application of Webster, filed January 23, 1917.

This is a companion interference to No. 1477, just decided. Dosenbach's application here involved, was a division of his application in the companion case. The present interference is submitted on proofs presented in No. 1477. The interference is in two counts, as follows:

1. A process of concentrating ores containing copper in different chemical compounds, one of such compounds being sulphide of copper, which consists in subjecting the ore to the action of a solvent which causes the nonsulphide copper to go into solution while leaving the sulphide copper substantially unaltered, precipitating the dissolved copper in the metallic state in the mixture of ore and solvent, and then separating the precipitated copper and sulphide copper from the gangue by flotation.

2. A process for concentrating ores containing sulphide copper and compounds of copper that are convertible in sulphates by the action of sulphuric acid comprising the operations of subjecting the ore to the action of sulphuric acid forming copper sulphate, precipitating the copper in the metallic state in the mixture of ore and acid, and then separating the precipitated copper and the sulphide copper from the gangue by flotation.

The same process is involved in this interference as in the companion case, but in the present case it is applied to ores containing both sulphide copper and nonsulphide, which may be converted into sulphates by the action of sulphuric acid. It is urged by counsel for Dosenbach that there is nothing in the record to show that Webster conceived the idea of applying the process to ores which contained sulphides as well as nonsulphides, and the Examiner and Board of Examiners in Chief held that inasmuch as the record fails to show that Webster conceived the idea of applying the process of the companion case to ores which contain both sulphides and nonsulphides, that he must be confined to his record date, which is subsequent to the original application of Dosenbach.

We are not impressed with this contention since the evidence discloses that the process was invented by Webster to solve the problem of treating ores from Bullwhacker Mine, at Butte, Montana, and that this ore, while predominantly oxide, contained sulphide copper. It also appears that Webster had made considerable study of the most approved methods of flotation, and that the ores treated by him at the East Butte Mine, were sulphide copper. Dosenbach is entitled to no advantage from the issuance of his patent since the applications were copending in the Patent Office. The process described in the claims combine three steps, first, subjecting the comminuted mixture of sulphide and nonsulphide ore to the action of sulphuric acid to dissolve the copper; second, introducing a copper precipitant into the solvent to precipitate the dissolved copper as metallic copper into the pulp; third, floating out the metallic and sulphide copper.

In determining who is the inventor of this process, it is only necessary to consider the new and patentable features of the invention. The first and third steps are old in the art. The invention, therefore, resides in the second step, namely, in precipitating the solvent in the form of metallic copper into the pulp. This is the invention involved in the companion interference in which we have held that Webster is entitled to priority. To award priority in this interference to Dosenbach, would be inconsistent without holding in the other case. As was said by the Commissioner, an award of priority of the issue herein gives Dosenbach rights excluding Webster, the winning party in the earlier interferences, from using his prior invention on the ores he treated in his experiments which the evidence here considered has been uniformly held to show reduction to practice prior to Dosenbach.

The decision of the Commissioner of Patents is affirmed.

In the absence of Mr. Chief Justice SMYTH, Mr. Justice HOEHLING of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia participated in the hearing and disposition of this case.

Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

WIDMER v. SIPP.

No. 1481. Decided April 3, 1922.

[280 Fed. Rep., 460.]

PATENTS—INTERFERENCE—DOMINATING FEATURE OF INVENTION.

Evidence reviewed and award of priority to senior party Sipp affirmed except as to count 6, which covered particularly planetary gearing, which was Held to be not a mere ancillary improvement on the regular machines of the company, but a dominating feature of the invention, as to which Widmer was entitled to priority.

Mr. Grafton L. McGill and Mr. Francis S. Maguire for the appellant.

Mr. John W. Stewart for the appellee.

ROBB, J.:

Appeal from a decision of the Patent Office in an interference proceeding awarding priority of invention to the senior party and patentee Sipp, who filed no preliminary statement, and took no testimony, and who therefore is restricted to his filing date, July 10, 1917, for conception and constructive reduction to practice.

The invention, as described by the Assistant Commissioner, is an automatic feed mechanism for drill-presses. The drill carrier is normally held in its uppermost position by suitable spring devices, and is started downwardly by the operator, but, when it reaches a predetermined position, a connection is made automatically whereby it is power fed a definite distance and then automatically released and returned to its normal elevated position.

Of the seven counts of the interference, the 1st and 6th are sufficiently illustrative and are here reproduced:

1. In combination, the frame, a tool-carrier including means movable in a definite direction therein, a going driving means, and a power-transmitting coupling to connect said means with each other including a master member movable to one position to make, and to another position to break, the coupling and normally occupying one of said positions, said first-named means having means to move the master member during the movement in one direction of said first means.

6. In combination, the frame, a tool-carrier including train including a rotary driven member, a rotary driving gear member, a free rotary gear, said members and the gear being concentric, a pinion meshing with the gear, and journaled in one and meshing with the other of said members, and a rotation preventing detent device for the gear movable into and out of locking relation thereto and actuable by part of said train.

In October of 1913 Widmer, who was highly skilled in this art, entered into a contract with the Sipp Machine Company, of which appellee was president, to develop and build a model of a sensitive drill-press and to sell the same when manufactured by the company. This contract was to remain in force until September 8, 1918, but on June 3, 1916, a second contract was entered into between the parties which provided that the first contract was to expire on September 7th, following, when the second contract was to take effect. This second contract related to the sale by Widmer to the trade of "quick change speed sensitive drilling machines" and other machine tools then being manufactured by the company. There is no express provision in either contract as to who shall have title to any inventions that may be made.

In the fall of 1916 Widmer, who was endeavoring to devise a drill-press of this sort, obtained the services of the company's expert draftsman Zabriske, who, under Widmer's directions, prepared drawings of the invention which are in evidence in this interference. Thereupon a machine substantially like the drawings was constructed early in January of 1917 and tested in the factory of the company, where Zabriskie and others saw it operated. It then was sent to New York, where it was exhibited at the automobile show. Mr. Widmer testified that one order was received from "a Mr. Edge, at that time general superintendent of the Locomobile Company, at Bridgeport, Connecticut,"; that Mr. Humphreys, his assistant, was with him at the time and that while the order placed was verbal it later was "confirmed by a regular order from the company." This order, according to the recollection of the witness, "was filled some time in March, 1917." No attempt was made to meet this testimony, although the means were at hand had the testimony been incorrect. The machine subsequently constructed, while differing somewhat in mechanical detail, was not patentably different from the earlier machine. As stated by the Examiner of Interferences, the step from the first to the second form of the invention was no more than the embodiment of the same broad invention in another species.

The Examiner further said:

It is clear from the record that he (Widmer) alone originated the broad invention in the first machine * * *.

The Examiner therefore awarded priority to Widmer as to all the counts.

The Examiners in Chief were satisfied that the operation of the earlier machine constituted reduction to practice and so ruled. But, while satisfied that Widmer was the inventor of the subject matter of count 6, which relates particularly to the planetary gearing, the Examiners ruled against him on the ground that this invention was but an ancillary improvement on the regular machines of the company, and hence inured to the company's benefit under the doctrine of employer and employee. The views of the Assistant Commissioner did not differ materially from those of the Board.

We are unable to accept the view that the structure disclosed by count 6 constitutes but an ancillary invention. On the contrary, we are of opinion that the planetary gearing disclosed by this claim constitutes the most essential and dominating feature of the invention, and therefore that Widmer is entitled to priority as to this claim. As to the other claims, however, we do not think Widmer has sustained the heavy burden of proof resting upon him. The question whether, as to count 6, the Sipp Machine Company will be entitled to an assignment of the patent, is not here.

The decision is affirmed as to counts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 7, but reversed as to count 6.

Affirmed as to counts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 7.

Reversed as to count 6.

Mr. Chief Justice SMYTH dissents as to claim 6 and concurs as to claims 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 7.

Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

IN RE PLUMLY.

No. 1459. Decided June 5, 1922.

PATENTS—PUBLIC USE OR SALE.

Where appellant operated his machine for at least twelve years before he applied for a patent and the conditions surrounding the operation were such that a knowledge of the invention must become common, Held that appellant was properly refused a patent on the ground of public use of the invention for more than two years prior to the filing of his application.

Mr. E. H. Fairbanks for the appellant.

Mr. T. A. Hostetler for the Commissioner of Patents.

ROBB, J.:

Appeal from a decision of the Patent Office refusing to allow the claims of appellant's application on the ground of public use for more than two years prior to the filing of the application.

The invention covers a machine for making paper pill boxes, and, as stated by the tribunals of the Patent Office, is quite easily understood by any one at all familiar with mechanics or the operation of such machines. This application was in interference with an application of James W. Hughes, and that interference resulted in the rejection of the claims of both parties on the ground of public use. The evidence very clearly shows that Mr. Plumly, the appellant, operated his machine for at least twelve years before he applied for a patent, that his operatives were under no injunction of secrecy, and that conditions surrounding the operation were such that knowledge of the invention must have become common. The tribunals of the Patent Office have reviewed this evidence and we adopt their reasoning and conclusion. (See Andrews v. Hovey, 123 U. S., 267; 188 C. D., 275; 124 U. S., 694; 1887 C. D., 633.)

The decision is affirmed.

Affirmed.

Adverse Decisions in Interference.

PATENT NO. 1,338,678.

On August 23, 1922, a decision was rendered that Donald Davidson was not the first inventor of the subject matter covered by claim 5 of his Patent No. 1,338,678, subject, "Method of stabilizing polysulfids and the products of such method," and no appeal having been taken within the time allowed such decision has become final.

PATENT NO. 1,377,851.

On August 15, 1922, a decision was rendered that Parsons, Cook, and Douglas were not the first inventors of the subject matter covered by claims 1 and 2 of their Patent No. 1,377,851, subject, "Geared turbine system," and no appeal having been taken within the time allowed such decision has become final.

DESIGN PATENT NO. 58,360.

On August 24, 1922, a decision was rendered that John M. Hothersall was not the first inventor of the subject matter covered by the claim of his Patent No. 58,360, subject, "Design for talcum-powder box," and no appeal having been taken within the time allowed such decision has become final.

DESIGN PATENT NO. 58,367.

On August 24, 1922, a decision was rendered that John M. Hothersall was not the first inventor of the subject matter covered by the claim of his Patent No. 58,367, subject, "Design for talcum-powder box," and no appeal having been taken within the time allowed such decision has become final.

Changes in Classification.

(ORDER NO. 2,780.)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., September 18, 1922.

The following change in the classification of inventions is hereby directed, to take effect immediately:

In class 108, Roofs (Division XXXIII), establish the following subclass and definition:

33. Cleats and fasteners.

33. CLEATS AND FASTENERS. Devices for securing roofing materials in place.

Search this class, subclass 5.9.

Search Class—

85.—DRIVEN, HEADED, AND SCREW-THREADED FASTENINGS, appropriate subclasses, for analogous devices of general application.

The patents contained in this subclass have been taken from various subclasses in classes 85, Driven, Headed, and Screw-Threaded Fastenings, and 108, Roofs.

PATENTS

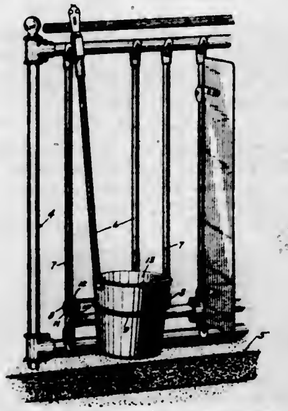
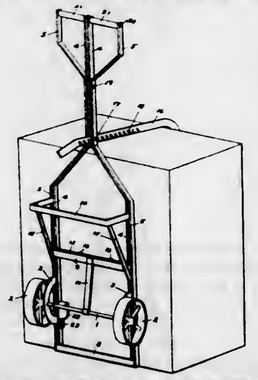
1,429,915. METAL CASEMENT WINDOW AND METAL WEATHER STRIP THEREFOR. FRANK PAUL ANDERSON, Columbus, Ohio, assignor of one-half to George C. Urlin, Columbus, Ohio. Filed Aug. 6, 1920. Serial No. 401,693. 4 Claims. (Cl. 189—69.)



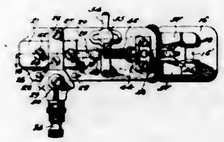
1. In a metal casement window, the combination of a metal Z-bar and a metal T-bar having a two-point contact with each other and having a space therebetween, a spring tongue secured to said Z-bar within said space and said tongue having a space between it and the Z-bar and a lip secured to said T-bar in said space and having a channel therein, and said tongue being adapted to detachably enter said channel and said lip being adapted to detachably enter said space between said tongue and said Z-bar, substantially as set forth and for the purposes specified.

1,429,916. BORING MACHINE. NELS ANDERSON, Flint, Mich. Filed July 21, 1921. Serial No. 486,641. 5 Claims. (Cl. 144—105.)



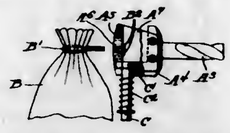
1. A boring device comprising a clamping element, formed of a pair of spaced members, a drive shaft supported by one of said members, disengageable means driven by said shaft to move said members toward and away from each other, a boring tool mounted at an angle to said members, and disengageable connecting means between said tool and said shaft to drive said tool.

1,429,917. PAIL HOLDER. ELMER T. ABENDROTH, De Pere, Wis., assignor to Hudson Manufacturing Company, Minneapolis, Minn., a Corporation of Minnesota. Filed May 24, 1920. Serial No. 383,612. 4 Claims. (Cl. 248—20.)



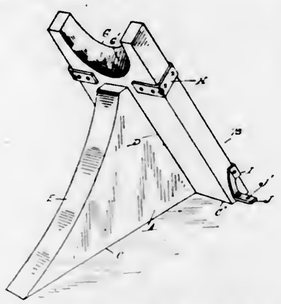
3. A pail holder comprising a substantially circular band with open ends extending in opposite directions and provided with vertically extending prongs, spaced standards and vertically and rotatively adjustable heads on said standards for receiving said prongs whereby the band can be expanded and contracted and raised and lowered.

1,429,918. HAND TRUCK. ERHARD ALLEN, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The Dayton Display Fixture Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Jan. 26, 1921. Serial No. 439,964. 2 Claims. (Cl. 280—56.)



1. In a device of the type described, the combination with a pair of hand truck wheels, of a pair of side bars whose forward ends are supported upon said wheels, said side bars being bent at an angle inwardly about midway of their length and then rebent parallel with their forward ends, said bars then being bent outwardly at an angle and then rearwardly parallel to their forward ends, and a transverse handle supported by their outer ends.

1,429,919. BUTTON-SEWING MACHINE. WILLIAM L. BARRON, Newark, N. J., assignor to The Singer Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Sept. 25, 1918. Serial No. 255,691. 13 Claims. (Cl. 112—112.)



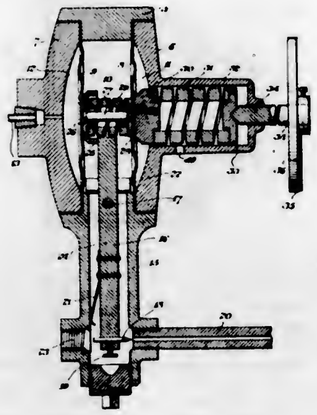
7. In a button sewing machine, button-positioning means, a lever for shifting the same, and means for variably limiting the throw of said lever, comprising stops and an adjustable member having inclined faces adapted to engage said stops.

1,429,920. WIRE TIE AND SEAL MAKING AND APPLYING TOOL. ADELMER M. BATES, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Bates Valve Bag Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed Dec. 20, 1920. Serial No. 431,836. 13 Claims. (Cl. 140—119.)

1. In a wire seal making tool a twisting head having a pocket open at one side, one of the side walls of the pocket being slotted and an ejector member located within the pocket and mounted for slidable movement within the slot.

1,429,921. WHEEL BLOCK. WILLIAM W. BLAKELY, Detroit, Mich. Filed Mar. 5, 1920. Serial No. 363,538. 7 Claims. (Cl. 188—32.)

1. A wheel block comprising a substantially triangular member having an arcuate face adapted to conform to a vehicle wheel, a base face substantially tangential to said arcuate face, the other face of the triangle being inclined at substantially 45° to the base face.



1,429,922. ALIPHATIC DIALKYLAMINO ALKYL COMPOUNDS AND PROCESS OF MAKING SAME. MAX BOCKMÜHL, Hochst-on-the-Main, and ADOLF SCHWARZ, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, assignors to Farbwerke vorm. Meister Lucius & Bruning, Hochst-on-the-Main, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed Sept. 13, 1921. Serial No. 500,432. 2 Claims. (Cl. 260—106.)

1. The process of producing dialkylaminoalkyl compounds, which consists in causing caustic alkalies to act upon the molecular mixtures of halogen alkyl dialkylamines or their salts and bodies of the general formula:

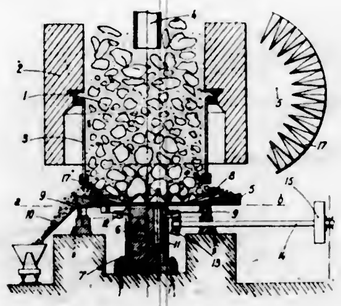
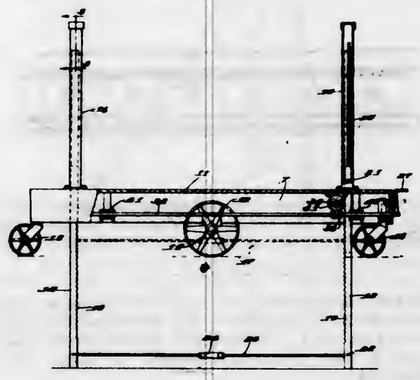
wherein R and R_1 represent hydrogen or an alkyl residue, and X represents a radicle which renders the carbon atom in the alpha position acid.

1,429,923. TEMPERATURE REGULATING VALVE. ADOLPHE E. BOSSÉ, Arden, Del., and CLARENCE W. FORD, Philadelphia, Pa., assignors to Bossé-Ford Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Maryland. Filed Feb. 7, 1920. Serial No. 357,103. 10 Claims. (Cl. 236—92.)



1. A device of the character described comprising a housing, a pair of flexible diaphragms dividing the interior of said housing into three chambers, means limiting the extent of approach of said diaphragms towards each other, means mounted in one of the outer chambers bearing against the outer side of one of said diaphragms tending to dilate the same towards the central chamber, fluid pressure means connected with the other outer chamber tending to dilate the other diaphragm towards the central chamber, and a valve needle actuated by one of said diaphragms adapted to control the flow of a refrigerating medium, said valve needle being mounted in a chamber communicating with the chamber between said diaphragms.

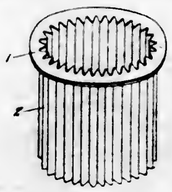
1,429,924. METHOD FOR BENDING PIPES OR TUBES. LOUIS H. BRINKMAN, Glenridge, N. J. Filed May 27, 1919. Serial No. 300,163. 9 Claims. (Cl. 153—36.)



1. The method of bending a tube which consists in bending the tube and meanwhile causing balls of less diameter than the desired bore of the tube to move through the portion being bent and subsequently passing a larger ball through the bent portion of the tube.

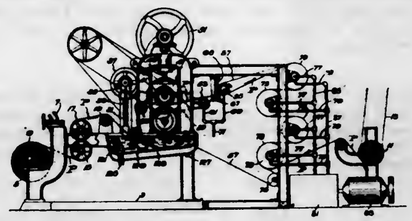
1,429,925. FURNACE-DRAWING APPARATUS FOR LIME KILNS, CEMENT KILNS, AND THE LIKE. CHARLES CANDLOT, Paris, France. Filed Aug. 9, 1921. Serial No. 490,985. 3 Claims. (Cl. 83—7.)

1. A furnace drawing apparatus for lime kilns and the like, comprising a grate supporting the mass to be withdrawn, a rotary support for said grate causing a planetary movement thereof relative to the axis of the furnace, whereby the materials are driven towards the exterior in a continuous manner over the whole periphery of the grate.



1,429,926. COMBINED TRUCK AND WORKBENCH. FRANCIS D. CARRE, Rockford, Ill. Filed July 22, 1921. Serial No. 486,915. 6 Claims. (Cl. 144—286.)

1. A combined truck and work bench comprising a platform-table, carrying wheels therefor, and means carried by the platform-table for raising the same to a work bench position and for lowering it to a truck position.



1,429,927. TRANSFORMER CASING. LIONEL A. CARTER, St. Louis, Mo., assignor of one-third to Thomas O. Moloney and one-third to James J. Mullen, both of St. Louis, Mo. Filed Sept. 10, 1918. Serial No. 253,453. 2 Claims. (Cl. 113—116.)

1. The process of making transformer casings which consists in forming a fluted side wall member of substantially the same contour throughout its height, then cutting out from a single blank by a single cutting operation along a line which is fluted the bottom wall member and the flange member, so that the inner portion of the flange member and the outer portion of the bottom will match the flutes of said side wall member, and then soldering or welding the bottom wall member within the lower end of said wall member and soldering or welding the flange member to the upper end of said side wall member.

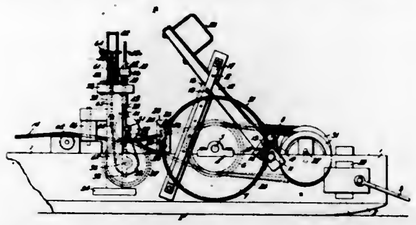
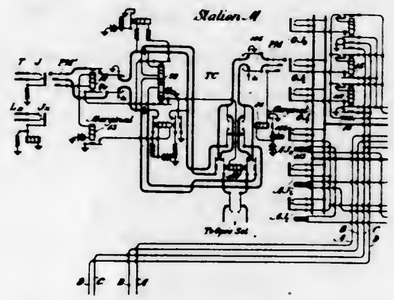
1,429,928. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR WAXING PAPER. WINTHROP L. CARTER, Nashua, N. H. Filed May 15, 1920. Serial No. 381,706. 8 Claims. (Cl. 91—31.)

1. The method of waxing paper which consists in passing the same through heated wax, squeezing the surplus wax therefrom, polishing the surface while still hot, and then immediately chilling the wax to harden the same by contact with a chilled surface moving in the same direction as the paper to avoid disturbing the polish.



2. A machine for making waxed paper having a receptacle for heated wax, means for guiding the paper through the wax, means for removing the surplus wax, one or more heated polishing rolls over which the paper is passed together with means for driving the same and one or more cooling rolls for chilling the paper without disturbing the polished surface.

1,429,929. BOTTLE STOPPER. ROBERT CATELLA, Woodlawn, N. Y. Filed Feb. 23, 1922. Serial No. 538,609. 1 Claim. (Cl. 215—70.)

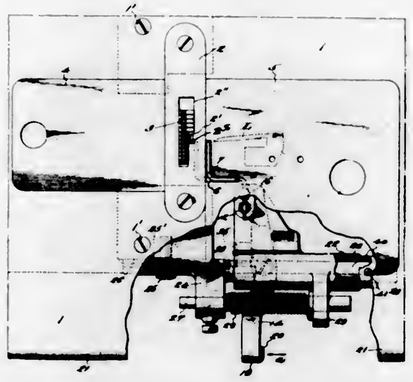


A bottle closure comprising, a bail permanently attached to a bottle neck, a cap for closing the opening in the bottle neck, an internally screw threaded nut having an annular groove in its outer surface, a portion of the bight portion of the bail fitting a portion of the groove, a tie wire lying in the opposite portion of the groove and having its ends twisted around the bail, and means cooperating with the nut for exerting pressure on the cap.

1,429,930. SNUBBING MACHINE. HENRY C. CURRIER, Millers Falls, Mass. Filed Nov. 26, 1921. Serial No. 517,878. 23 Claims. (Cl. 254—135.)

1. In a snubbing machine, drums over which a cable is passed, pressure rollers adapted to bear upon said cable as it passes over said drums, yokes carrying said rollers, said yokes being spring pressed, means for regulating the tension of said springs, shafts carried by said yokes on which said pressure rollers are mounted, brake bands looped over said shafts, brake drums fixed to said first mentioned drums, said brake bands passing around said drums, and means for alternately tightening one brake band and loosening the other.

1,429,931. SIGNALING CIRCUITS FOR TOLL LINES. JOHN DAVIDSON, Jr., Montclair, N. J., assignor to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 12, 1918. Serial No. 266,487. 13 Claims. (Cl. 179—43.)



3. In a signaling system, a plurality of toll-trunks extending between two offices and each terminating at one of said offices at a plurality of positions, a signaling path common to said toll trunks and extending between said offices and means whereby an operator at the other office may selectively signal an operator at any position of any toll trunk over the common signaling path.

1,429,932. PROCESS FOR THE CHLORINATION OF MONTAN WAX. ALFONS DESCHAUER, Bonn, Germany. Filed May 22, 1922. Serial No. 562,773. 3 Claims. (Cl. 260—162.)

1. Process for chlorinizing Montan wax characterized by the fact that the chlorination is effected in aqueous mixtures; substantially as described.

1,429,933. ATTACHMENT FOR SEWING MACHINES. ALBERT H. DE VOE, Westfield, N. J., assignor to The Singer Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 2, 1918. Serial No. 264,897. 15 Claims. (Cl. 112—153.)

15. In a sewing machine, the combination with a work-support and stitch-forming mechanism including a needle, of a work-guide adjustable laterally of the needle to various operative positions above the work-support, said work-guide being shiftable to an inoperative position below the work.

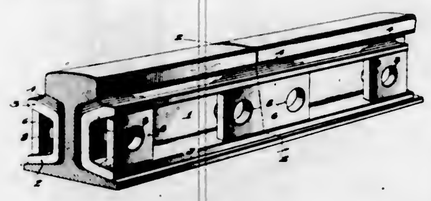
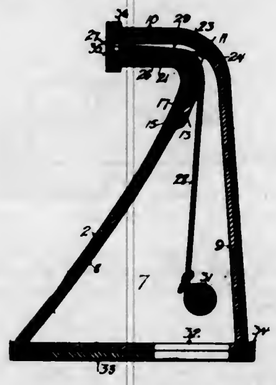
1,429,934. SECTIONAL INSULATION FOR RAIL JOINTS. CLARKSON A. DISBROW, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Rail Joint Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed July 21, 1921. Serial No. 486,519. 4 Claims. (Cl. 238—159.)



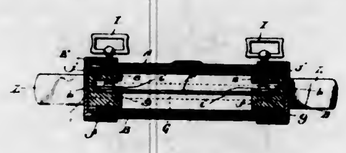
1. An insulating unit for rail joints comprising a plurality of alined sections, an intermediate section being adapted to be located at the centre of the joint.

1,429,935. RAIL JOINT. CLARKSON A. DISBROW, New Rochelle, N. Y., assignor to The Rail Joint Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 3, 1922. Serial No. 565,549. 12 Claims. (Cl. 238—244.)



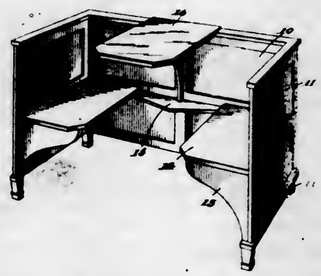
1. A rail joint including the rails, a joint bar of less fishing height than that of the rails, and bearing shim units interposed between the bar and rails at the central and end portions of the joint.

1,429,936. FABRICATED RAIL JOINT. CLARKSON A. DISBROW, New Rochelle, N. Y., assignor to The Rail Joint Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 3, 1922. Serial No. 565,550. 13 Claims. (Cl. 238—164.)



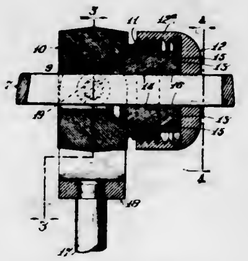
1. A fabricated rail joint including a primary bar of less fishing height than that of the rails and adjustably fitting the fishing surfaces thereof, and rail-bearing members welded to said bar.

1,429,937. SOUND AMPLIFIER FOR PHONOGRAPHS AND METHOD OF MAKING THE SAME. CHARLES J. DODGE, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Dec. 6, 1918. Serial No. 265,496. 5 Claims. (Cl. 181—27.)



1. An amplifier for phonographs having a tapering sound chamber and composed of a composition of matter consisting principally of plaster and having wood fibre incorporated in and intimately mixed therewith to form a homogeneous mass.

1,429,938. REFILLABLE ELECTRIC FUSE. GLENN H. DRABENSTOTT, Wooster, Ohio. Filed Dec. 13, 1920. Serial No. 430,582. 2 Claims. (Cl. 200—128.)

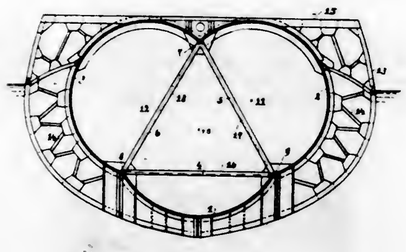


1. In a device of the character described, the combination with a cylindrical body, having a longitudinal slot opening therein, of a cylindrical sheath enveloping said body, said sheaths having a longitudinal slot opening therein adapted to register with said body slot by rotation over said body; bifurcated blocks in the ends of said body, respectively, and means, including screws passed from without said sheath through one of the abutments of said blocks, respectively, for fastening the parts together, and a fuse link inserted edgewise into notches in said blocks, respectively, substantially as set forth.

1,429,939. COMBINED SEAT AND TABLE. ARTHUR W. EICHMAN, Decatur, Ill., assignor to Adolph Mueller, trustee, Decatur, Ill. Filed Dec. 17, 1921. Serial No. 523,110. 7 Claims. (Cl. 155—124.)

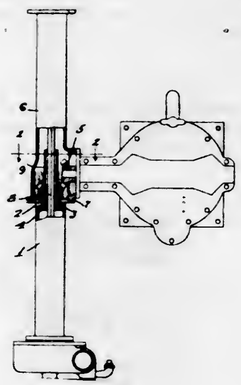
1. In a refreshment table, the combination of a back-frame, a horizontal brace extending across said frame, two seats spaced apart and supported at their inner ends upon said brace, end frames rigidly secured to and extending outwardly from the back frame, brackets upon the end frames for supporting the outer ends of the seats, and a table member having a bracket supported by said brace, said table member being arranged centrally between and above said seats.

1,429,940. ADJUSTABLE HANDLE. WILLIAM A. FIELD, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 11, 1922. Serial No. 543,129. 8 Claims. (Cl. 74—39.)



1. A handle comprising a head having a passage therethrough and an inclined bearing surface, a rod extended through said head, a wedge block adapted to bear against said rod and said inclined bearing surface, and means movable longitudinally on said rod and operated by the rotation thereof for clamping said wedge block between said bearing surface and said rod.

1,429,941. SUBMARINE BOAT. OSWALD FLAMM, Nicolassee, near Berlin, Germany. Filed May 6, 1921. Serial No. 467,439. 3 Claims. (Cl. 114—16.)



1. In a submarine boat the arrangement of the shell plating which forms the pressure body of the submarine and consists of a number of single circular arcs disposed one over each of the sides of a triangle, the provision of a girder construction, the girders following the sides of the triangle and forming draining appliances for leading off the water collected in the upper channel of the rising submarine boat, substantially as described.

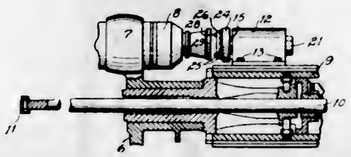
1,429,942. OIL GUARD. CHARLES W. FRANCIS, Paterson, N. J., assignor to Gillespie Eden Corporation, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 18, 1922. Serial No. 537,474. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—56.)

1. In a gearing transmission, a cylindrical vertical casing having a central bearing aperture, a gear having a hub journalled in said aperture whereby an oil chamber is formed above said bearing in which said gear revolves, a shaft extending through said gear, and a hollow oil guard surrounding said shaft in spaced relation thereto and secured in the top of said gear and extending above said oil chamber.



1,429,943. COMBUSTION-ENGINE-VALVE MECHANISM. WILLIAM HARPER, Jr., New York, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Gas Turbine Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 7, 1918. Serial No. 220,949. Renewed Feb. 17, 1922. Serial No. 537,360. 3 Claims. (Cl. 123—47.)

1. A combustion engine having a cylinder, a crank shaft and connecting rod, a valve in the piston, valve actuating means operated by the connecting rod, and means for multiplying the movement between the actuating means and the valve.

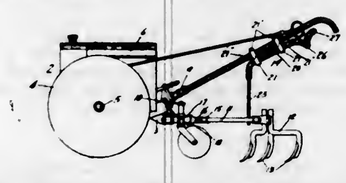
1,429,944. ROTARY STAMPING DEVICE. ALOIS HAUSER and MARCUS T. LOTHROP, Canton, Ohio, assignors to The Timken Roller Bearing Company, Canton, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Jan. 13, 1922. Serial No. 528,924. 13 Claims. (Cl. 101—4.)

1. A device for impressing a mark in the end of a rotating article, said device comprising a rotatably supported stamp adapted to be forced axially into engagement with the article.



1,429,945. LIFTING JACK. ALBERT HENRY FEE HERN, London, England. Filed Oct. 19, 1920. Serial No. 418,085. 4 Claims. (Cl. 254—122.)

4. The combination with a lifting jack including a lazy tongs mechanism and a threaded spindle adapted to be rotated positively to cause expansion or contraction of the lazy tongs, of a box wherein said mechanism can be collapsed and entirely contained and to which it is secured, one wall of said box being provided with a slot in which said spindle travels, and an operating handle for the rotatable spindle.

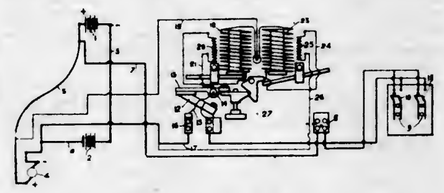
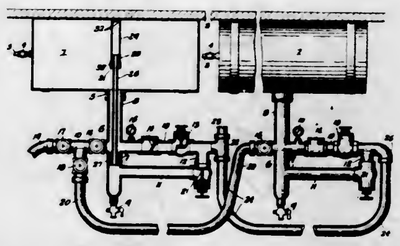
1,429,946. POWER-OPERATED FARMING IMPLEMENT. GEORGE O. HODGE, Bristol, Conn., assignor to The New Britain Machine Company, New Britain, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Feb. 18, 1921. Serial No. 445,983. 1 Claim. (Cl. 97—48.)

The combination of a wheeled frame, controlling handles connected with the frame, an agricultural implement flexibly connected with the wheeled frame, an actuator, comprising a body portion provided with longitudinally separated clamps, one of the handles having longitudinally separated clamps to which the other clamps are flexibly connected, the actuator having a downward extension at its forward end operatively connected with the agricultural implement and having at its rear end a lateral extension situated between the controlling handles, the lateral extension terminating in a grasping portion adjacent to the handle portion of one of the handles.



1,429,947. GIN ATTACHMENT. CLAUDE A. HOOTON, Sherman, Tex., assignor to Hardwicke-Etter Company, Sherman, Tex. Filed July 11, 1921. Serial No. 483,854. 6 Claims. (Cl. 19—39.)

2. In a device of the character described, a gin, a door thereon, a feeder chute, a valve therefor, said door being normally closed and said valve normally open, two levers pivoted on a common shaft, a gear between said levers, cams on opposite sides of said gear contacting with said levers to move them, operative connections between one of said levers and said door and similar connections between the other lever and said valve whereby said valve may be closed and said door opened at predetermined intervals.



1,429,948. ELECTRICAL APPARATUS. GEORGE E. HULSE, Newark, N. J., assignor to Safety Car Heating & Lighting Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Feb. 16, 1917. Serial No. 149,013. 5 Claims. (Cl. 171—314.)

1. In apparatus of the class described, in combination, a storage battery, means adapted to charge said battery, current utilizing devices adapted to be connected to said battery, a switch for connecting said devices to said battery, a mechanical means adapted to hold said switch closed, means adapted to operate said mechanical means to open said switch upon the voltage across said battery attaining a predetermined maximum value and resulting in an excessive charging current through said battery, and means independent of said charging current adapted to operate said mechanical means to open said switch upon the voltage of said battery falling below a predetermined value.

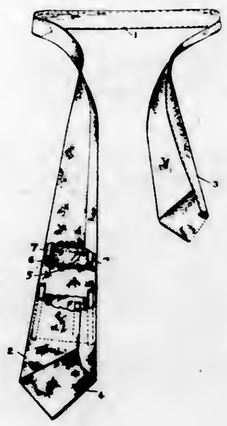
1. A tank testing apparatus comprising a suitable framework of tubular members, said framework being adapted to be mounted in connection with a tank and in communication therewith a discharge member at the bottom thereof, a vent tube being mounted in said framework and extending into said tank, means whereby water may be passed into and through certain of the members of said framework around said vent tube and into the tank to be tested and through said vent tube and out through said discharge member, and means whereby compressed air may be passed into said framework to place the water therein and in the tank to be tested under predetermined pressure.



1,429,950. SHAMPOO DEVICE. JOHN G. JONES and OTTO W. ROSE, St. Louis, Mo.; said Rose assignor to said Jones. Filed Sept. 22, 1921. Serial No. 502,418. 4 Claims. (Cl. 4—2.)

1. A device of the character described, comprising an annular basin composed of rubber having a central opening the bordering portion of which is elastic, the material around said opening being arranged to stretch to permit the head of the user to pass therethrough, devices in connection with the material of the basin near said opening for clamping the material closely around the neck of the user, a frame supporting the outer portion of the basin leaving the intermediate portion depending and forming an annular basin between the neck of the user and the frame, and supports in connection with the frame arranged to bear upon the shoulders of the user.

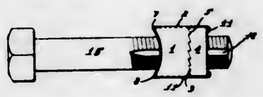
1,429,951. NECKTIE. OSCAR KAFKA, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 5, 1919. Serial No. 342,824. 2 Claims. (Cl. 2—11.)

1. A necktie consisting of a neck-band and a tying-end portion, in which the end portion consists of a cover fabric which is folded over along both edges of the tie and the edges of the fabric joined at the back of the tie, and a foundation consisting of a strip of fabric and bindings folded over and secured to each of the edges, the foundation being enveloped by the cover fabric and being free from the cover fabric at the trying end portion, substantially as described.

1,429,952. HOLDDOWN DEVICE. JOHN A. KEARNEY, Wilson, N. C. Filed Mar. 18, 1921. Serial No. 453,301. 6 Claims. (Cl. 294—1.)

1. A portable hold-down device comprising a hook, and a foot plate to which the hook is adjustably secured.

1,429,953. MANUFACTURE OF UREA FROM AMMONIA AND CARBON DIOXIDE. NORMAN W. KRASE, Clarendon, Va. Filed Mar. 3, 1921. Serial No. 449,554. 7 Claims. (Cl. 260—125.)



3. The method of making urea, comprising heating a mass of ammonium carbamate to a temperature of from 140° C. to 165° C. in the presence of an aqueous fluid and maintaining the same under pressure during the heating period.

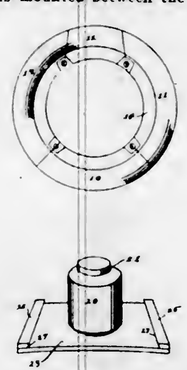
1,429,954. STRINGED MUSICAL INSTRUMENT. FRANK J. KUMMETH, Heron Lake, Minn. Filed Nov. 10, 1919. Serial No. 336,834. 9 Claims. (Cl. 84—296.)

1. A stringed musical instrument comprising a body having a chamber within it, a plurality of tone producing strings supported from the body, a plurality of diaphragms and means connecting each string with a diaphragm for bodily vibration of the diaphragm from the bodily vibration of the string through the bodily movement of the corresponding connecting means.

1,429,955. LOCK NUT. JAMES C. LEGO, North Baltimore, Ohio, assignor of one third to Jacob K. Smith, North Baltimore, Ohio. Filed Apr. 1, 1922. Serial No. 548,650. 1 Claim. (Cl. 151—29.)

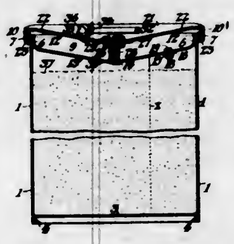
A lock nut comprising two members for engagement with a bolt, and a spring washer to fit on the bolt adjacent the outer face of one of said members said washer being bowed inwardly toward the member in connection with which it is to be used and having oppositely disposed right angularly extending arms equipped with terminal hooks to engage the outer face of the other member to lock said members in assembled position.

1,429,956. RETAINING ATTACHMENT FOR OPERATING TABLES. LEO L. LUX, Greeley, Colo. Filed Apr. 19, 1921. Serial No. 462,731. 4 Claims. (Cl. 128—74.)



1. A retainer comprising a pair of opposed jaws, means on one jaw to clamp the device on a table, and means on the outer side of the other jaw to clamp and hold a strap.

1,429,957. COLLAPSIBLE CORE. FREEMAN D. MASON, Stow Township, Summit County, Ohio, assignor to Bridgewater Machine Company, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Dec. 1, 1920. Serial No. 427,515. 6 Claims. (Cl. 18—45.)



1. A core of the class described, comprising an annulus composed of separable sections, each section provided with an inwardly projecting flange, a block projecting laterally from each side of each flange at each end of each section, one edge of each block being in alinement with the abutting end of the section, the opposite edge of each block having a face lying at an acute angle to the face of the flange and being disposed obliquely to the corresponding edge of the block on the abutting section so as to form in conjunction therewith a wedge, a locking plate having a cavity adapted to snugly receive said wedge and means mounted between the abutting ends of said sections and arranged to engage said plates and hold the same into interlocking engagement with said wedge.

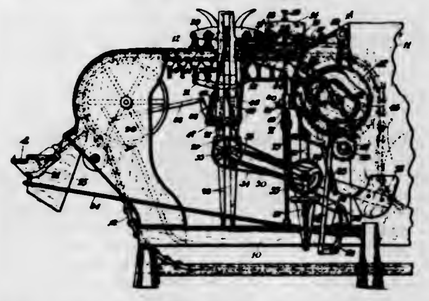
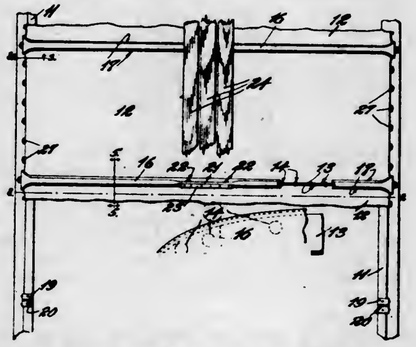
1,429,958. MUNITION CASING. VICTOR MAUCK, Norristown, Pa. Filed Oct. 8, 1918. Serial No. 257,354. 13 Claims. (Cl. 220—57.)



1. In a munition casing, the combination with a cylindrical, tubular metal shell, permanently closed at one end, and having at the other end an outwardly and downwardly turned annular flange forming a hollow hook ledge, of semi-circular cross section; of a plane annular gasket, of resilient material, on said flange; a closure for said shell, including a pressed sheet metal lid, having a plane annular flange opposed to the flange on said shell and arranged to bear upon said gasket; said lid having a cylindrical shoulder adjoining said flange and fitting in said shell, and having its intermediate portion conically dished and extending in said shell, toward the closed end of the latter, and having, in its dished portion, an internally screw threaded nipple, extending inwardly, with respect to said shell, in unitary relation with said lid, and forming a test port; a tapered screw test plug fitted to said nipple, and having a wrench hold accessible from the exterior of said lid; a pressed sheet metal yoke having a rhombic body with two diametrically opposite arms having pendent, inwardly turned, hooks in unitary relation therewith; the ends of said hooks being shaped to engage in the hollow of said hook ledge; said yoke being hollow, U-shaped in cross section, deeper at its middle than at its ends, and with its U flanges extending outwardly from said shell; said yoke having an outwardly extending rectangular central nut recess, and opposite, inwardly extending, nut locking tabs; a standard size square nut, mounted in said recess and rigidly locked in said yoke by said tabs; a clamp screw, extending in said nut, in registry with the apex of the conical portion of said lid, having a cotter hole extending through it, near its point, and having a T bar head with an aperture for a sealing wire; a cotter pin in said screw, preventing withdrawal of said screw from said nut; and a sealing wire extending through said head, transversely encircling said yoke, and normally preventing rotation of said screw; the construction and arrangement being such that said closure lid and yoke may only be applied to and removed from said casing when said screw is retracted to the extent limited by said cotter pin, said closure being capable of being hermetically clamped upon said casing by said screw, and, when thus clamped, said screw head is within said yoke.

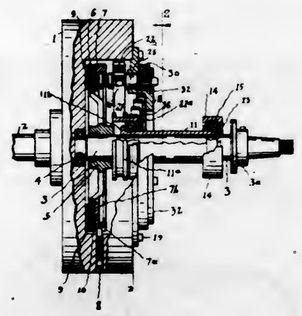
1,429,959. METALLIC ALLOY FOR REPAIR PURPOSES. PERRY O. MELTON, Aberdeen, S. Dak. Filed Sept. 6, 1921. Serial No. 498,600. 1 Claim. (Cl. 75—1.)



A repair metal consisting of the following ingredients combined in substantially the proportions stated, viz, zinc 11 ounces, lead 1½ pounds, tin 1½ pounds, copper 1 ounce.

1,429,960. BOTTLE-WASHING MACHINE. GEORGE J. MEYER, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Aug. 27, 1917. Serial No. 188,415. 22 Claims. (Cl. 15—60.)

1. A bottle washing machine comprising a conveyor for carrying bottles in an inverted position, a pair of rotary brushes above the conveyor with their adjacent portions moving downwardly, and means entering and engaging within the necks of the bottles for lifting the bottles off of the conveyor and carrying them upwardly between the downwardly moving portions of the rotary brushes with their neck portions exposed to the action of the brushes.



1,429,961. CAR ROOF. JOHN L. MOHUN, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 21, 1920. Serial No. 360,534. 20 Claims. (Cl. 108—5.4.)

1. A car roof comprising roof sheets extending from side plate to side plate and having upturned side marginal flanges rigidly secured together to form joints, an outside carline covering each of said joints and the securing means therefor, said carline being out of contact with said joints and being secured to said roof sheets only in the region of the ridge, said roof sheets and said outside carline being rigidly secured to said side plates at their eaves ends.

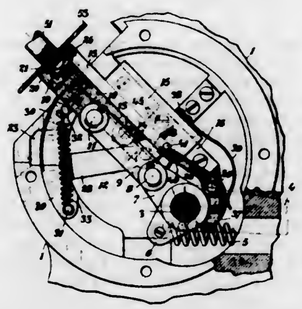
1,429,962. FRICTION CLUTCH. THOMAS MORGAN, Muncie, Ind. Filed Dec. 28, 1918. Serial No. 268,660. 6 Claims. (Cl. 192—68.)

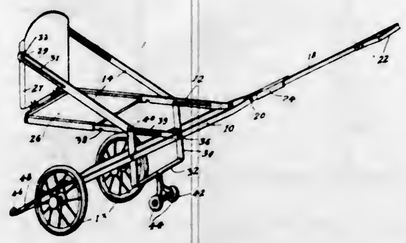
1. In a friction clutch comprising a driving element, a driven element, a casing fixed to the driving element, a thrust ring mounted within and movable longitudinally of the casing, shifting means within the casing to move the thrust ring into and out of contact with the driven element, the combination of connector members carried by the casing and capable of being moved adjustably therein, and having free retaining engagement with the thrust ring, an adjusting member carried by the casing and having connection with the connector members so that when it is shifted all of the connector members are moved, and a device to hold the adjusting member at set position.

1,429,963. FOOT-MEASURING DEVICE. GEORGE W. NELSON, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Mar. 1, 1920. Serial No. 362,359. 4 Claims. (Cl. 33—3.)



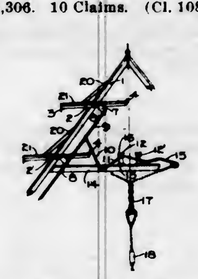
1. A chart or measuring feet having end and side gauges extending at right angles to each other, a length scale and a width scale, the latter comprising parallel lines inclined laterally toward the side gauge at their portions which are adjacent the end gauge and parallel to the side gauge at their other ends whereby the same lines are used for measuring women's and men's feet.

1,429,964. PILE. JOHN P. NORDSTROM, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor of one-third to Allen N. Spooner and one-third to David M. Tulloch, both of New York, N. Y. Filed June 24, 1921. Serial No. 480,015. 8 Claims. (Cl. 61—53.)



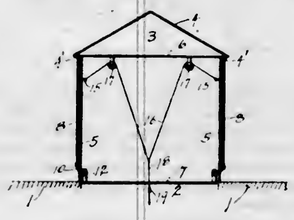
1. A pile comprising an elongated body portion, a pair of auxiliary bearing strips disposed on opposite sides of the body portion and opposite one another, and common means for securing both strips against movement endwise of the body portion.

1,429,965. MACHINE FOR INSERTING LACING HOOKS. WERNER OCHS, Bad Liebenstein, Germany. Filed May 7, 1921. Serial No. 467,644. 6 Claims. (Cl. 218—17.)



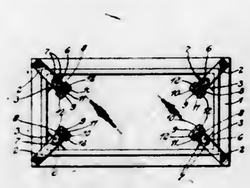
2. A lacing hook setting machine comprising a casing having an opening through which the lacing hooks are admitted, a set located outside of the casing, a cooperating set inside of the casing, an arm on which said cooperating set is mounted, a pivotal mounting for said arm, a slide carried by said pivotal mounting, toggle means for operating said last mentioned set so as to cause it to insert a lacing hook and to disengage itself therefrom by an angular movement, a second slide for closing the opening in said casing a spring connecting said second mentioned slide with the arm on which the set is mounted so that it is displaced when said arm is oscillated and remains in the closing position when said arm is advanced so that the opening for the lacing hooks is uncovered only when said arm with the inner set is at its lowest position, and a rail for conveying the lacing hooks to said opening.

1,429,966. COLLAPSIBLE GOCART. HARRY R. OLSEN, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Dec. 27, 1920. Serial No. 433,227. 13 Claims. (Cl. 280—40.)



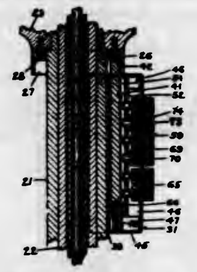
1. A collapsible go cart comprising a wheel frame, a seat frame pivoted to said wheel frame, a seat back pivoted to said seat frame, brace members connected with said back, a foot rest pivoted at its center to said wheel frame and at its end to said brace members for collapsing said seat back.

1,429,967. SKYLIGHT OR VENTILATED ROOF. SAMUEL J. OLSHIN, Yonkers, N. Y. Filed Aug. 23, 1920. Serial No. 405,306. 10 Claims. (Cl. 108—16.)



1. In a device of the class described, a pivoted window sash and means for automatically turning said sash to a predetermined position, said means comprising a rotatable rod and an adjustable arm on said rod.

1,429,968. SKYLIGHT. SAMUEL J. OLSHIN, Yonkers, N. Y. Filed Nov. 5, 1921. Serial No. 512,998. 4 Claims. (Cl. 108—16.)

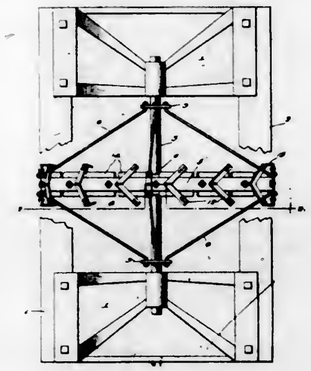


1. In a device of the class described, a sash substantially vertical in its normal closed position, a housing, said sash being outside of said housing, a pivot for said sash inside of said housing, said sash being connected to said pivot by an offset portion.

1,429,969. PIVOTED FOLDING TABLE LEG. EVERETT C. PALMER, St. Charles, Mo. Filed Dec. 10, 1921. Serial No. 521,500. 3 Claims. (Cl. 45—11.)

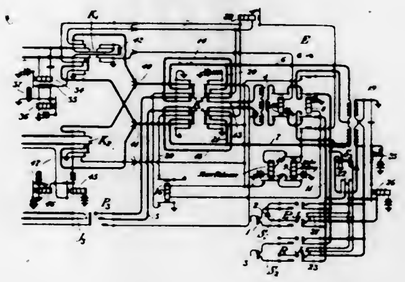
1. Means for supporting a table comprising a hinged member having a section pivotally secured to and rotatable upon a plate affixed to the under surface of the table and a section secured to a leg or post disposed adjacent to the corners of the table, whereby the leg may be turned and swung upwardly against the under surface of the table when the latter is not in use.

1,429,970. PERMUTATION LOCK. JOSEPH ROSEMANN, Covington, Ky. Filed Dec. 3, 1921. Serial No. 519,599. 4 Claims. (Cl. 70—53.)



1. In a permutation lock, the combination of a bolt-slide provided with slots and enlargements of said slots, and rotatable tumblers provided with shanks in alinement with said slots and said enlargements, said respective shanks being wider in one dimension than in another dimension, said wider dimensions being wider than said slots and arranged to be located in said enlargements crosswise of said slots when said bolt-slide is in locked relation, said shanks arranged to be rotated for presenting their wider dimensions or their narrower dimensions toward said slots, means for yieldingly holding said respective tumblers in rotated relation, and spring means normally urging said bolt-slide into locked relation.

1,429,971. CIRCULAR TYPE OF POWER GENERATOR. ASA E. REED, San Bernardino, Calif. Filed Mar. 21, 1921. Serial No. 454,146. 2 Claims. (Cl. 170—118.)



1. An apparatus of the class described comprising a base, a supporting frame secured to said base, a rotatable shaft mounted in said frame, a rotatable member carried by said shaft, said member consisting of a frame, a hub and spokes bars adapted to embrace in said rotatable member, collars provided on said shaft and said bars extending from the rim of the rotatable member to said collars, blades hinged to said spokes and occupying space therebetween, reinforcing strips provided on the edge of said blades, arms projecting outwardly from the rim of said rotatable member to limit the swinging movement of said blades, angle stop plates adjustably secured to said arms which project inwardly into the path of the blades so as to be struck by the latter and flanges divided on the sides of said blades which are concentric with the rim and act in imparting a rotary movement to the member by the current.

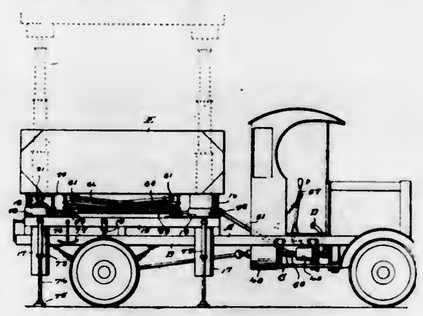
1,429,972. DESK OPERATOR'S CIRCUITS. WILLIAM A. RHODES, New York, N. Y., assignor to American Telephone and Telegraph Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 5, 1918. Serial No. 265,435. 17 Claims. (Cl. 179—41.)

16. In a telephone system, a monitoring cord, a trunk connecting circuit, an operator's set adapted to be connected either to said cord or said circuit and a common ringing key for applying ringing current either to said trunk connection or said cord exclusively.



1,429,973. HUMIDITY CONTROLLER. ALFRED ROESCH, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Charles J. Tagliabue Manufacturing Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 29, 1920. Serial No. 377,609. 3 Claims. (Cl. 236—44.)

1. The combination of air-humidifying means, a dry bulb, a wet bulb, expansible and contractible devices connected respectively with said bulbs and capable of independent operative expansive and contractive movements in the same directions, and means operated alternately by said devices to automatically control the humidifying means in accordance with the differences between the dry bulb and wet bulb temperatures to provide predetermined percentages of humidity in said air.

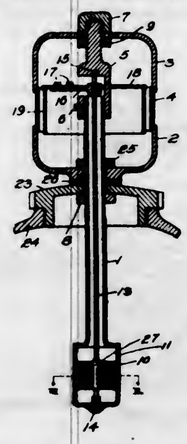
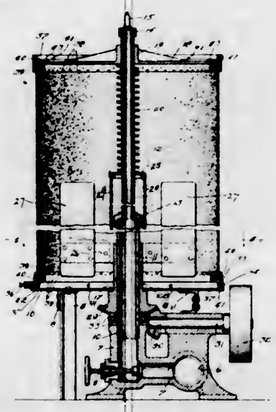
1,429,974. DUMPING TRUCK. ROBERT D. ROGERS, Johnstown, Pa., assignor of one-half to George B. Somerville, Johnstown, Pa. Filed Dec. 18, 1920. Serial No. 431,637. 7 Claims. (Cl. 298—11.)



1. In combination with a truck chassis, the drive mechanism thereof and the truck body; means for elevating and tilting the body comprising an elevating screw device disposed beneath each corner of the body, means driven from the truck drive for operating said screw devices simultaneously, and means for driving two of the elevating devices alone.

1,429,975. TEMPERATURE INDICATOR. ALBERT ROTH and PATRICK A. FERGUSON, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Sept. 24, 1920. Serial No. 412,439. 3 Claims. (Cl. 73—118.)



3. In a temperature indicator, the combination of a small bore tube insertable through the wall of a casing, a thermally expandible element in and attached at one end to said tube, a shaft rotatably mounted in said tube and attached to the other end of said element, a cylindrical casing attached to the outer end of said tube and having a transparent window in its side wall, and a cylinder attached to the outer end of said shaft and provided on its outer face with graduations visible through said window.

1,429,976. DRYING MACHINE. PASCAL J. SHAMPAY, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 18, 1920, Serial No. 366,928. Renewed Feb. 27, 1922. Serial No. 539,750. 14 Claims. (Cl. 34—17.)

9. A drying machine comprising a heating element; a fan rotatably mounted around the heating element; a stationary disc at the lower end of the fan; a disc slidably mounted above said fan; resilient means pressing upwardly on the slidably mounted disc; and an article to be dried holding ring at the periphery of each of said discs, the upper ring resting on the slidably mounted disc and the lower ring being removably locked to the lower disc.

1,429,977. TOOL. ROBERT E. L. SMITH, Holland, Mo. Filed Aug. 4, 1921. Serial No. 489,793. 1 Claim. (Cl. 254—47.)

A tool of the class described comprising a bar, a plate slidable on the bar, a curved plate having an eye loosely engaged with the first plate and having an angularly extending claw at its outer end, the intermediate portion of the body of the curved plate having notches in its opposite edges adjacent the ends thereof.

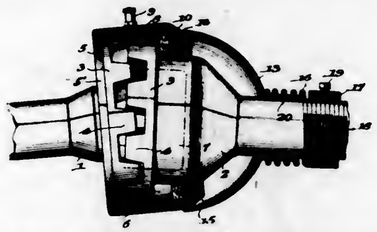
1,429,978. CLEANING COMPOUND. SAMUEL E. SMYTH, Denver, Colo. Filed Mar. 8, 1920. Serial No. 364,201. 2 Claims. (Cl. 87—5.)

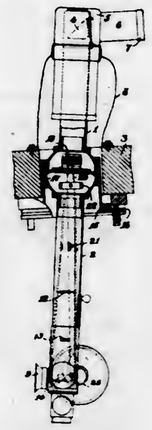
1. A cleaning compound consisting of a saponaceous substance composed of oleic acid, potassium hydroxide and water carried in solution by a mixture of kerosene and denatured alcohol substantially in the proportions specified.

1,429,979. PIVOTAL SPRING SEAT. OTTO C. SPANENBERG, Albion, Mich. Filed Dec. 31, 1921. Serial No. 526,098. 2 Claims. (Cl. 155—54.)



1. In a seat construction, a supporting pedestal having a lower screw-threaded portion, a seat pivotally secured at approximately its central lower portion to the upper end of said pedestal, tension arms pivotally secured to said pedestal below said seat, a spring member connected with each of said arms and with the seat adjacent its edge, a tension wheel rotatable on said lower screw-threaded portion and links pivotally connected respectively with said tension wheel and said tension arms, whereby rotation of said wheel rocks said arms on their pivots simultaneously to increase or decrease the tension of said springs.

1,429,980. UNIVERSAL JOINT FOR COUPLING SHAFTS. CHARLES M. SPANGLER, Emporium, Pa. Continuation of application Serial No. 464,066, filed Apr. 25, 1921. Patent No. 1,407,445. This application filed Dec. 16, 1921. Serial No. 522,786. 2 Claims. (Cl. 64—91.)



1. In a universal joint, the combination of joint or coupling members respectively provided with teeth and freely movable to assume different relationships to each other, and a casing or housing for the coupled parts of said joint, one of said coupled parts being provided with a lubricant reservoir in its end extending into said member well back of the teeth thereof from which the lubricant can work out between the teeth.

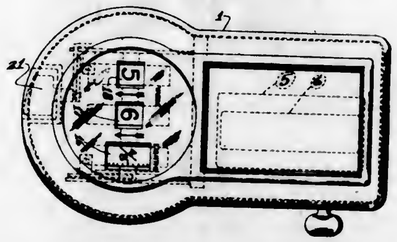
1,429,981. INDIRECT-VISION RANGE FINDER AND THE LIKE INSTRUMENT. ALFRED TAYLOR, HAROLD DENNIS TAYLOR, and PERCY WILLIS GRAY, York, England. Filed Jan. 29, 1916. Serial No. 75,169. 31 Claims. (Cl. 88—2.7.)



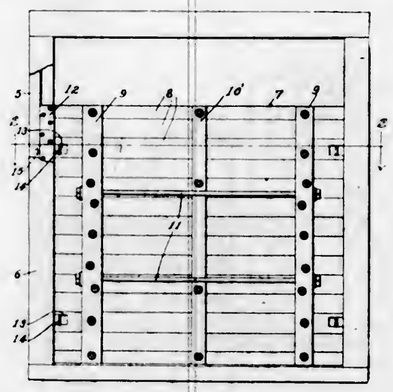
1. An optical instrument comprising in combination a periscope, a range finder having an optical element movable for range finding purposes, means to co-ordinate the optical systems of said periscope and said range finder, and adjusting means to allow the use of the combined parts as a periscope presenting a complete uninterrupted field of view, or as an indirect vision range finder.

1,429,982. SHAFT COUPLING. EARL D. TUBBS, New York, N. Y., assignor to Igoe Brothers, Newark, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Feb. 15, 1921. Serial No. 445,115. Renewed Aug. 11, 1922. Serial No. 581,265. 4 Claims. (Cl. 287—114.)

1. In a shaft coupling, the combination with supplemental sleeve members having grooves in their bores extending inwardly from their ends, wedges in said grooves, and nuts on the ends of the sleeve members for forcing said wedges into the grooves to grip the shafts to be coupled, said wedges having longitudinal serrations in their inner faces to bite into said shafts.

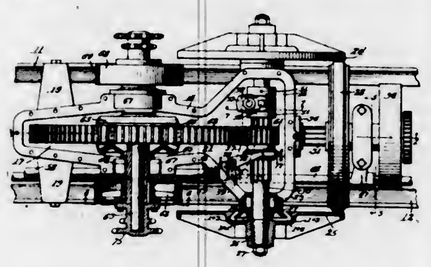
1,429,983. REGISTER FOR FABRIC-MEASURING MACHINES. DOUGLAS TURNER, St. Louis, Mo., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Measuregraph Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 22, 1919. Serial No. 319,058. 9 Claims. (Cl. 235—144.)

1. In a machine of the kind described, the combination of a shaft, a plurality of counter wheels loosely mounted on said shaft, a clutch for driving the wheel of lowest denomination, carrying mechanism normally connecting the counter wheels for driving those of higher denomination from the wheels of lower denomination, said shaft constructed to open the clutch by a longitudinal shifting movement of the shaft, a hand-actuated member, means actuated thereby for shifting the shaft longitudinally to open the clutch, means also actuated by the hand-actuated member for disconnecting the carrying mechanism from the counter wheels, and means also actuated by the hand-actuated member for effecting the return of the counter wheels to zero.



1,429,984. KNIFE SHARPENER. GUSTAV C. VOLLMER, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Sept. 13, 1920. Serial No. 409,752. 5 Claims. (Cl. 76—86.)

1. A knife sharpener comprising a tapered base; a plurality of sharpening members supported on said base and arranged interjacent to each other, said sharpening members being octagonal shaped in cross section and means for supporting said sharpening members in their set position, substantially as specified.



1,429,985. GRAIN DOOR. GEORGE M. WADDY, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed July 13, 1921. Serial No. 484,457. 1 Claim. (Cl. 20—30.)

A sliding car door including a plurality of horizontally disposed boards, vertical bars disposed adjacent to the side edges of the door for connecting the horizontally disposed boards, a central bar of a thickness greater than the thicknesses of the vertical bars, bracing rods having their ends extended through openings in the vertical bars, and overlying the central bar, plates secured to the horizontally disposed boards at the side edges thereof, said door having openings formed adjacent to the side edges under the side plates, sliding keys positioned under the side plates and disposed within the openings, said keys having piercing ends adapted to embed themselves into the door frame, in which the door is positioned, and said keys having right angled ends providing means to operate the keys.

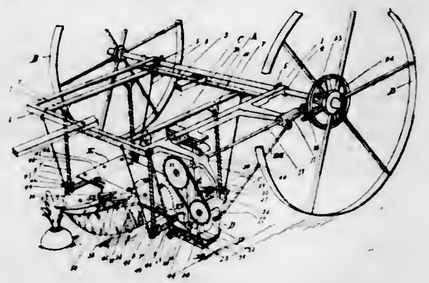
1,429,986. TRANSMISSION MECHANISM. LEWIS E. WATERMAN, HARRY R. THAPHAGEN, and HOWARD L. WATERMAN, Rockford, Ill., assignors to Emerson-Brantingham Company, Rockford, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 9, 1919. Serial No. 302,696. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—26.)

1. The combination of a pair of power-plant sills, an engine and a transmission casing each fixedly mounted upon said sills in spaced relation, the transmission including a friction disk, a shaft driven by the engine and flexibly supported at its opposite ends, and a friction driving wheel splined on said shaft and adapted for driving said disk.



1,429,987. PLANT FOR SEPARATING COKE FROM WASTE FUEL AND RESIDUES. WILHELM WEBER, Wiesbaden, Germany, assignor to the Firm Weber & Co. Gesellschaft für Bergbau, Industrie und Bahnbau, Wiesbaden, Germany. Filed Dec. 27, 1920. Serial No. 433,471. 1 Claim. (Cl. 83—81.)

A plant for separating coke from waste fuel and residues comprising in combination, a water receptacle, a chute for transporting material into said water receptacle a nozzle in said water receptacle for producing a surface current upon the water, an adjustable trap arranged at a certain distance in front of said chute and nozzle under the water, a conveyor band directly under the surface of the water and a conveyor band upon the bottom of the receptacle, the first for conveying the coke which has been taken along by the surface current, the second for conveying the slag and heavy admixtures which have sunk beneath said trap, a clarifying vessel for the water from the tank and a centrifugal pump for circulating said water through said plant.

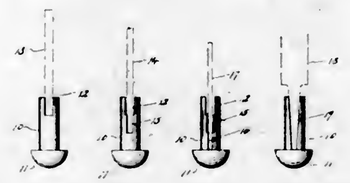
1,429,988. BEET-TOPPING MACHINE. CHARLES H. WEYH and WILLIAM F. WEYH, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Apr. 4, 1921. Serial No. 458,518. 5 Claims. (Cl. 55—107.)

3. A beet topping machine, comprising a wheeled frame, a support resiliently suspended from the frame so as to yield to be oscillatory, a forwardly directed vibratory reaper knife on said support, mechanism operatively connecting the wheels and knife to vibrate the latter, and a pair of longitudinally disposed spaced runners below and forward of said vibratory knife.



1,429,989. ATTACHMENT FOR TRACTORS. THOMAS C. WHITEHEAD, Detroit, Mich. Filed Mar. 6, 1922. Serial No. 541,603. 4 Claims. (Cl. 180—75.)

1. The combination with a tractor designed for use of tractor wheels of larger diameter than standard sizes of pneumatic tires, of a substitute unit comprising a replacement housing for the outer portion of the axle housing, a downwardly offset axle in said replacement housing, a step-up gearing between the main axle shaft and said offset axle, and a pneumatically tired wheel of smaller diameter than the original wheel mounted on said offset axle.

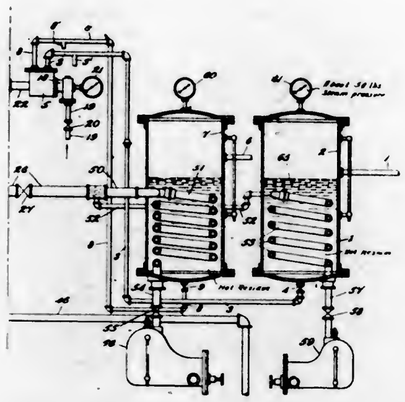
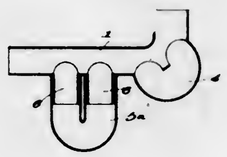
1,429,990. METHOD FOR BIFURCATING BLANKS. RICHARD LESTER WILCOX, Waterbury, Conn., assignor to The Waterbury Farrel Foundry and Machine Company, Waterbury, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Jan. 21, 1920. Serial No. 353,121. 4 Claims. (Cl. 10—27.)

1. The method for bifurcating blanks which comprises slotting the blank with cuts of varying widths and then cutting the sides of said slots to form the sides of the finished slot.



1,429,991. CONVEYER-CHAIN GUIDE FOR CANE HARVESTERS AND THE LIKE. FREDERICK C. DOUGLAS WILKES and FRANCIS K. FLYNN, Watertown, Wis., assignors, by mesne assignments, to Luce Cane Harvester Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 29, 1919. Serial No. 320,696. 14 Claims. (Cl. 198—162)

8. In apparatus of the character described, the combination of a cane conveying chain and a presser spring adapted to cooperate therewith, said spring being supported at one end and extending beside the chain in the direction of travel thereof and inclined outwardly so that its free end is adjacent the back of the chain, and guide means carried by the free end of said spring and adapted to cooperate with the chain to prevent lateral displacement of the latter.



1,429,992. PROCESS OF AND APPARATUS FOR PRODUCING LIGHTER HYDROCARBONS FROM HEAVIER HYDROCARBONS. CARL V. WOEGERER, New York, N. Y., assignor of one-half to James R. Clarke and one-half to William H. Clarke, both of New York, N. Y. Filed May 8, 1920. Serial No. 379,960. 8 Claims. (Cl. 196—26.)

1. The process of producing hydrocarbons of a less specific gravity from hydrocarbons of a higher specific gravity which consists in subjecting said last named hydrocarbons to an atomizing action with water and lime; then to an atomizing action of steam under pressure and at a temperature below 500° F.; then to a settling action under a pressure maintained above that of the atmosphere to separate out a portion of the unconverted oil and lime present; and finally to a condensing action under superatmospheric pressure, substantially as described.

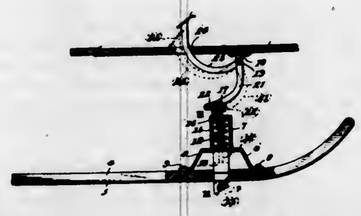
1,429,993. INTERFERENCE TUBE FOR PHONOGRAPHS AND TELEPHONES. MARI ELIZ WOLVEKAMP, Oakland, Calif. Filed Mar. 16, 1920. Serial No. 366,372. 2 Claims. (Cl. 181—27.)

1. In combination with the reproducer and with the tone arm of a phonograph, a relatively narrow main sound conduit including by-pass means the ends of which are close together and communicate with said sound conduit, permitting two large and substantially equal volumes of sound to simultaneously traverse paths of distinctly different length which are not varied by the movement of the phonograph, eliminating by interference a high or false tone.



1,429,994. DIRECTION SIGNAL FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. PAUL ZAMOLYNSKI, West Fort William, Ontario, Canada. Filed Mar. 16, 1922. Serial No. 544,147. 2 Claims. (Cl. 116—51.)

1. In a direction signal for motor vehicles, a pair of signal arms, means to normally yieldingly maintain said signal arms in upwardly extending vertical inoperative position, means operable at a distance from said arm for selectively lowering either one of the same to a horizontal position without disturbing the other, the means for lowering the signal arms including separate levers pivotally mounted intermediate their ends, links connected to the adjacent ends of said arms and pivoted levers, and a sliding transversely movable rack bar having a lug extending upwardly and operatively positioned between so as to engage the lower ends of said levers.

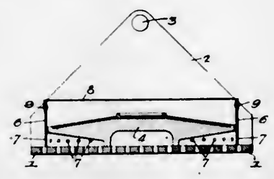
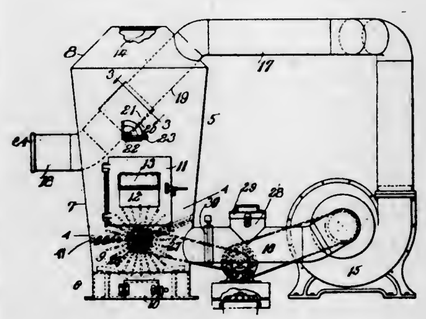
1,429,995. SLEIGH BRAKE. JOSEPH A. ABRAMCHUK, Rossburn, Manitoba, Canada. Filed Oct. 30, 1920. Serial No. 420,764. 3 Claims. (Cl. 188—8.)



1. A sleigh brake comprising in combination with a sleigh having runners and a platform section, cylinders supported upon the runners, a rod in each cylinder, a brake shoe carried by the rods and externally of the cylinders, coil springs surrounding the rods within said cylinders to hold the shoes normally elevated, a connecting bar between the rods and carried thereby and foot operating means for depressing the shoes against the tension of the springs.

1,429,996. GARMENT POCKET. JOSEPH ARONOFF, Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Filed May 10, 1920. Serial No. 380,315. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—15.)

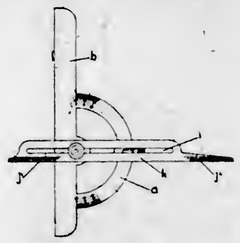


In a garment pocket, side walls having a transverse fold and stitching along the upper edge of said fold an inner facing covering the side walls below the fold and extending upwardly under said fold and having bottom, side and middle stitching, the latter extending upwardly and suitable fasteners for detachably securing the inner facing under said fold.

1,429,997. APPARATUS FOR DRYING CLAY BODIES. ELWOOD B. AYRES, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Proctor & Schwartz, Incorporated, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 1, 1920. Serial No. 385,563. 2 Claims. (Cl. 34—12.)

1. The combination in apparatus for drying clay bodies, of a tray for holding a mold and the body, which is formed thereon; and a casing mounted on the tray and enclosing the mold and body to be dried, said casing having a section of absorbing fibrous material located in close proximity to the body being dried.

1,429,998. MATTRESS-FILLING MACHINE. PHILLIP BAKER, Malden, Mass. Filed Mar. 6, 1922. Serial No. 541,484. 9 Claims. (Cl. 226—43.)



1. A machine for filling mattresses and the like having, in combination, a receptacle for filling material, a circulating fan, intake and return pipes connecting said fan to said receptacle, said return pipe extending from said fan through said receptacle and terminating in an open outer end, said return pipe being provided within said receptacle with an opening into said receptacle and a damper in said return pipe adjacent said opening whereby that portion of said return pipe extending through said receptacle may be alternately, closed to said receptacle and opened therethrough to said open, outer end, or vice versa.

1,429,999. COMBINED DEPTH AND ANGLE GAUGE. ERNEST BARLOW, Foleahill, Coventry, England. Filed May 4, 1920. Serial No. 378,876. 3 Claims. (Cl. 33—75.)

1. In a combined depth and angle gauge, a flat protractor having a semi-circular segment, said protractor having marked on its semi-circular segment degrees of angles numbered 0° to 180°, and also a threaded pin rigidly fixed through its base at the center of the said segment, upon which is pivotally and slidably mounted a graduated slotted flat blade, through the slot in which protrudes an angle indicator with spring stop, said indicator being slidable on the segment of the protractor.

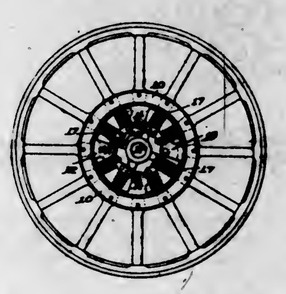
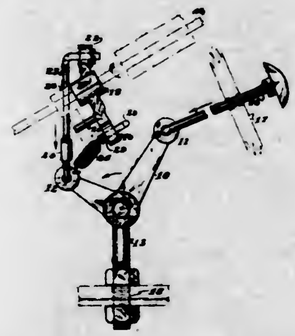
1,430,000. END CLOSURE FOR RANGE BOILERS AND LIKE CONTAINERS. WILLIAM M. BELL, Portsmouth, Ohio, assignor to Whitaker-Glessner Company, Wheeling, W. Va., a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed Apr. 21, 1920. Serial No. 375,601. 8 Claims. (Cl. 220—66.)



1. An end closure for range boilers and like containers, consisting of a sheet-metal plate of concavo-convex form disposed with its concave face inward and having an outwardly extending peripheral flange adapted to fit within and to be rigidly attached to the boiler body, said plate having therein a centrally located sput-receiving opening and having formed about said opening a horizontal circular ledge adapted for having the head of a sput seat thereon, said ledge being depressed below the plane of the concave face a distance approximating the thickness of the head of the sput, said plate having formed therein a plurality of radial reinforcing ribs which terminate at their inner ends at points located outward with respect to the depression whereby said ledge is formed.

1,430,001. CARBURETOR. ASHLEY C. BENNETT, Minneapolis, Minn., assignor to Irene E. Bennett, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Mar. 30, 1918. Serial No. 225,843. 2 Claims. (Cl. 261—14.)

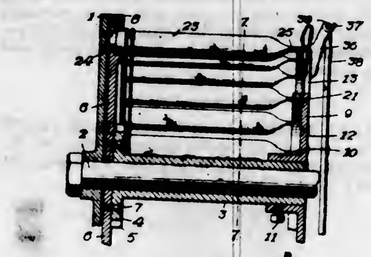


1. A carburetor comprising a mixing chamber, means for supplying fuel to said mixing chamber, an air inlet tube leading to said chamber, a casing forming a by-pass for said tube around the exhaust pipe of the engine, a valve in said inlet tube for deflecting the incoming air through said bypass, a valve controlling the passage through said mixing chamber, means for first opening said last mentioned valve to increase the supply of heated air, and means for then opening said first mentioned valve to permit unheated air to pass directly through said inlet tube.

1,430,002. SPRING HUB. SETH N. BLOOMDALE, Worcester, Mass. Filed Mar. 21, 1921. Serial No. 453,910. 5 Claims. (Cl. 152—45.)

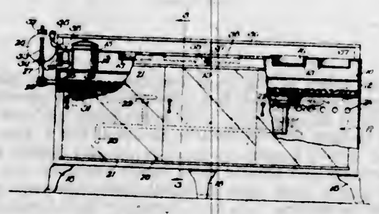
1. In a wheel, the combination of a hub having an outer ring rigidly connected with the rim and an inner ring constituting the hub proper, positive means for transmitting motion between the two rings in a circumferential direction and in either direction circumferentially and radial compression springs connected with the positive means for transmitting radial motion.

1,430,003. AUTOMOBILE ACCELERATOR. JOSEF BRACTIGAM, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor of one-half to John Edwards, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Sept. 10, 1921. Serial No. 499,640. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—34.)



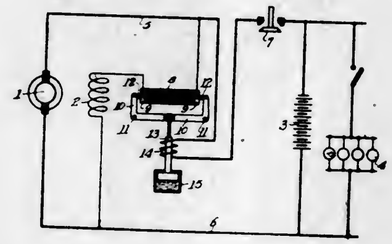
1. In combination with the hand throttle lever and the throttle lever crank of an automobile, an accelerator comprising a crank case bolt, a pin projecting from said bolt, a bell crank lever loosely mounted on said pin, a foot push button connected to one end of said bell-crank lever, a second bell-crank lever loosely mounted on said throttle lever, a pin on said second bell-crank lever interposed in the path of said throttle lever crank, means for connecting said second bell-crank lever to the throttle valve of the carburetor, and means for normally maintaining said bell-crank lever pin in contact with said throttle lever crank.

1,430,004. METHOD OF MAKING SOCKET-WRENCH HEADS. HJALMAR G. CARLSON, Worcester, Mass., assignor to Rockwood Sprinkler Company of Massachusetts, Worcester, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed June 5, 1919. Serial No. 301,865. Renewed Feb. 20, 1922. Serial No. 538,097. 9 Claims. (Cl. 76—114.)



1. The method of making a hollow article which comprises shaping a piece of sheet metal into the form of a hollow member having an open end and a closed end, flattening the closed end on opposite sides, then punching a non-circular hole through the closed end wall, and finally shaping the open end.

1,430,005. MAGAZINE FOR WEFT-REPLENISHING LOOMS. RANDOLPH CROMPTON, WILLIAM E. WOODMAN, and ROBERT J. ADAMS, Worcester, Mass.; said Woodman and Adams assignors to said Crompton. Filed May 26, 1919. Serial No. 299,977. 11 Claims. (Cl. 139—85.)



4. In a hopper or magazine for an automatic loom, a resilient member provided with a loop for seating the small end of a filling carrier, the top portions of said loop being closer together than other portions thereof, to prevent the displacement of the end of the filling carrier.

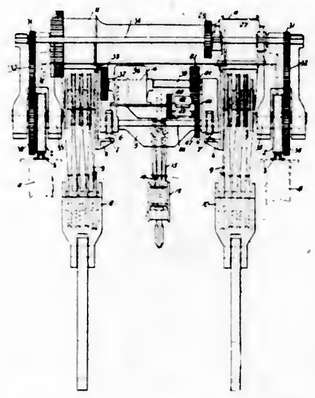
1,430,006. STEAM TABLE FOR FOOD. ALFRED M. DEMUTH, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Demuth Manufacturing Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 18, 1921. Serial No. 485,562. 10 Claims. (Cl. 126—33.)

1. A self-contained steam table of the character described embodying a closed chamber for holding a non-circulating liquid intended to be converted into vapor, said chamber having a portion shaped to form receptacles extending into the chamber and opening through one wall thereof, said receptacles being closed to the interior of the chamber, a closed liquid supply holder, and means whereby the said supply will automatically maintain the liquid at a predetermined level in the said liquid chamber.

1,430,007. COMPRESSIBLE RHEOSTAT. AUGUST W. DONOP, Niagara Falls, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to U. S. Light & Heat Corporation, Niagara Falls, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 17, 1914. Serial No. 832,450. 4 Claims. (Cl. 171—229.)

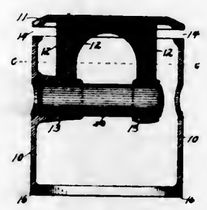
2. In combination, a plurality of freely movable contacting electrodes, movable supporting means supporting said electrodes at a plurality of supporting points and biased to hold said electrodes normally in contact with each other under compression, and means for simultaneously moving said supporting means to relieve the compression of said elements at a plurality of points simultaneously.

1,430,008. SEPARABLE BUTTON. ALBERT HENRY EDDY, Edgewood Station, R. I. Filed May 2, 1922. Serial No. 557,834. 4 Claims. (Cl. 24—102.)



1. A separable button having laterally separable posts, one post having an inwardly turned over crescent shaped lip and spring arms formed integral with the post, the other post having a circular lip adapted to be forced by the spring arms and under the crescent shaped lip on the first mentioned post and a button head pivotally secured to each post, whereby the separable members of the button are locked together against a direct pull apart of the members.

1,430,009. CRANE TROLLEY. ROBERT J. HARRY, Munhall, and CHARLES S. PROUDFOOT, Johnstown, Pa. Filed May 14, 1920. Serial No. 381,381. 2 Claims. (Cl. 212—10.)



1. The combination with a traveling crane, having a self propelled main hoist adapted to travel lengthwise of said crane, said hoist comprising a wheeled frame, and having suitable hoisting cables trained over and depending from suitable pulley sheaves journaled at each side of said frame, of a self propelled auxiliary hoist supported on and adapted to move longitudinally of said main hoist, said auxiliary hoist comprising a wheeled frame adapted to travel upon a pair of rails supported on the side girders of the frame of said main hoist, a hoisting drum journaled in said frame of said auxiliary hoist, hoisting cables trained around said drum and over suitable pulley sheaves in said frame and in the hoisting bridle, and means mounted on said auxiliary hoist for operating said drum.

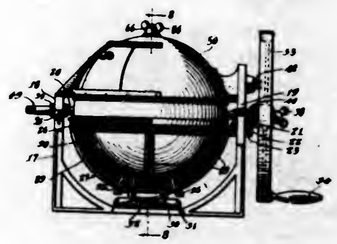
1,430,010. PISTON FOR HYDROCARBON ENGINES. STEPHEN D. HARTOG, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Feb. 12, 1921. Serial No. 444,342. 18 Claims. (Cl. 74—108.)



1. A piston which has a support for a piston pin, said support having integral connection with one side of the piston body only, and a head member connected to said support.

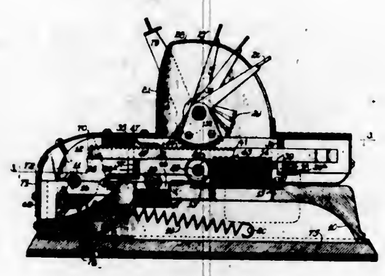
1,430,011. SARDINE-TURNING APPARATUS. FRANK HEATH, National City, Calif. Filed Feb. 2, 1922. Serial No. 533,573. 7 Claims. (Cl. 17—10.)

1. An apparatus of the class described, including brushes placed opposite each other adapted to receive fish between said brushes and mounted to reciprocate alternately with each other, and means for reciprocating said brushes.

1,430,012. MACHINE FOR MIXING, KNEADING, MASHING, COOKING, OR CHOPPING SUBSTANCES. LUCIEN HEISER, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Oct. 19, 1921. Serial No. 508,710. 8 Claims. (Cl. 259—85.)

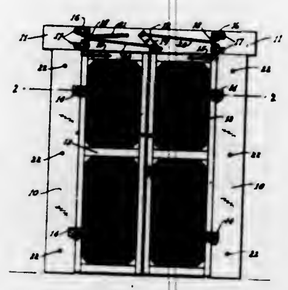
1. In a machine of the character described, the combination of a rotatably mounted bowl, a cover for the bowl, the bowl and cover together forming a spherical chamber, a beating and stirring element mounted to rotate within the chamber in a plane crossing the plane of rotation of the bowl, and means to simultaneously operate the beating and stirring element and the bowl, said means including a demountable shaft on which the beating and stirring element is detachably mounted and a set screw to secure said element to the shaft.

1,430,013. FOLDING DRAFT OR BLOWER PLATE. LLOYD HOPKINS and MCKINNEY HOPKINS, Wyco, W. Va. Filed Mar. 28, 1922. Serial No. 547,486. 7 Claims. (Cl. 126—135.)



1. A device of the class described, including spaced clamps having inclined slots and adapted to be secured at the top of an open grate, said clamps being also provided with inclined bearing slots or openings, and a plate or blower having a pintle operating in the said bearing slots or openings and adapted to be swung upwardly over the said clamps, said plate or blower being provided with means for causing it to move outwardly in the said slots or openings when it is swung upwardly.

1,430,014. CHECK-WRITING MACHINE. THOMAS J. HYMAN, Oak Park, Ill. Filed Nov. 30, 1921. Serial No. 518,847. 10 Claims. (Cl. 101—19.)



1. A check writing machine comprising, in combination, a base, a frame hinged thereto, printing and punch actuating means carried by said frame, the base being provided with a printing bed and with a set of punches adapted to cooperate with a die.

1,430,015. SCREEN DOOR. JOSEPH ICHER, Sagamore, Pa. Filed Oct. 22, 1921. Serial No. 509,485. 1 Claim. (Cl. 156—14.)

A door structure of the character described comprising a permanent frame adapted to be secured upon the door frame of a building, a pair of doors proper hinged within said frame, rods mounted at the upper outer corners of the doors proper and including horizontal portions secured thereto and vertical portions journaled upon the frame, said vertical portions being formed with cranks, a rocker arm pivoted centrally upon the top of the frame, and links pivotally connected with the rocker arm and with said cranks.

1,430,016. FOLDING-BED TABLE. MICHAL KOLTUNSKI, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 12, 1921, Serial No. 491,763. Renewed May 11, 1922. Serial No. 560,249. 1 Claim. (Cl. 45—82.)

A folding bed table comprising a base support having a pair of angularly disposed legs adapted to enclose the side rails of a bed, a U-shaped clamp slidably associated with one of the legs and enclosing said leg and the adjacent side of the bed rail, a cam lever carried by said clamp and adapted to engage the adjacent leg of the base support to hold the same in its clamped position, pivoted link arms carried by said base support, and a table top adjustably supported by said link arms.

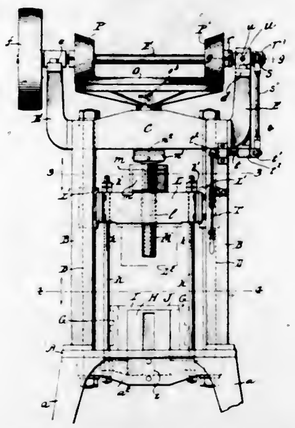
1,430,017. PROCESS FOR THE REMOVAL OF SOAP CONTAINED IN THE SLUDGE OF CARBONATE OF LIME. PETER KREBITZ, Munich, Germany. Filed June 15, 1921. Serial No. 477,787. 2 Claims. (Cl. 87—16.)

2. The herein described process of recovering residual soap from carbonate of lime sludge, which consists in adding to the sludge cocoa-nut oil soap equal in quantity to from one to six per cent of the sludge.



1,430,018. SPACE-BAND MECHANISM. FREDERICK W. LETSCH, Baltimore, Md. Original application filed Mar. 15, 1918, Serial No. 222,760. Divided and this application filed Nov. 5, 1920. Serial No. 422,065. 3 Claims. (Cl. 199—22.)

1. In a mechanism of the kind described, a space band magazine, means for supporting space bands at their upper ends in said magazine, an abutment engaging the lower end of the foremost space band of a group for holding the same normally in inclined position, said abutment having an inclined front surface arranged substantially parallel to the space bands when the same are normally positioned against the abutment, a lifting device slidably mounted on said inclined surface of the abutment and adapted to lift the foremost space band and permit the same to swing over said abutment, said device having a projection on its upper end for separating the front space band of a group from the one adjacent thereto.

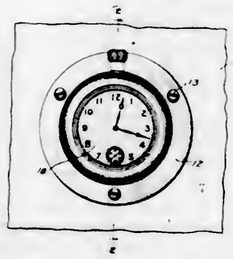
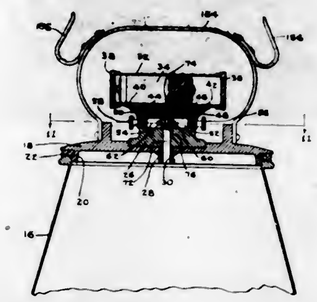
1,430,019. CERAMIC PRESS. HARRY D. LILLIBRIDGE, Zanesville, Ohio, assignor to American Encaustic Tiling Co., Ltd., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 21, 1921. Serial No. 454,038. 12 Claims. (Cl. 25—27.)



1. Pressing mechanism including a compression plunger, a feed nut and a rotative screw whereof said screw is free from endwise or traveling movement and acts by its rotative motion to impart sliding motion to the plunger, and a friction drive co-operating with said screw for imparting rotative motion only thereto.

1,430,020. PYROXYLIN COMPOSITION AND PROCESS OF MAKING THE SAME. WILLIAM G. LINDSAY, Newark, N. J., assignor to The Celluloid Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Feb. 16, 1920. Serial No. 359,108. 6 Claims. (Cl. 106—37.)

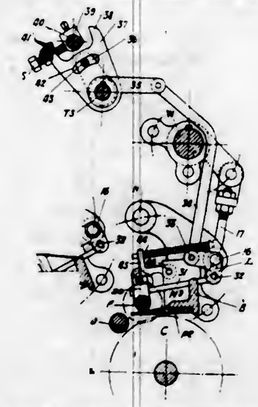


1. A composition of matter comprising nitro-cellulose and an aromatic phosphate in proportions of 100 parts of nitro cellulose to over 60 parts of the phosphate, said composition having a high degree of flexibility.

1,430,021. WATCH HOLDER. ALEXANDER MILNE, Newark, N. J., assignor to Newark Watch Case Material Company, Newark, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 30, 1922. Serial No. 532,707. 6 Claims. (Cl. 58—56.)

5. A watch holder of the class described comprising a housing adapted to receive a watch therein and render the dial thereof visible, a cross member detachably engaging portions of said housing, a thumb screw threadedly engaging said cross member, and a disc-shaped member carried by said thumb screw and adapted to exert a forward thrust upon the watch within the housing.

1,430,022. MILKING APPARATUS. WILLIAM MORGAN, Minneapolis, and CLARENCE J. MUCKLE, St. Paul, Minn., assignors, by mesne assignments, to Independent Milking Machine Company, a Corporation. Filed Nov. 22, 1920. Serial No. 425,740. 5 Claims. (Cl. 31—101.)



1. A milking apparatus comprising a milk receptacle, teatcups adapted to be connected with said receptacle, a cylinder, a piston in said cylinder, an oscillatory valve mounted adjacent said cylinder, a projection attached to said piston and slidable in a slot in said cylinder, said projection being adapted to hold said valve alternately in its extreme positions until said piston approaches the ends of its stroke, two spaced arms having resilient action and mounted to reciprocate with said piston and straddling a projection on said valve, and means controlled by said valve for causing pulsations in said teatcups.

2. A milking apparatus comprising a milk receptacle, teatcups adapted to be connected with said receptacle, a cylinder mounted on said receptacle, a piston in said cylinder, an oscillatory valve mounted adjacent said cylinder and having two locking surfaces separated by a release opening, a projection attached to said piston and slidable in a slot in said cylinder, said projection being adapted to engage said locking surfaces alternately until said piston approaches the ends of its stroke, two spaced arms having resilient action and mounted to reciprocate with said piston and straddling a projection on said valve, and means controlled by said valve for causing pulsations in said teatcups.

4. A milking machine comprising a milk receptacle, teatcups adapted to be connected with said receptacle, a cylinder mounted on said receptacle, a piston in said cylinder, an oscillatory valve mounted adjacent said cylinder, a projecting strip attached to said piston and slidable in a slot in said cylinder, said projecting strip being adapted to hold said valve alternately in its extreme positions until said piston approaches the ends of its stroke, a spring having two spaced arms secured to said projecting strip and having its free ends straddling a projection on said valve, said arms adjacent their points of attachment being bowed away from each other to provide greater resiliency, and means controlled by said valve for causing pulsations in said teatcups.

1,430,023. COMBING MACHINE. JOHN W. NASMITH, Manchester, England. Filed Apr. 9, 1921. Serial No. 460,142. 3 Claims. (Cl. 19—120.)

1. In a combing-machine of the character described, a nipper and feed roller mounted to swing on a common axis, a shaft and connections between the swinging nipper and roller and said shaft to transmit rocking movements to the shaft, and adjustable devices connected with said shaft for variably limiting its rocking movements.

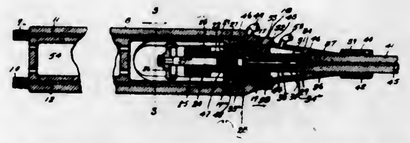
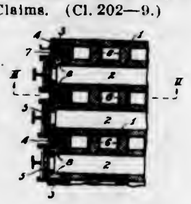
1,430,024. PROCESS OF PRODUCING COMPLEMENTAL PARTS. EDGAR B. NICHOLS, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to American Flyer Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation. Filed Mar. 14, 1921. Serial No. 452,375. 6 Claims. (Cl. 76—107.)



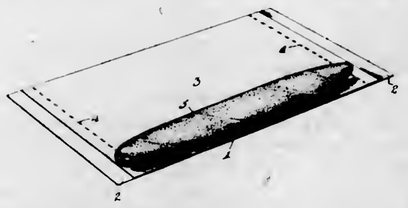
1. The process of producing cooperating complemental parts from a single piece of sheet metal which consists in stamping one part from the other, etching a cooperating edge of at least one of the parts, thereby producing the desired clearance between the several parts.

1,430,025. MACHINE FOR MOUNTING SHOES ON LASTS. CHARLES O. NORMANDY, Malden, Mass., assignor, by mesne assignments, to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed July 16, 1917. Serial No. 180,861. 41 Claims. (Cl. 12—15.)



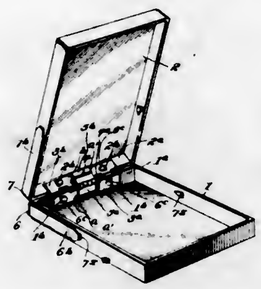
1. A machine of the class described having, in combination, means for engaging a last partially inserted in a shoe, and means constructed and arranged to impart a series of impulses to said last engaging means in a direction to force the last into the shoe.

1,430,026. WELDING TORCH. CHARLES H. PASCH, St. Louis, Mo. Filed May 3, 1920. Serial No. 378,576. 2 Claims. (Cl. 158—27.4.)



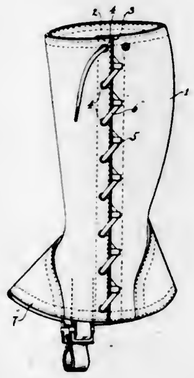
1. A welding torch comprising a handle having a pair of passages formed therein, a tapered portion secured to the forward end of said handle, a nozzle secured in said tapered portion, a passage way formed in said tapered portion, said passage way communicating with one of the first mentioned passages and with the interior of the nozzle, a valve stem secured in said nozzle for regulating the passage of gas therethrough, a chamber formed in the tapered portion and surrounding the nozzle, a tip pipe spaced apart from and surrounding the forward portion of the nozzle, a tip secured by said tip pipe, a passage for connecting the remaining passage in the handle, and the chamber in the tapered portion, passages formed through the tip pipe for permitting the gas from the chamber to enter and surround the nozzle, and a thumb wheel for operating said valve stem.

1,430,027. OVEN-WALL STRUCTURE. PIERRE PLANTINGA, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed May 1, 1920. Serial No. 378,234. 8 Claims. (Cl. 202—9.)



2. A jamb construction for oven walls consisting of high-temperature-resisting elements forming the central body portion thereof and ceramic elements which are non-spalling when subjected to cold air forming the side body portions thereof.

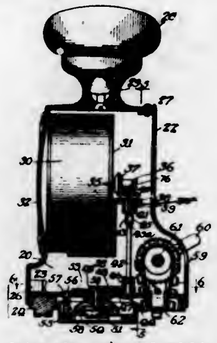
1,430,028. CIGAR WRAPPER. RICHARD SAMUEL REYNOLDS, Louisville, Ky. Filed Sept. 20, 1920, Serial No. 411,358. Renewed Aug. 16, 1922. Serial No. 582,252. 2 Claims. (Cl. 229—87.)



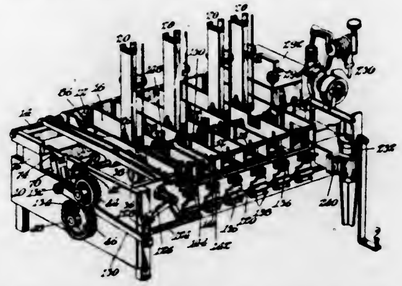
1. A wrapper comprising an outer sheet of air and moisture proof material and an inner sheet of tissue paper, said sheets being so proportioned that the inner sheet will entirely cover the article to be wrapped while the outer sheet will extend beyond to permit its surfaces to come into sealing contact in wrapping.

1,430,029. BOX. RUSSELL I. RHODES, Attleboro Falls, Mass. Filed Jan. 26, 1920. Serial No. 353,968. 2 Claims. (Cl. 229—44.)

2. In combination, a box of fibrous material, comprising two tray like members having laminated walls connected by a spring hinge at one end, reinforcing plates of flat sheet metal embedded in the walls which carry the hinges, said plates and the hinge leaves having aligning slots, and a flat plate of sheet metal having tongues passing through said slots and overturned to hold the parts together.



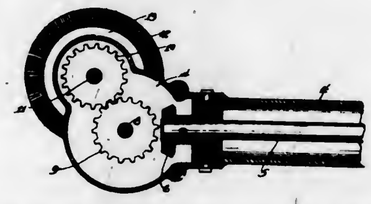
1,430,030. LEGGING. MORRIS ROSENWASSER, New York, N. Y., assignor to Rosenwasser Bros., Inc., Long Island City, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 18, 1919. Serial No. 345,818. 5 Claims. (Cl. 36—2.)



1. A legging of the class described comprising strips of material adapted to be wrapped about the leg of the wearer, a pair of fastening devices secured to the lower end of the legging, and a detachable stirrup having its ends adjustably secured to said fastening devices.

1,430,031. TIME STAMP. MORRIS SHERAS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Michael Gesas, trustee, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 4, 1917. Serial No. 184,398. 3 Claims. (Cl. 234—54.)

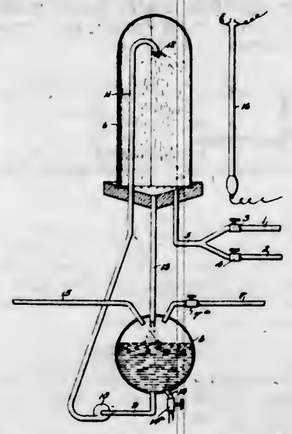
3. In a time stamp, the combination of a casing, a horological motor and its gears mounted within said casing, an apertured stamping surface unyieldingly fastened at the bottom of said casing and having suitable printing matter thereon, a yieldingly mounted impression dial normally extending below said surface, and time indicator impression members having their recording portions extending through said apertured stamping surface and lying in the same plane as the printing matter thereon, a complete impression being recorded as said dial yields under pressure, a band dater also mdunted within the casing, and ratchet and pawl mechanism accessible from without for setting the band dater.



1,430,032. HEEL-BUILDING MACHINE. RALPH C. SIMMONS, Beverly, Mass., assignor, by mesne assignments, to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 1, 1916. Serial No. 81,405. 54 Claims. (Cl. 12—50.)

1. In a heel building machine, the combination of a series of lift magazines equal in number to the number of lifts in a complete heel blank, means for simultaneously removing a lift from each of said magazines and depositing all of said lifts in an alined row, and separate means for moving the entire row of said deposited lifts in the direction of their alinement through a distance equal to the spacing between adjacent magazines after each operation of the lift removing and depositing means.

1,430,033. CARBON REMOVER. JOHN F. SMERSCHNIK, Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Filed Jan. 18, 1921. Serial No. 438,206. 1 Claim. (Cl. 15—104.20.)

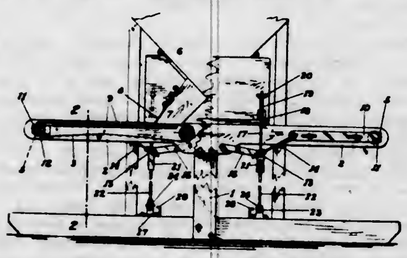


A carbon cleaner device comprising a hollow body, a casing at one end thereof having an offset portion, a motor secured to said body at the opposite end and having a shaft passing through said body and into said casing, a rotary brush mounted in said offset portion, and a train of gearing in said casing connected with said motor shaft and said brush, said motor having means thereon for handling said device.

1,430,034. VULCANIZED OIL PRODUCT. WALTER O. SNELLING, Allentown, Pa. Original application filed May 22, 1915, Serial No. 29,765. Divided and this application filed Aug. 8, 1919. Serial No. 316,022. 6 Claims. (Cl. 23—24.)

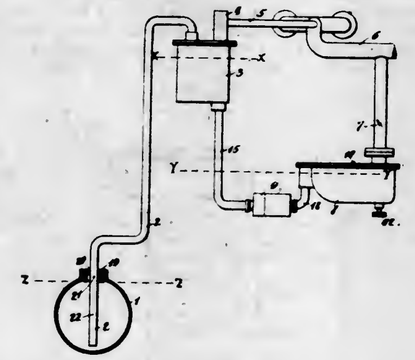
3. The process of producing vulcanized oil products which comprises reacting upon a fatty oil with sulfur chloride in excess of the amount required to produce vulcanization, and thereafter bringing the resulting product into contact with water.

1,430,035. MANUFACTURE OF ACIDS. WALTER O. SNELLING, Allentown, Pa. Filed July 17, 1920. Serial No. 397,112. 4 Claims. (Cl. 23—1.)



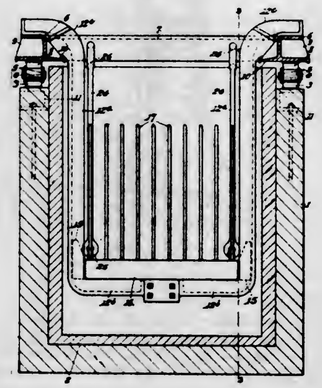
1. The process which comprises exposing a mixture of a halogen and sulfur dioxide to actinic rays in the presence of a spray of an aqueous fluid.

1,430,036. PLASTIC PRODUCT. WALTER O. SNELLING, Allentown, Pa. Filed Oct. 20, 1920. Serial No. 418,302. 2 Claims. (Cl. 99—11.)



2. A chicle substitute comprising an ester of colophony.

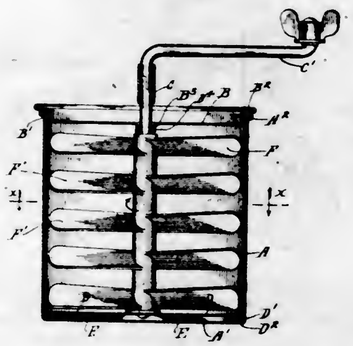
1,430,037. BELT CONTROL FOR PICKING TABLES. ARCHIBALD R. STEPHEN, Lodi, Calif. Filed Dec. 20, 1921. Serial No. 523,702. 14 Claims. (Cl. 130—32.)



1. A picking table structure comprising an endless belt, a driven roller at one end of the belt over which the latter passes, another roller at the other end of the belt slidably mounted for movement in a plane parallel to the length of the belt, and foot actuated means for moving the last named roller.

1,430,038. LIQUID-FEED SYSTEM AND METHOD. CHARLES LAWRENCE STOKES, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jan. 9, 1918, Serial No. 210,965. Renewed Feb. 11, 1922. Serial No. 535,926. 7 Claims. (Cl. 158—36.)

1. The combination of a low level liquid fuel tank, a high level, single-chamber feed reservoir, a vacuum connection from said reservoir adapted to be fitted into the variable-vacuum induction pipe of a variable-throttle, variable speed internal combustion engine, an ascension pipe from said tank to said reservoir and having means for restrictedly admitting air thereto to lighten the weight of the ascending column, a carbureter having a float-controlled inlet valve, a down-flow pipe connecting said reservoir and said inlet and an automatic check valve for preventing reverse flow of fluid in said down flow pipe; the reservoir being positioned at such an elevation above said tank and said carbureter being positioned at such an elevation below said reservoir that the static head of the column of liquid in said down-flow pipe is greater than the weight of the column of mixed air and liquid in said ascension pipe for the purpose described.



1,430,039. PICKLING APPARATUS. WILLIAM J. STOOP, Wheeling, W. Va. Filed July 16, 1921. Serial No. 485,316. 7 Claims. (Cl. 266—7.)

1. A pickling apparatus comprising a tank, trackways carried by the side walls of said tank, a carriage perma-mently mounted for travel on said trackways and including U-shaped hangers depending within the tank, a plate-carrying rack adapted to be bodily lifted into and out of seated relation to said hangers, and means for producing reciprocatory travel of said carriage.

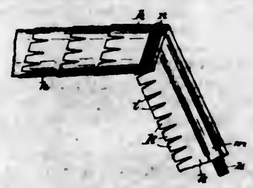
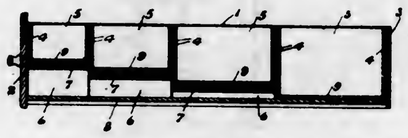
1,430,040. MIXING AND BEATING MACHINE. HENRY TRUST, Park Ridge, N. J., and FRANK M. ASHLEY, Brooklyn, N. Y.; said Ashley assignor of his one-half interest to Josephine Trust; Josephine Trust administratrix of said Henry Trust, deceased. Filed Jan. 21, 1920. Serial No. 353,032. 9 Claims. (Cl. 259—107.)



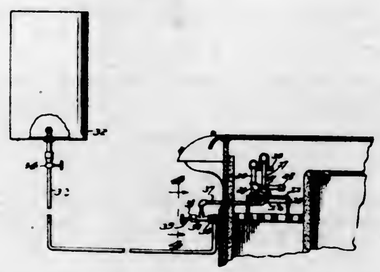
1. A machine of the character described comprising a receptacle, a beater comprising a tube having propeller blades located thereon and a disc carrying said beater and resting on the bottom of said receptacle at its periphery.

1,430,041. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. THEODORE H. VENN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Venn-Severin Machine Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Nov. 13, 1918. Serial No. 262,286. 1 Claim. (Cl. 123—73.)



In an internal combustion engine, the combination of a cylinder, a piston, a crank-shaft operated by the piston, a crank case, a cylindrical valve separate from the crank-shaft extending through one side of the crank-case, having an induction port in its periphery and its inner end opening into one side of the crank-case, the latter being provided with a cylindrical seat for said valve and an air inlet in the seat and gearing directly between the crank-shaft and the valve.

1,430,042. HAULING CABLE. WLADIMIR VON RACHYNSKI, Bismarckmühle, near Lubasch, Germany. Filed Aug. 1, 1918. Serial No. 247,828. 3 Claims. (Cl. 173—13.)

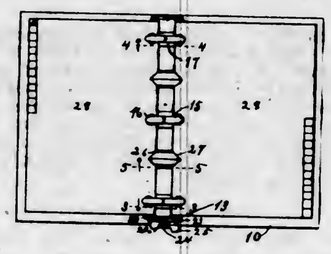


2. In a flexible hauling cable, the combination with an external hauling casing, of a conducting core comprising a metallic strip spirally wound and a metallic packing on said strip, one edge of said strip being slotted to form resilient tongues.

1,430,043. FILING APPLIANCE. ISAAC WAGEMAKER, Grand Rapids, Mich. Filed Jan. 17, 1921. Serial No. 437,715. 4 Claims. (Cl. 129—16.)

1. In combination with a receptacle having a bottom and sides, of a plurality of separate trays of different depths located side by side in the receptacle, and means connected with the trays for positioning them in the receptacle with their upper edges in substantially the same plane, substantially as described.

1,430,044. OIL BURNER. WILLIAM A. WALLACE, Johnston City, Ill. Filed Nov. 2, 1921. Serial No. 512,247. 1 Claim. (Cl. 158—63.)



An oil burner of the character described including a base, pipes extending upwardly through the base, then laterally in opposite directions to the ends of the base, then downward and toward each other and terminating in burner caps having upwardly projecting nozzles, a pipe extending upwardly through the base and having oppositely directed branches, the ends of the branches extending downward toward the base and then forward beneath the burner nozzles of the first named pipes, the burner nozzles having rearwardly projecting jet apertures, the base beneath said burner nozzles being formed with wells for the reception of wicks, baffles disposed above the first named burner nozzles, a header, a fuel tank connected to the header of the valve casings connected to the header, pipes leading from two of the valve casings to the first named pipes projecting upward from the base, a pipe leading from the third valve to the second named pipe projecting upward from the base, and valves in the valve casings controlling the passage of fuel through said pipes.

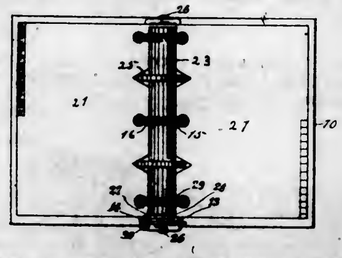
1,430,045. BEATER SIZING. HENRY M. WHEELWRIGHT, Newton Center, Mass. Filed May 6, 1919. Serial No. 295,060. Renewed Mar. 3, 1922. Serial No. 540,920. 6 Claims. (Cl. 92—21.)

1. The method of engine sizing paper which consists in mixing previously boiled soluble modified starch with rosin size, diluting it, and mixing it with the pulp in the beater to assist in the precipitation of the rosin in a colloidal condition in the beater and reduce the amount of rosin necessary.

1,430,046. LOOSE-LEAF BOOK. RALPH G. WHITLOCK, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to E. D. Whitlock and M. H. Whitlock, both of Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jan. 2, 1920. Serial No. 349,056. 3 Claims. (Cl. 129—24.)

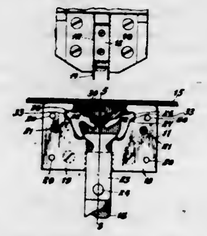
1. In a loose leaf book a sheet having registering notches in the inner edge in combination with a ring frame having registering blocks secured thereto, said blocks having edges which are a segment of a circle, the projecting edges being V-shaped in cross-section.



2. In a loose leaf book having a back frame in which are side members, an opening and closing device comprising a lever arm rockably secured at one end on one of the side members; a link pivotally connected to said lever arm and rockably secured at one end on the other member; and a bar pivotally connected to the outer end of said lever arm.

3. In a loose leaf book the combination of side members pivotally connected at their ends; half ring members secured to said side members; connecting plates having inturned ends forming pockets in which are received said side members, said plates having at their sides downwardly projecting lugs with ends turned toward each other, said lugs being between said pockets; and a cover plate having lugs with outturned ends projecting upwardly therefrom and adapted to engage the inturned ends of the connecting plate lugs.

1,430,047. LOOSE-LEAF BOOK. RALPH G. WHITLOCK, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to E. D. Whitlock and M. H. Whitlock, both of Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Feb. 16, 1920. Serial No. 359,178. 2 Claims. (Cl. 129—24.)



1. In a loose leaf book, a ring frame having plates provided with depending pierced lugs; a cover having a back plate provided with upwardly turned pierced lugs; and a connecting rod passing through said lugs whereby the ring frame and cover are secured together.

2. In a loose leaf book, a cover; a plate in the back thereof; ring frame plates adapted to be secured to said cover plate; a flanged guide block secured to said ring plates, said flanges being adapted to enter notches in a sheet, in combination with a sheet having in its inner edge ring holes and V-shaped notches.

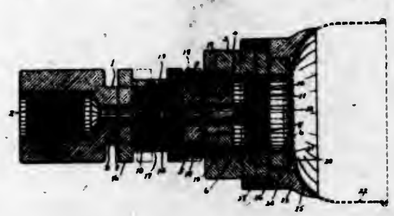
1,430,048. STAPLING MACHINE. HOWARD G. ALLEN, Niagara Falls, N. Y., assignor to The J. L. Morrison Company, Inc., Niagara Falls, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 8, 1921. Serial No. 490,487. 3 Claims. (Cl. 1—4.)

2. A stapling machine comprising a clencher box having a pair of symmetrically disposed pivot ledges and a pair of clearance notches located above said pivot ledges, a vertically movable clencher lifter projecting upwardly into said clencher box, and a pair of imperforate clenchers each of which is provided on its outer edge with a pivot head which is received within and coacts with one of said pivot ledges during the first part of the upward movement of said clencher box and traverses the said clearance notch during the rest of the upward movement of said clencher box.



1,430,049. VEGETABLE-CUBING MACHINE. LEE ROY APPLEGATE, Seattle, Wash. Filed June 7, 1921. Serial No. 475,754. 8 Claims. (Cl. 146—7.)

1. In a machine of the character described, in combination with a feed box and a communicating hopper there above, means for moving vegetables longitudinally through the feed box, and a cut-off knife movable transversely of the feed box to separate the feed box and hopper.

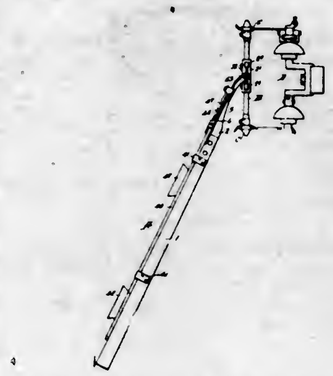
1,430,050. PNEUMATIC CHUCK. MARTIN D. BECKER, Elkhart, Ind. Filed Feb. 25, 1921. Serial No. 447,849. 4 Claims. (Cl. 279—3.)

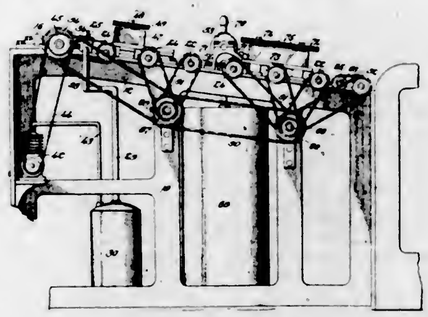
1. A pneumatic chuck comprising a holder provided with a head for receiving the work, said head being provided with a vacuum chamber; a yieldable packing element mounted upon the end face of said chuck head; an adjustable seat element mounted upon said head and adjustable relatively to said packing element, said seat element being adapted to be engaged by the work when the latter is applied to the chuck; a piston movable in said head chamber; means for actuating said piston prior to the application of the work to the chuck; and means for retracting the piston to create a vacuum in said head chamber to hold the work on the chuck.

1,430,051. CYLINDER-HEAD CONSTRUCTION. RAYMOND A. BECKWITH, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor to National Brake & Electric Company, Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Feb. 24, 1920. Serial No. 360,716. 22 Claims. (Cl. 122—171.)



1. In combination, a cylinder having a substantially continuous bore, a cylinder head seated with the pressure created in said cylinder and a valve controlled passageway adapted for communication with the substantially continuous bore of said cylinder through said cylinder head.

1,430,052. SHARPENING MATERIAL. VAUGHN W. BROOKS, Joliet, Ill. Filed June 17, 1921. Serial No. 478,283. 3 Claims. (Cl. 51—280.)



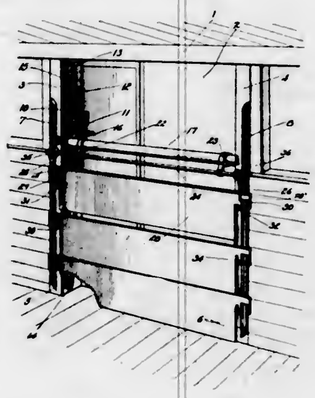
1. Sharpening material adapted for application to a strop consisting of ground natural quartziferous silica and natural iron and alumina in approximately the percentages specified.

1,430,053. FUSE-GRIPPING DEVICE. HAZEL B. BUSH, San Bernardino, Calif.; M. D. Douglas, administrator of said Hazel B. Bush, deceased. Filed Aug. 21, 1919. Serial No. 318,859. 9 Claims. (Cl. 81—3.)

1. An instrument of the character set forth comprising a handle, a pair of jaws carried by the handle for movement toward and from each other, a pair of gripping plates designed to embrace an object, said plates being adjustably carried by the jaws so that the axes of the plates may be altered with respect to the axis of the handle, means for locking the gripping plates to the jaws in any adjusted position and means for moving the jaws toward and from each other.

1,430,054. SHEET-METAL PLATING OR COATING MACHINE. NICHOLAS CAMELO, Rome, N. Y., assignor, by direct and mesne assignments, of one-third to Ida Jane Bliss, Utica, N. Y., and one-third to Mary L. E. Johnson, Camden, N. Y. Filed Aug. 16, 1920. Serial No. 403,889. 10 Claims. (Cl. 91—12.3.)

1. A machine for coating sheet material comprising, means for advancing the material through the machine, and means including an element disposed laterally with respect to the material and actuated by contact with the forward edge of the same to cause application of the coating substance thereto.



1,430,055. RAIL JOINT. MATT CARAPINA and FRANK NEVISTICH, Terry, S. Dak. Filed Jan. 31, 1922. Serial No. 533,086. 1 Claim. (Cl. 238—235.)

A rail joint including a male section consisting of a rail provided with a laterally enlarged inwardly tapered web and having a central vertical longitudinal tongue extending from the end of the rail at the bottom thereof and provided at the top with an upwardly extending terminal projection, said male section being provided with an extended base recessed at the upper face at opposite sides of the tongue to form smooth flat bearing surfaces and to provide inner shoulders, and an interlocking female section having a laterally enlarged inwardly tapered web provided in its lower portion with a longitudinal recess extending inwardly from the end of the female section and upwardly from the lower face of the same to receive the said tongue and provided at the top at its inner portion with a vertical branch or socket receiving the terminal projection of the tongue to interlock the sections against relative longitudinal movement, said longitudinal recess and tongue extending upwardly from the bottom of the rails and terminating short of the heads of the same so as to leave the tread faces of the heads unbroken to the end of each rail, and said female section being also provided with extended base portions recessed at their lower faces at the bottom of the rail to form smooth unbroken surfaces and fitted upon the flat bearing surfaces of the male section and forming inner shoulders, and the said web being tapered horizontally to provide a substantially elongated elliptical web formation at the joint and of a width nearly equal to that of the head of the rails at the ends thereof and gradually decreasing in width to a point considerably beyond the end of each rail.

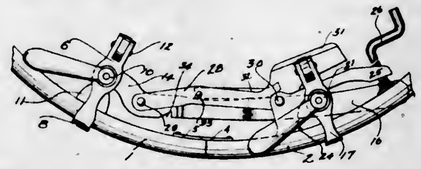
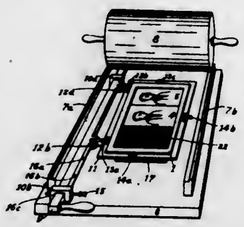
1,430,056. CAR DOOR. ERNST CHRISTENSON, Stockton, Kans., assignor of one-fourth to William I. Smith, Stockton, Kans. Filed Jan. 31, 1920. Serial No. 355,321. 9 Claims. (Cl. 20—27.)



2. In a device of the class described, a plurality of door hangers arranged in vertical rows, a plurality of door sections, means for supporting said door sections, and means for bringing the door section supporting means in proximity to the door hangers whereby the door sections may be transferred from the door supporting means to the door hangers.

1,430,057. BAG FRAME. WILLIAM C. CLAUSEN, Wauwatosa, Wis., assignor to Milwaukee Stamping Co., West Allis, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Mar. 21, 1921. Serial No. 454,003. 7 Claims. (Cl. 190—49.)

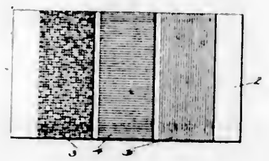


1. A bag frame, comprising a lock member, a hasp member connected thereto and having a recessed edge portion, and means angular in cross section for reenforcing said recessed edge portion.

1,430,058. RIM TOOL. EDWARD P. COFFEY, Spokane, Wash. Filed Nov. 21, 1921. Serial No. 516,606. 2 Claims. (Cl. 157—1.)

1. The combination in a tool as described of a yoke having a bearing head to engage one end of a split rim, a pair of clamping jaws pivoted on said yoke to engage the rim flanges, a perforated arm on the yoke and a screw bar therein to engage the rim, a second clamp device adapted to engage an adjoining rim-end, an operating lever pivoted on the latter device, and a draw link pivotally connecting said lever and yoke.

1,430,059. COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY. HIRAM C. J. DEEKS, Sea Cliff, N. Y., assignor to American Raylo Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 25, 1914, Serial No. 847,298. Renewed Nov. 9, 1920. Serial No. 422,969. 16 Claims. (Cl. 95—5.1.)



1. The method of making a coloured photographic print which consists in dyeing a film containing a volatile solvent by bringing it into contact with a photographic element holding a water-insoluble colouring matter soluble in said volatile solvent.

1,430,060. COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY. HIRAM C. J. DEEKS, Sea Cliff, N. Y., assignor to American Raylo Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed June 25, 1914, Serial No. 847,298. Renewed Nov. 9, 1920, Serial No. 422,969. Divided and this application filed Oct. 11, 1916, Serial No. 124,951. Renewed Apr. 9, 1921. Serial No. 459,978. 14 Claims. (Cl. 95—5.1.)

1. A color sheet for making colored photographic positives for subsequent transfer by a suitable agent, said sheet comprising a base and a sensitizable medium thereon containing a dyestuff soluble in said agent and a protective material associated with said dyestuff also soluble in said agent but inert to the treatment to which the color sheet is subjected to prepare it for the transfer, whereby the pigment produced by the combined dyestuff and protective material will neither affect nor be affected by said treatment but will yield to the transfer agent.

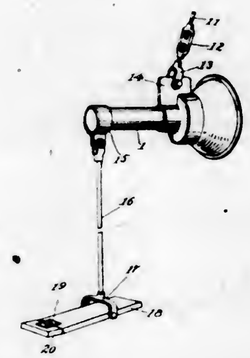
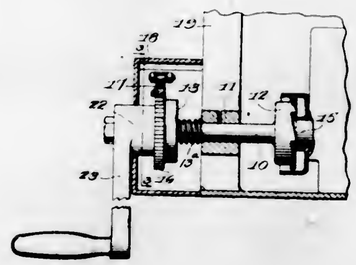
1,430,061. COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY. HIRAM C. J. DEEKS, Sea Cliff, N. Y., assignor to American Raylo Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed June 25, 1914, Serial No. 847,298. Renewed Nov. 9, 1920, Serial No. 422,969. Divided and this application filed Nov. 7, 1916. Serial No. 129,934. Renewed Apr. 9, 1921. Serial No. 459,979. 9 Claims. (Cl. 95—2.)

1. A compound pigment for use in making colored photographs or other pictures, comprising the combination of a dyestuff soluble in water and in alcohol and a material insoluble in water but soluble in alcohol, whereby said pigment will retain its color in water solutions but will yield it when treated with alcohol or alcohol containing substances.



1,430,062. TOY. ALBERT HARRISON DE VOE, Westfield, N. J. Filed Nov. 26, 1920. Serial No. 426,559. 13 Claims. (Cl. 46—56.)

1. A toy including a plurality of symbols, a plurality of indicating devices, means for relatively moving the symbols and said indicating devices for the purpose of relatively repositioning the symbols and the indicating devices, and adjusting means for at will rendering a portion of said indicating devices temporarily ineffective.



1,430,063. POLISHING HOLDER. CONRAD J. DIESEL and WILLIAM C. JACKSON, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignors to The Corcoran Victor Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Oct. 20, 1919. Serial No. 331,823. 3 Claims. (Cl. 51—236.)

1. In combination, a work holder, and means for mounting the same adjacent a burnishing wheel or the like, comprising an overhead support, connected to the holder so as to permit it to swing thereon, and a treadle permanently connected to a floor or base, and having a member pivotally secured to it and to the work holder at a point out of line with the overhead support and at such an angle that a depression of the treadle will move the holder in a substantially horizontal path toward the wheel or the like.

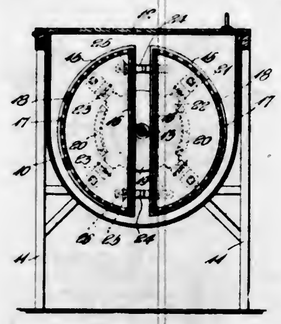
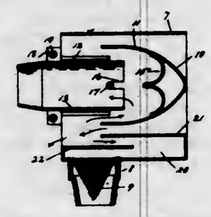
1,430,064. SAFETY STARTING CRANK. CHRIST ERB, Belleville, Wis. Filed Sept. 7, 1921. Serial No. 499,028. 4 Claims. (Cl. 123—185.)



1. In a cranking device for an automobile engine, a stem having a clutch head on one end, a disk keyed on the stem and rotatable therewith, a ratchet wheel loosely mounted on the stem close to the disk and having a plurality of transversely inclined spokes, the periphery of the disk being formed with a plurality of notches, and a crank hub loosely mounted on the stem and having projecting inclined faces and lugs, the said inclined faces extending into engagement with the faces of the spokes, the said lugs extending through the spaces between the spokes and into the notches in the disk, and a spring for holding the lugs and faces in yieldable engagement.

1,430,065. WASHING MACHINE. EDWARD A. EUSTICE, Galesburg, Ill. Filed Jan. 10, 1921. Serial No. 436,393. 7 Claims. (Cl. 68—18.)



1. A washing machine comprising a tub adapted to contain water, a substantially cylindrical holder formed in separate clothes containing sections spaced apart and having perforated walls, a rotatable shaft extending through the tub between the sections, carriers rigid upon said shaft, and means for releasably attaching the sections to the carriers, whereby said sections may be released from the carriers and bodily removed from the tub, rotation of the shaft causing the holder sections to swing into and out of water in the tub.

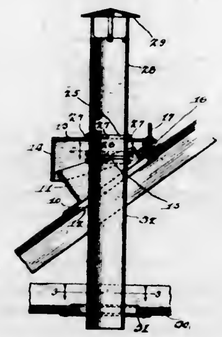
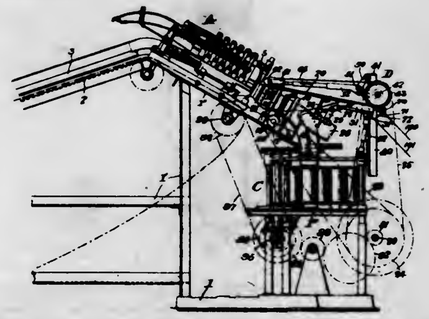
1,430,066. AIR CLEANER. EDWIN R. EVANS, Detroit, Mich., assignor of one-half to Byron F. Everitt, Detroit, Mich. Filed Dec. 30, 1918. Serial No. 268,911. 22 Claims. (Cl. 183—85.)



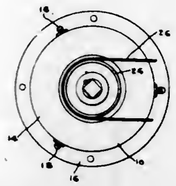
1 In an air cleaner, the combination with a cylindrical casing having open ends and an unobstructed passageway therethrough adapted for the passage of current of air therethrough, of a longitudinally extending partition in said casing, a convex hollow deflector in said casing and mounted upon said partition, and an air intake conduit extending into said deflector and mounted on said partition.

1,430,067. FIRE ALARM. ELIGAH H. FIELD, Buford, Ga., assignor of one-half to James T. Scales, Buford, Ga. Filed Apr. 1, 1921. Serial No. 457,614. 1 Claim. (Cl. 116—106.)



In combination with an alarm including a pivoted controlling lever having a bifurcated extremity, fusible cords having links secured thereto, said links being positioned over opposed furcations of the lever, coiled spring members having connection with the respective fusible cords, and disposed on opposite sides of the alarm the spring members being of equal tensions to normally hold the controlling lever in its inactive position, and means having connection with the spring members for normally holding the spring members under tension.

1,430,068. CHIMNEY. ARTHUR J. FILKINS, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 6, 1920. Serial No. 379,233. 3 Claims. (Cl. 285—31.)

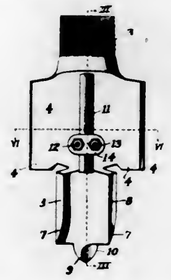


1. A chimney comprising a chimney pipe section and a chimney pipe section support, the latter comprising a plate perforated and having the chimney pipe detachably secured to the said plate with the interior thereof registering with the said perforation in the plate, a roof plate, a depending flanged or skirt portion on the chimney supporting plate, pivotal connections between the chimney supporting plate and the roof plate, a pipe extension formed integrally with the underside of the chimney supporting plate and registering with the chimney pipe and the said perforated portion in said plate, said integrally depending pipe section terminating substantially in the axial line of the pivotal connections between the said chimney support and the roof plate, and means for suspending a detachable pipe section from the said depending pipe section of the chimney support.

1,430,069. MACHINE FOR TREATING FRUIT. GEORGE EDWIN FISHER, Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii, assignor to Hawaiian Pineapple Company, Limited, Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii, a Corporation of Hawaii. Filed May 8, 1922. Serial No. 559,420. 9 Claims. (Cl. 146—11.)

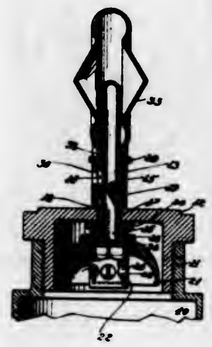
1. A machine for treating fruit comprising a rotary tubular sizing head, means for slitting the shells, a guide table for flattening the shells including a substantially frusto-conical section surrounding the sizing head, and a laterally and upwardly flaring extension gradually merging into a plane surface, and means associated with said guide table for trimming the meat from the shells.

1,430,070. SPATULATING DEVICE. CHARLES F. FRANZWA, Eau Claire, Wis. Filed Apr. 6, 1921. Serial No. 459,106. 4 Claims. (Cl. 259—107.)



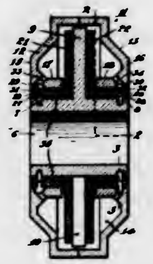
1. A spatulating device comprising a receptacle having imperforate walls, a shaft rotatably supported in said receptacle, and soft flexible blades attached to said shaft, said blades having a width sufficient to cause their outer portions to facially engage the interior of said receptacle on account of their inherent flexibility.

1,430,071. NECK YOKE. ALGER R. FRIBERG, Appleton, Wis. Filed July 25, 1921. Serial No. 487,227. 2 Claims. (Cl. 278—121.)



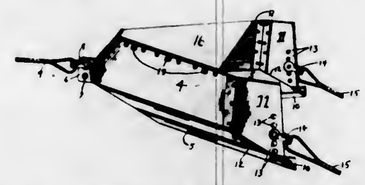
1. A yoke having a hook whose bill turns inwardly toward the yoke and whose shank is provided with a longitudinal slot having parallel sides, and a spring wire arm extending through the slot of said shank and across the end of said bill and being held against lateral displacement from said bill by the parallel sides of said slot.

1,430,072. WELL-DRILLING BIT. FRED GIERSE, Beaumont, Tex. Filed May 5, 1920. Serial No. 379,125. 3 Claims. (Cl. 255—61.)



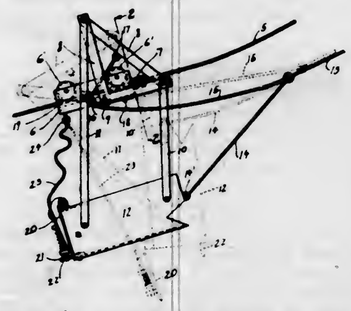
1. A drill bit of the class described, including a central body portion having a guide cutter formed at its lower end, a plurality of cutting blades formed on the body adjacent the guide cutter, a second series of cutting blades formed on the body above the first series and disposed at an angle with respect thereto, conveyor pipes secured to the body and having communication with spaces between the cutting blades of the first series whereby to remove the material after being acted upon by the blades.

1,430,073. ALARM MECHANISM FOR RADIATOR TANKS. LAFAYETTE C. GOBETZ, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Aug. 18, 1921. Serial No. 493,254. 7 Claims. (Cl. 116—137.)



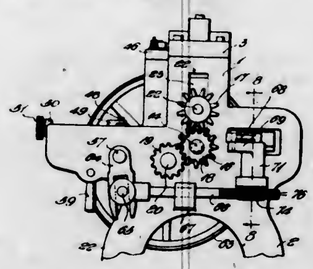
3. For use on radiator tanks of motor vehicles and in combination with the filler-cap thereof, alarm mechanism operable by steam pressure within said tank comprising a whistle-stem extending through the top of said cap and secured thereto and having its sound-opening above said cap, a dome applied upon the lower end of said stem for directing steam thereto, a casing secured within said dome and below the lower end of said stem and being open at its ends and sides and affording therein a float chamber, and a float normally resting in the lower end of said chamber and exposed on both faces to steam pressure and adapted on the rise of water against the same to move upwardly and close the lower end of said stem, for excluding water therefrom.

1,430,074. BEARING. EUGENE H. GRAFTON, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Nov. 18, 1920. Serial No. 424,973. 5 Claims. (Cl. 64—32.)



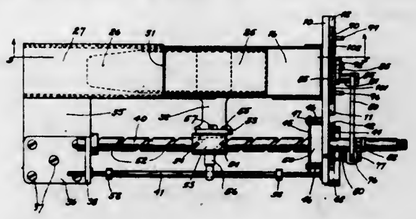
1. In a bearing, an inner cylindrical member having a peripheral web formed with radial slots and formed with circumferential grooves on opposite sides of the web, an outer housing member having inturned annular flanges encircling the inner member, said inturned flanges having inner peripheral grooves arranged opposite the grooves on the inner member, and a pair of annular bushing members interposed between the inner member and the inturned flanges of the outer member having inner annular channels registering with the grooves on the inner member and formed with apertures leading from the channels and communicating with the grooves on the outer member.

1,430,075. SCRAPER. LESLIE P. GREEN, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 9, 1921. Serial No. 476,190. 11 Claims. (Cl. 37—19.)



3. A scraper comprising scraping members arranged in forwardly divergent relation to each other; and a cover portion extending between the upper portions of said scraping members to rest upon material gathered between them and cause said scraper to ride upon said material when substantially filled, substantially as described.

1,430,076. EXCAVATOR. LESLIE P. GREEN, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 24, 1921. Serial No. 479,990. 7 Claims. (Cl. 37—19.)

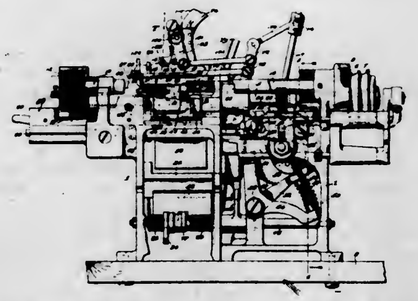


3. An excavator comprising a travelling carriage; an excavating bucket supported thereon; a draw cable having two branches, one leading to said bucket and the other to said carriage; means operable by a shift of tension from one of said branches to the other for dumping said bucket rearwardly; a tail gate for said bucket; and means for automatically opening said tail gate upon dumping of said bucket, substantially as described.

1,430,077. SKIVING MACHINE. HIRAM R. HAGGETT, Lynn, Mass. Filed June 21, 1920. Serial No. 390,477. 13 Claims. (Cl. 12—63.)

8. A skiving machine comprising a cavity roll, a feed roll operatively associated with said cavity roll and transversely divided into two relatively movable sections, means mounting the outer ends of said roll sections for pivotal movement toward and from the cavity roll and for movement bodily with respect to said roll, and spring means normally resisting both movements of said roll sections.

1,430,078. BUTTER-CUTTING MACHINE. EDMUND HARTUNG, Jersey City, N. J. Filed Aug. 31, 1921. Serial No. 497,337. 5 Claims. (Cl. 31—65.)



1. In a butter cutting machine, a frame, a hopper, a trough, a ram within said trough, a spirally grooved rod, means therewith for operating said ram, a spring co-acting between said frame and ram, means for winding said spring, and other means for automatically releasing said spring and returning said ram to normal outward position.

3. In a butter cutting machine, a frame, a hopper secured to said frame, a trough below said hopper, a ram operable in said trough, a securing bar fixed to said trough, a bracket on said bar, a spirally grooved feed rod, a gear attached to said feed rod, a ratchet fixed to said gear, said feed rod passing through said frame and said bracket, and means engaging said spiral grooves for operating said ram.

5. In a butter cutting machine, the combination of a frame, a crank shaft rotatable therethrough, a segmental gear on said crank shaft, a feed gear engaging said segmental gear, a ratchet secured to said feed gear, a feed rod secured to said feed gear and said ratchet, a spring locking pawl engaging said ratchet, a releasing bar, means co-acting with said feed rod and release bar for disengaging said pawl from said ratchet, and means with said crank shaft for intermittently causing said feed rod to rotate, and other means with said crank shaft for causing a cutting means to operate in timed relation to the movement of said feed rod substantially as described.

1,430,079. BOBBIN-WINDING MACHINE. PARK A. HERR, Hillside, N. J., assignor to The Singer Manufacturing Company, Elizabeth, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 5, 1919. Serial No. 342,794. 39 Claims. (Cl. 242—18.)

10. A machine for winding bobbins or the like comprising a pair of clamping elements for gripping a bobbin while it is being wound, means for rotating one of said clamping elements, means for retracting one of said elements to discharge the filled bobbin including a pivoted bellcrank-lever, a cam-follower, a spring between the cam-follower and one arm of said bellcrank-lever, a cam operating said follower to compress the spring which operates through the bellcrank-lever to move one of the clamping elements to clamp a bobbin in winding position, a cam-follower on the other arm of said bellcrank-lever and a cam adapted to move said follower to retract said clamping element from bobbin clamping position.

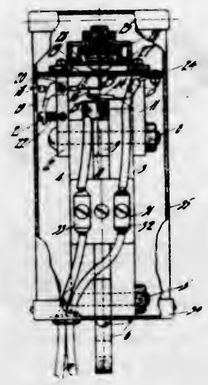
1,430,080. LATH. WILLIAM D. HICKS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Dec. 8, 1919. Serial No. 343,226. 11 Claims. (Cl. 72—124.)

1. In a composition lath board, a plastic body, a facing sheet covering same, and depressions in said plastic body having side walls lined with said facing sheet and the bottom wall exposed, throughout a major portion of the depression.



1,430,081. PISTOL-HOLDING DEVICE. ALBERT R. HOLLER, Erie, Pa. Filed Feb. 8, 1922. Serial No. 535,105. 9 Claims. (Cl. 196—37.)

1. The combination of a supporting wall having an opening therethrough; a cover for the opening; a pistol mounting; and means acting on the mounting to move a pistol through the opening as the cover is opened.

1,430,082. TELEPHONE REPRODUCER. FRANK HOLMSTROM, Jr., Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Charles R. Bennett, Kansas City, Mo. Filed Nov. 3, 1917. Serial No. 200,218. Renewed Sept. 22, 1921. Serial No. 502,511. 10 Claims. (Cl. 179—171.)

1. In a reproducer, a receiver element having an armature, a resilient element secured to oppose the magnetic pull of the receiver magnet armature to hold it away from the magnet polepiece, means for adjusting the opposing forces to regulate the distance between armature and polepiece, a microphone unit, means for linking the diaphragm of said unit to said element after the pull of the opposing forces is adjusted and means for anchoring the back of the microphone after the adjustment.

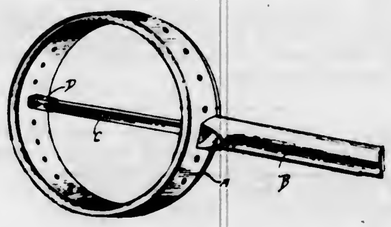
1,430,083. COATING COMPOSITION. ALBERT C. HOLZAPFEL, New York, N. Y. Filed June 15, 1922. Serial No. 568,633. 2 Claims. (Cl. 134—54.)

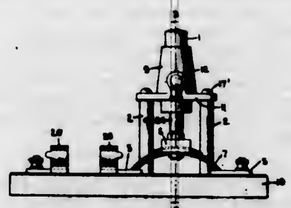
2. A surface coating composition comprising pitch derived from the treatment of oils and fats, a solvent for said pitch, and from ½ to 2 per cent, by weight of rubber.

1,430,084. CLOSURE FOR JARS, BOTTLES, AND OTHER RECEPTACLES. ALFRED INGRAM and HARRY INGRAM, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignors to Ingrams Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 8, 1919. Serial No. 322,401. 3 Claims. (Cl. 215—40.)



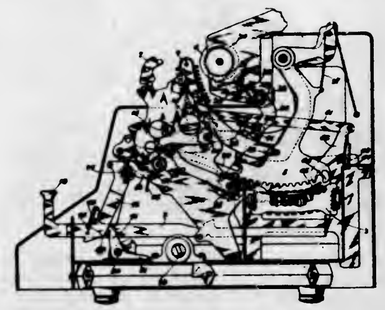
1. A receptacle and a closure therefor comprising a top, a skirt portion to encompass the neck of the receptacle and annularly grooved inwardly suitably below its upper end to form a gasket supporting inset annular shoulder and above the same an annular recess for a gasket, and a gasket in said recess adapted to fill the same and to seal against the side of the neck of the receptacle and initially not filling said recess and having a downwardly and outwardly tapered lower edge a portion of which initially extends inwardly over the lip of the receptacle to be displaced by said lip into said recess, and said receptacle having on its neck and below its sealing zones corresponding inclined ribs which are laterally spaced apart at their adjacent ends and independent of one another and each having a clear vertical space above it extending to the top of the receptacle, and said skirt having inwardly extended lugs to engage said ribs, said lugs passing directly down between the adjacent ends and below the upper plane of the ribs on the application of the closure to position and being adapted on the removal of the closure to leave the ribs they engaged and thereafter move to and ride upwardly upon the upper surface of the adjacent ribs in series.

1,430,085. PROCESS OF TREATING BIOTITE. JAMES KEETH, Spokane, Wash. Filed Apr. 12, 1921. Serial No. 460,827. 1 Claim. (Cl. 134—1.)



The process of treating biotite which consists in subjecting the "books" to approximately a temperature of 700° F. whereby the books are dehydrated and lofted, and subsequently comminuting the dehydrated and lofted books.

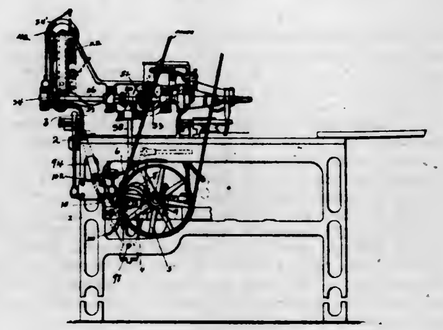
1,430,086. BANJO ATTACHMENT. KILLIANUS KOTTMEYER, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Dec. 5, 1921. Serial No. 520,093. 2 Claims. (Cl. 84—269.)



1. In a banjo, the combination with the rim and dowel stick, of a metal ferrule having a socket in its inner end portion receiving the onter end of said dowel stick and a screw-threaded socket in its outer end portion, means securing said ferrule to said dowel stick, and a screw extending through said rim and into said screw-threaded socket for firmly securing said rim and dowel stick together, said screw-threaded socket being of sufficient depths to provide a firm anchorage for the screw independent of the dowel stick.

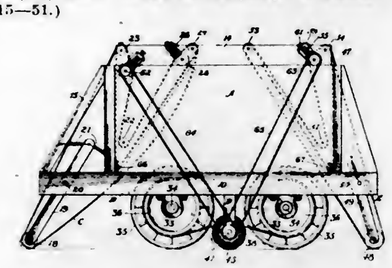
1,430,087. SAFETY SWITCH. FRANK T. KOVAR and JOSEPH F. JIRKA, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Apr. 11, 1921. Serial No. 460,575. 5 Claims. (Cl. 200—78.)

1. A safety switch comprising stationary spaced contacts, electrical conducting members for bridging the space between the contacts, a plunger carrying the conducting members, a support for the plunger in fixed relation to the stationary contacts, a spring urging the plunger in a direction to carry the conducting members away from the contacts, relatively movable means carried by the plunger and adapted to engage the support and lock the plunger in position with the conducting members bridging the contacts, and manually operable means in the support for releasing the locking means, whereby the spring will open the switch with a snap action.



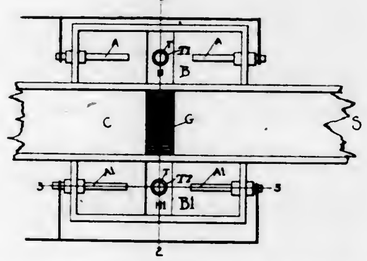
1,430,088. ADDING, CALCULATING, AND RECORDING MACHINE. HARRY LANDSIEDEL, Norwood, Ohio, assignor to The Dalton Adding Machine Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed June 28, 1920. Serial No. 392,416. 38 Claims. (Cl. 235—60.)

1. In a machine of the character described, the combination of type-carriers, type on said type-carriers, spring actuated hammers for driving the type on said type-carriers to print, a latch for holding each of said hammers in a retracted position, a bail device for releasing latches corresponding to the type-carriers in recording position, and means for preventing effective operation of said bail device, leaving all latches holding corresponding hammers when any of the type carriers operate irrespective of the positions to which the type-carriers move.



24. In a machine of the character described, a platen, platen rotating mechanism, type driving hammers, latches holding the hammers retracted, and a bar operable to release the latches from the hammers, in combination with a manipulative lever, connections operated by said lever, a device operated by said connections to prevent operation of the platen rotating mechanism, and an additional device operated by said connections to prevent said bar from operating to release said latches.

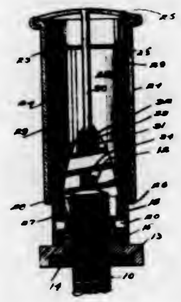
1,430,089. WEB FEEDING AND CUTTING DEVICE. IGNACIO LAZAGA, Salem, Va. Original application filed Dec. 19, 1918, Serial No. 267,511. Divided and this application filed May 31, 1919. Serial No. 301,008. 7 Claims. (Cl. 164—42.)



1. In a wrapping machine, the combination of a reel, a measuring device operating to intermittently feed a measured strip from said reel, constantly operating feed rollers located between said reel and said measuring device arranged to feed "slack" from said reel sufficient to provide said measured portion, and a severing device for cutting off the measured strips, said measuring device feeding the slack directly to said cutting device.

1,430,090. WASHING, SCRUBBING, AND DRYING MACHINE. JOHN LENCE, Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada. Filed May 4, 1920, Serial No. 378,764. Renewed May 1, 1922. Serial No. 557,559½. 4 Claims. (Cl. 15—51.)

4. A floor cleaning machine comprising a wheeled frame, a pair of spaced tanks carried by the opposite ends of the frame, a rotary brush carried by the frame, an endless washing cloth carried by the frame positioned in front of the rotary brush and arranged to extend through one of the tanks, an endless drying cloth carried by the frame in rear of said rotary brush and arranged to extend through the other of said tanks, and means for operating said brush and said cloths.



1,430,091. AMALGAMATING CELL. CHARLES CORLISS MCBRIDE, Sanger, Calif. Filed Oct. 22, 1921. Serial No. 509,665. 4 Claims. (Cl. 83—65.)

1. In an amalgamator the combination of a sluice having an amalgamated plate with an opening therethrough forming a part of the bottom, and a grizzly attached to the under surface of the bottom and covering the opening, a container formed independent of the sluice having a duct leading from the bottom of the container and extending under the bottom of the sluice, the duct having an opening in its top registering with the opening in the amalgamated plate, a return lead from the duct at a point beyond the amalgamated plate to the container, mercury within the duct and covering the bottom of container to the level of the amalgamated plate, a solution containing sodium chloride within the container above the mercury, electric leads from a source of electrical energy to the mercury and to the solution containing sodium chloride, and means for keeping the mercury in circulation in the duct, substantially as described.

1,430,092. VALVE CAP. DANIEL W. MANNHARDT, Washington, Iowa. Filed Oct. 17, 1921. Serial No. 508,127. 6 Claims. (Cl. 152—12.)

1. In a valve stem cap, a nut designed to be mounted on a valve stem casing, a yoke device having arms pivotally mounted on said nut for rotation thereon, a slidable tubular casing for the ends of said arms, which are secured to the nut, a second tubular casing snugly telescopically mounted on the first casing, said casings having coacting outwardly and inwardly projecting flanges to limit their relative sliding movement, a valve stem cap, a stem secured to said cap and to said second casing and slidably mounted in said yoke device, a spring stop on said yoke device, and a spring within said tubular casing between said stop and said flanges.

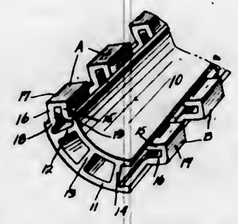
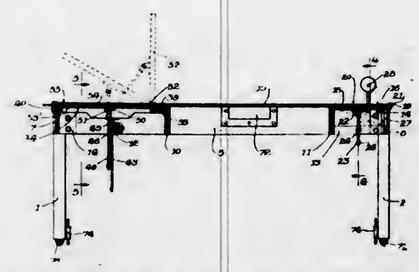
1,430,093. EYES OF DOLLS, TOY ANIMALS, AND THE LIKE. THOMAS MATHEWS, Leicester, England; Annie Mathews and Harry W. Buckingham, executors of said Thomas Mathews, deceased. Filed Dec. 4, 1919. Serial No. 342,311. 3 Claims. (Cl. 46—40.)



1. A cardboard doll, figure or like toy, consisting of a cut out body having eye openings therein, a flat cardboard frame attached to the rear of said body and having an opening therein, and a flat cardboard member having eyes and a flesh coloured portion thereon and capable of a free limited movement in two opposite directions in the opening of the frame, to expose the eyes and flesh coloured portion behind the eye openings in the body, substantially as described.

1,430,094. SECTIONAL CLAY BLOCK STRUCTURE FOR SEWERS AND DRAINAGE. FREDERICK H. MEIER, Webster City, Iowa. Filed May 29, 1919. Serial No. 300,604. 3 Claims. (Cl. 72—51.)



1. In a device of the class described, a plurality of sections of plastic material, each comprising an inner and outer wall and transverse connecting walls, each section having at each side a plurality of projecting hollow tongues spaced from each other longitudinally of the section and thinner than the body of the section, each tongue being spaced from the adjacent transverse wall, so as to leave a hollow space in the tongue and in the adjacent body portion of the section extending from the interior of the tongue beyond said tongue and into the interior of the body of the section, the tongues on one side of each section being staggered with relation to the tongues on the other side thereof, said sections being arranged in a tile or the like, comprising a plurality of sections arranged in a circle with the tongues of the side edges of each section projected between and beyond the tongues of the side edges of the adjacent section and into the bodies of the adjacent sections.

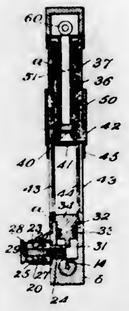
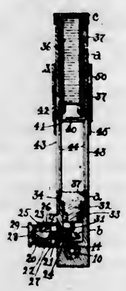
1,430,095. THERAPEUTIC APPARATUS. WILLIAM MEYER, Chicago, Ill. Filed Dec. 18, 1918. Serial No. 267,234. 11 Claims. (Cl. 250—34.)



6. An X-ray table, having a fixed section of slightly greater length than is necessary to support a human trunk and head, said section having a notch in one end, and a tiltable head rest pivoted about the inner edge of said notch.

1,430,096. X-RAY APPARATUS. WILLIAM MEYER, Chicago, Ill. Filed Nov. 17, 1920. Serial No. 424,600. 3 Claims. (Cl. 175—364.)

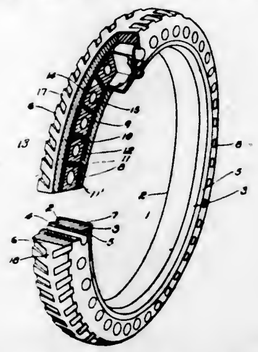


1. In combination, a transformer comprising a primary winding and a secondary winding, said secondary winding comprising two sections, primary and secondary circuits for the primary and secondary windings, a fixed ground connection between said secondary winding sections, a commutator and a uni-directional current meter connected through said commutator in series with the secondary winding at the fixed ground connection between the sections thereof.

1,430,097. PRESSURE GAUGE. EDWARD FRANK MILLS, Lynn, Mass. Filed Sept. 10, 1920. Serial No. 409,324. 8 Claims. (Cl. 152—11.5.)

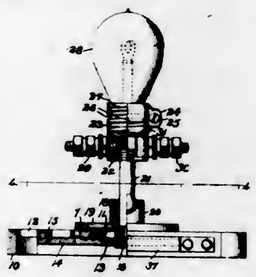
1. In a fluid pressure gauge, in combination, a casing, a cylinder connected with one end of said casing, a piston in said cylinder having a projection extended into the said cylinder and a piston rod extended into said casing, a relief valve for said cylinder having a stem extended into said cylinder and provided with a collar co-operating with said projection to enable said relief valve to be locked by said projection in its closed and opened positions, a tension spring in said casing having one end connected with said piston rod, a movable head in said casing with which the opposite end of said spring is connected, a device movable on the outside of said casing and connected with said head to move therewith, and an expansible member located in said casing and co-operating with said head and responsive to fluid pressure to effect movement of said head and said device in opposition to said spring.

1,430,098. PRESSURE CONTROLLER OR INSTRUMENT. EDWARD FRANK MILLS, Salem, Mass., assignor to A. Schrader's Son, Inc., Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Original application filed Feb. 24, 1916, Serial No. 80,277. Divided and this application filed Dec. 4, 1916. Serial No. 134,834. 15 Claims. (Cl. 152—11.5.)



10. In a device of the character described, in combination, a casing, a relief valve for said casing, a device for automatically locking said relief valve in its open position following the operation of said relief valve.

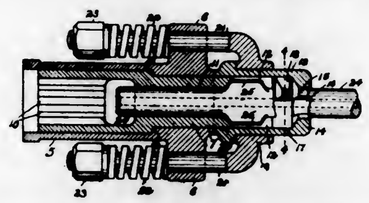
1,430,099. SOAP. JOHN R. MILSON, Watertown, Mass., assignor to Pioneer Chemical Company, Revere, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed May 9, 1919. Serial No. 295,869. 3 Claims. (Cl. 87—5.)



1. A soap formed of a mixture of animal oil, petroleum oil, an alkali, a sodium silicate, aluminum chloride and water in suitable proportions.

1,430,100. TIRE. LAWRENCE O. MITCHELL, Kansas City, Mo. Filed Oct. 15, 1920. Serial No. 417,091. 7 Claims. (Cl. 152—1.)

6. A tire consisting of a plurality of rubber blocks, Z-shaped binder fabrics between the blocks, one end of each fabric overlapping the inner face of one block and the other end overlapping the outer face of an adjacent block, the outer ends of the fabrics overlapping one another, and a covering for said blocks and fabrics.

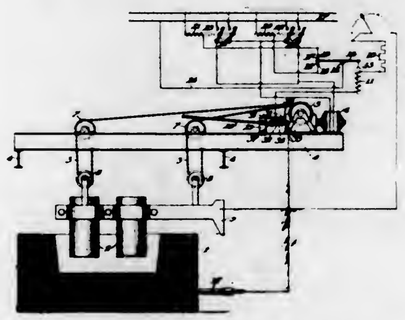


1,430,101. LAMP SUPPORT. WILL C. NEAHR, Denver, Colo., assignor to The Protective Signal Manufacturing Company, Denver, Colo., a Corporation of Colorado. Filed Feb. 12, 1920. Serial No. 358,140. 6 Claims. (Cl. 240—44.)

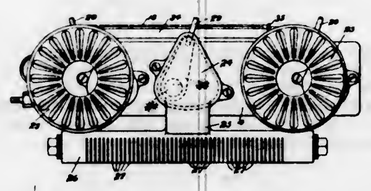
1. An adjustable lamp support comprising a base having an opening and a slot at one side of the opening, a lamp-carrying member, and means for clamping the member in different positions on the base, comprising elements on opposite sides of said base, one of said elements extending over the opening and having a pivot slidable in the slot, said element carrying the lamp-carrying member.

1,430,102. TOOL-RETAINING MEANS. GUSTAVE M. NELL, Denver, Colo., assignor to The Denver Rock Drill Manufacturing Company, Denver, Colo., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Feb. 14, 1920. Serial No. 358,843. 10 Claims. (Cl. 121—32.)

1. In tool retaining means, the combination with a head, of a chuck member rotatably mounted thereon and having a tool receiving socket and a recessed seat for the usual tool lug, and a retaining member located in front of the chuck member and having a tool receiving opening, and a slot for the passage of the lug thereof, said retaining member having an internal chamber provided with a stop adapted to be engaged by the lug of the tool when in said chamber and out of line with the slot.

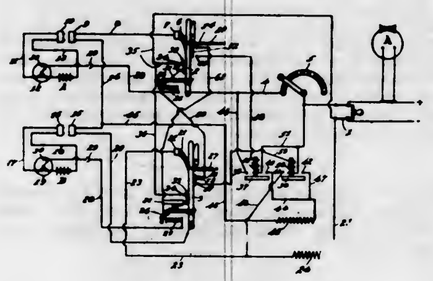


1,430,103. GASKET AND METHOD OF MAKING SAME. EMIL A. NELSON, Detroit, Mich., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Arthur H. Murray, Detroit, Mich. Filed July 19, 1918. Serial No. 245,738. 4 Claims. (Cl. 288—1.)



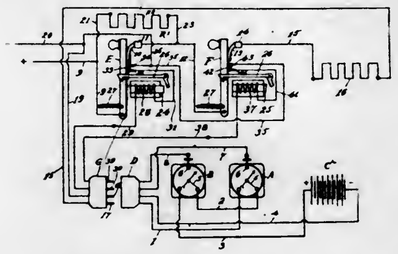
3. A gasket comprising a flat stiffening metallic body formed with openings and narrow portions between the openings, sheets of asbestos packing material applied to the upper and lower faces of the body with openings corresponding to the openings in the body to provide compressible faces for and coextensive with the faces of the metallic body, and a thin copper sheathing applied to and covering the upper and lower exposed surfaces of the packing with marginal portions of the sheathing turned into the openings in the body and packing and over the marginal edges of the body and packing to cover all exposed edges both within and without the openings of the gasket.

1,430,104. AUTOMATIC CONTROL OF ELECTRICAL FURNACES. THOMAS E. NIBLOCK, Great Falls, Mont. Filed Feb. 8, 1921. Serial No. 443,419. 8 Claims. (Cl. 2[illegible]—64.)



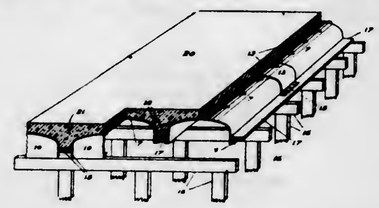
3. In a system for automatically controlling the movement of electrodes in an electric furnace, the combination with an electrode, means for movably suspending the electrode, means for raising and lowering the electrode, means responsive to electrical conditions in the furnace for controlling the movement of the electrode and means responsive to the tension in the line of suspension of the electrode for causing an alternate raising and lowering of the electrode when the downward movement of the electrode is obstructed.

1,430,105. KEROSENE BURNER. JOHN S. NOEL, Grand Rapids, Mich., assignor to Don Devendorf, Grand Rapids, Mich. Filed Sept. 10, 1919. Serial No. 322,951. 8 Claims. (Cl. 158—61.)



1. In a construction of the character described, a housing comprising parallel sides and parallel top and bottom, and ends, a horizontal partition in the housing dividing the same into upper and lower compartments, a vertical partition in the lower compartment dividing the same into two compartments, said vertical partition having an opening therein near one end of the housing and said horizontal partition having an opening near the opposite end of the housing at one side to connect one of the lower compartments with the upper compartment, and said bottom having an opening therein near the same end of the housing for entrance of air into the other of the lower compartments, a fuel inlet into the last mentioned compartment directly over the air inlet opening, means to heat the fuel before entrance into said compartment, and burners attached to the top of the housing to which mixed air and fuel in gaseous form may be carried from the upper and larger compartment, substantially as described.

1,430,106. MEANS FOR CHARGING STORAGE BATTERIES. CLARENCE E. OGDEN, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed Feb. 18, 1920. Serial No. 359,737. 4 Claims. (Cl. 171—314.)

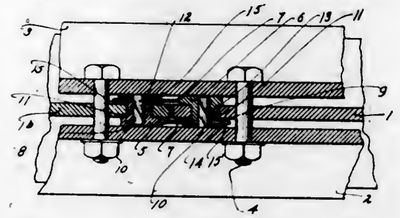


1. Means for charging storage batteries comprising in combination with a charging circuit, electrical connections for a plurality of storage batteries to be charged, said connections being arranged to be connected in series in said charging circuit, an independent switch for controlling the circuit through each of the batteries, a meter for gauging the charge to each battery, means whereby each of said meters is arranged to open the switch controlling the circuit through its battery, resistance, means whereby upon the opening of either of said switches, the circuit is closed through the remaining battery and suitable resistance, and means whereby when the final battery is fully charged, said charging circuit is opened.

1,430,107. MEANS FOR CHARGING STORAGE BATTERIES. CLARENCE E. OGDEN, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed July 26, 1920. Serial No. 399,063. 4 Claims. (Cl. 171—314.)

1. Means for charging storage batteries comprising in combination with a charging circuit and resistance, two ampere hour meters, the first of said meters being set to indicate slow on discharge and correct on charge, means whereby during charge said first meter is arranged when at zero to introduce said resistance into the charging circuit, and means whereby the second meter is arranged on completion of charge to open the line circuit.

1,430,108. FORM FOR CONCRETE CONSTRUCTION. SYLVESTER J. OSWALD, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed June 2, 1919. Serial No. 301,242. 2 Claims. (Cl. 25—131.5.)



2. An apparatus for constructing concrete floors, comprising in combination a series of arched members each having a closed end arranged in longitudinal alinement with their adjacent ends spaced a slight distance apart, a hollow reenforcing rib adapted to resist strains in all directions formed on each longitudinal edge of said arched member, means for connecting said arched members to provide a continuous form and including a relatively short rigid arched bridge member adapted to have its ends overlap the adjacent ends of said first mentioned arched members to close the space between said ends, said bridge member having a laterally directed flange formed on each longitudinal edge thereof adapted to rest upon the reenforcing ribs of the adjacent first mentioned arched members, and means engageable with the ribs of said first mentioned arched members and confining the flanges of said second mentioned arched member therebetween and the adjacent rib to secure said last mentioned arched member in position.

,430,109. METHOD OF SEPARATING HYDROCARBON FROM ALUMINUM CHLORIDE. ERNEST V. OWEN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to The Hoover Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Jan. 21, 1922. Serial No. 530,991. 5 Claims. (Cl. 23—13.)

1. The process of separating heavy hydrocarbon from aluminum chloride, which consists in delivering aluminum chloride hydrocarbon to a bath of liquid material which is maintained at a temperature that is below the vaporizing point of the hydrocarbon and above the vaporizing point of aluminum chloride, thereby volatilizing the aluminum chloride, and then removing the latter in the form of vapor.

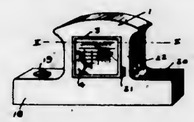
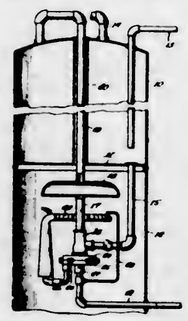
1,430,110. RAIL BOND. CHARLES A. PARKER, Haugan, Mont., assignor of one-half to Albert T. Farmer, Saltese, Mont. Filed May 9, 1921. Serial No. 468,107. 3 Claims. (Cl. 173—262.)

1. The combination with the contiguous perforated rail webs, of a pair of conductors each having a socket member, an expanding plug driven in each member and having one end projecting through said member, and a conductor blade integral with each of said members coacting with the plug of the other member.



1,430,111. WASTE COLLECTOR FOR MATCH MACHINES. LUCIAN E. PARKER, Wadsworth, Ohio, assignor to The Ohio Match Company, Wadsworth, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Aug. 19, 1921. Serial No. 493,722. 10 Claims. (Cl. 226—7.)

1. A tray having a sloping bottom and adapted to be attached to and move with the feeding trough of a match box filling machine, to collect, straighten and clear away waste or stray matches, and means in communication with said tray to discharge such matches into match boxes.



1,430,112. CALENDAR DEVICE. ALONZO N. PEFFLY, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Mar. 4, 1922. Serial No. 541,038. 2 Claims. (Cl. 40—116.)

1. A calendar device comprising an enclosing casing having an opening therein, a frame having a perforated front portion and two sides of spring material, said sides adapted to slide into said opening and frictionally engage opposite walls of said opening, a roller adapted to carry a calendar strip wound thereon, an idler roller, and a friction roller said idler and said friction roller spaced above and below said perforated front, respectively, and between said sides, and connections through one of said sides to actuate the friction roller to advance the strip, and a glass plate covering said front perforation and having its lower edge exposed adjacent the friction roller, as and for the purpose set forth.

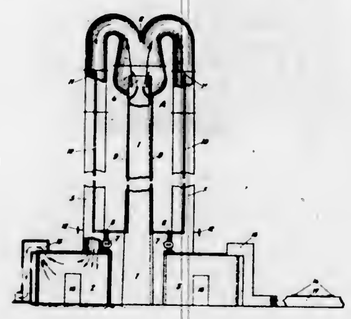
1,430,113. REGULATOR. WILLIAM P. POWERS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Apr. 10, 1920. Serial No. 372,897. 3 Claims. (Cl. 236—32.)

1. In a regulator, the combination of a casing having a passage for water, a thermostatic element having a portion projecting into said passage, said element including a flexible end wall in the form of a diaphragm, a second casing having gas inlet and outlet openings and providing a space within which the flexible wall of said thermostatic element is located, a valve adapted to cooperate with one of said openings, a resilient valve-carrying member adapted normally to maintain the valve away from its seat, and adjustable spring means interposed between said resilient valve-carrying member and said thermostatic element.

1,430,114. LENS MOUNT AND METHOD OF FORMING SAME. HERBERT C. REES, San Antonio, Tex. Filed Oct. 20, 1919. Serial No. 332,073. 16 Claims. (Cl. 88—42.)

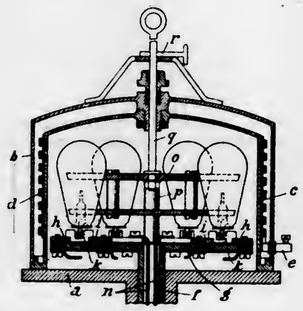


5. The method of forming a lens mount which is characterized by inserting a tube of hygroscopic material in a lens opening, cutting off the tube even with the surface of the lens to form a bushing, and inserting a strap securing element in said bushing.

1,430,115. PROCESS FOR RECOVERING FLAX FIBER. RALPH E. RINDFUSZ, Northampton, and VANDERVEER VOORHEES, Holyoke, Mass., assignors to American Writing Paper Company, Holyoke, Mass., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Nov. 15, 1919. Serial No. 338,299. 2 Claims. (Cl. 92—13.)

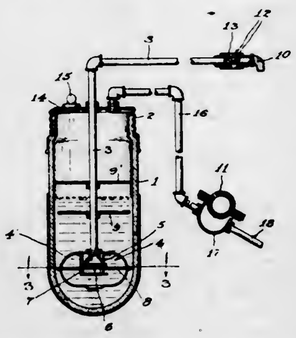
1. Process of preparing high-grade paper pulp from flax tow, comprising subjecting the tow to an alkaline cook under superatmospheric pressure to soften the shive material; removing the alkali and treating at substantially normal temperature with an acid solution comprising an oxy-acid of nitrogen; and completing the removal of ligneous shive material by a further alkaline treatment.

1,430,116. APPARATUS FOR CLEANING AND COLLECTING SMOKE FROM FOUNDRY CHIMNEYS. ALBERTO RODRIGUEZ, Santiago, Chile. Filed Dec. 14, 1920. Serial No. 430,809. 3 Claims. (Cl. 183—43.)



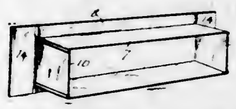
1. In combination with a furnace chimney, a smoke collector at the top thereof, a receiving chamber, a pipe leading from said collector to said chamber, means to create draft upwardly through the chimney and collector and downwardly through said pipe, a storage chamber, a pipe leading to said storage chamber from said receiving chamber, a pipe leading from said storage chamber, and traps in said receiving and storage chambers.

1,430,117. STORE-FRONT CONSTRUCTION. VERNON ROSS and ERRETT S. RHOADS, Kansas City, Mo., assignors to Ross Rhoads Company, Kansas City, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed July 26, 1920. Serial No. 399,059. 5 Claims. (Cl. 20—56.4.)



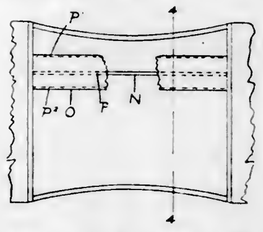
1. A store front construction comprising a window casing formed with a ledge and a clamping face, a fixed anchoring rib on the ledge, extending at an angle to said clamping face, a moulding strip fitting against the ledge with one edge in proximity to the outer face of the glass, and a clamping element engaging the rib and the outer face of the glass to hold the latter unyieldingly against movement with respect to said clamping face of the casing; said clamping element engaging and cooperating with the said rib for glass clamping purposes.

1,430,118. PROCESS AND APPARATUS FOR SEALING LAMPS. ROBERT LE ROSSIGNOL, Harrow, England, assignor to Patent-Treuhand-Gesellschaft für Elektrische Glühlampen mit beschrankter Haftung, Berlin, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed July 9, 1920. Serial No. 395,028. 8 Claims. (Cl. 176—2.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



1. The process of sealing electrical glow lamps provided with a short open exhaust stem which comprises heating the end of the stem of the lamp thus supported, in an exhausted environment whereby the bulb is maintained as a vessel exhausted through its stem to such a temperature that the stem end becomes liquid, and then removing said end from the heating zone to cause the same to solidify as a seal.

1,430,119. AIR MOISTENER. EDWIN SAVERY, San Francisco, Calif., assignor to Boesch Lamp Company, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed May 1, 1920. Serial No. 378,236. 1 Claim. (Cl. 261—121.)



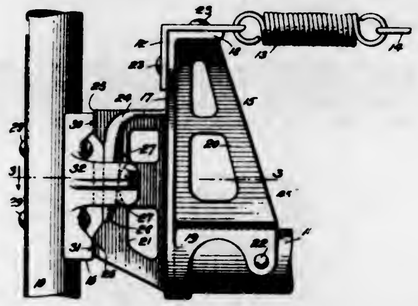
In an attachment for internal combustion motors, the combination with a liquid holding container, a cover for detachably securing thereto to close the same, an air inlet pipe carried by and extended through the cover for projection into the container, a discharge nozzle at the lower end thereof, a float valve for normally closing the same, a cage carried by said pipe for retaining the valve, a plurality of mixing devices carried by the pipe, a vapor outlet leading from the container through said cover, said cover and elements carried thereby adapted for removal from the container as a unit.

1,430,120. METHOD OF MAKING THE CONNECTIONS FOR VENTILATING BOX BASES. CLARENCE C. SHIPP, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed Oct. 3, 1921. Serial No. 505,119. 3 Claims. (Cl. 113—116.)

1. The method of making a ventilator box with flanges and a top, which comprises the steps of trimming to size a plurality of separate pieces, bending them at right angles on the line between the top and flange, bending up lock joints in the edges of the various pieces and seaming the lock joints to form a top with four angles and a continuous flange.

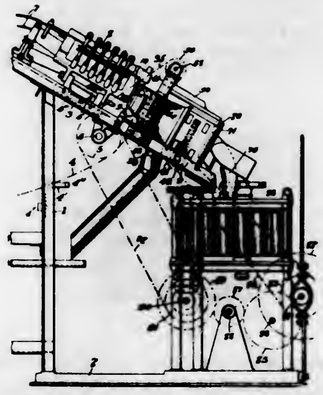
1,430,121. BELT CORSET. JOSEPH SIEGEL, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Frolaset Corset Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Mar. 26, 1920. Serial No. 369,055. 2 Claims. (Cl. 2—188.)

1. An undergarment, comprising elastic side portions for engaging the waist of the wearer, said portions being respectively slotted along the waist line to facilitate flaring of said portion to conform with the waist curvature, and a non-elastic member coextensive with said slot connecting the portions marginal to said slot, and concealing the latter.



1,430,122. STEERING-GEAR ANTIRATTLER. ELMER L. SLOAN, Joplin, Mo. Filed Sept. 16, 1921. Serial No. 501,150. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—17.)

1. Means for preventing rattling at the point of connection of the steering spindle arm with the steering arm connecting rod yoke of a motor vehicle comprising a spring member formed from a single length of resilient wire coiled intermediate its ends to define a relatively long arm engageable against the upper side of the lower portion of the connecting rod yoke, said coil being disposed against one edge of the steering spindle arm, said wire member being bent to define an arm extending from said coil diagonally across the under side of the steering arm and further bent to define a second inclined arm extending diagonally across the top of the steering arm and terminating in a hook engaging upon the edge thereof.



1,430,123. CORNER FASTENING FOR BEDSTEADS. ROBERT R. SMITH, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Feb. 2, 1920. Serial No. 355,879. 3 Claims. (Cl. 5—55.)

1. In a bedstead, a corner-post and a main frame, in combination, corner-fastening members therefor and respectively secured thereto, the member secured to the main frame having a body part, a vertical face-plate thereon and a central vertical plate web projecting outwardly from said face-plate and formed on its opposite exposed side faces and at the outer vertical edge thereof with vertically extending and outwardly laterally projecting corresponding ribs whose lower inner edge surfaces incline downwardly and outwardly and constitute wedges and which plate web has its upper and lower ends projecting outwardly beyond said ribs to form upper and lower abutment edges located above and below said wedges and on a vertical plane outwardly from and centrally between the vertical planes of said ribs, said abutment edges being spaced from and independent of each other and leaving said side ribs freely exposed, and the member secured to the corner-post having a pair of spaced apart projecting parallel arms between which said web may be passed and which arms have on their outer ends inwardly projecting facing lugs adapted to receive behind them and enter into binding engagement with said rib wedges, and suitable abutment surfaces being present to receive said upper and lower projecting abutments on the web of the frame member.

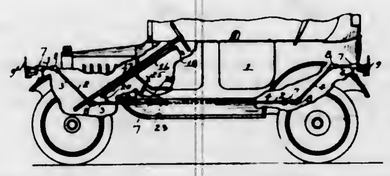
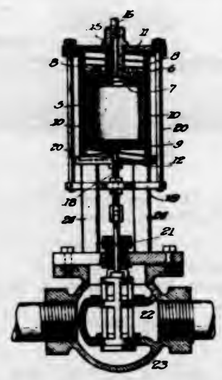
1,430,124. MACHINE FOR TREATING FRUIT. ALBERT ERNEST STANLEY, Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii, assignor to Hawaiian Pineapple Company, Limited, Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii, a Corporation of Hawaii. Filed May 8, 1922. Serial No. 559,389. 18 Claims. (Cl. 146—11.)



1. A machine for treating fruit, comprising a rotary sizing head, and means surrounding the head for trimming the meat from the shells.

1,430,125. COOKING STOVE. LINN B. SULLIVAN, Decatur, Ga. Filed Sept. 1, 1920. Serial No. 407,440. 3 Claims. (Cl. 126—1.)

1. A cooking stove or range having a combustion chamber, an oven, a top flue extending between the top of the oven and the stove top from the combustion chamber and having at its rear edge a direct outlet to the chimney exit and also communicating at its end with flues extending around the oven, a longitudinal flue strip fixed in said top flue, and a damper pivoted at one end at a point adjacent to the rear edge of the top flue and adapted to swing into a position parallel with the rear edge of the top flue to cover and close said direct outlet and to swing into a diagonal position across the rear portion of said top flue with its free end in cooperative relation with said flue strip.



1,430,126. DIRECTION-SIGNALING DEVICE FOR VEHICLES. CLAYTON VAN DYKE, Grand Rapids, Mich. Filed Apr. 6, 1922. Serial No. 549,987. 5 Claims. (Cl. 116—47.)

1. In a device of the character described; a rod having independently turnable and slidable movements; a signaling member turnable therewith and having also a swinging movement relatively thereto, and carrying a plurality of signals; said member being swingably movable by the rod in its sliding movement to display one of said signals and turnable with the rod in its turning movement to display another of said signals in a plurality of positions.

1,430,127. FLUID-PRESSURE CONTROLLER. VINCENT V. VEENSCHOTEN, Erie, Pa., assignor to Northern Equipment Company, Erie, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed July 29, 1918. Serial No. 247,113. 4 Claims. (Cl. 236—99.)

4. A controller comprising an elastic vessel having one end fixed and the other end free, a plate positioned adjacent the fixed end of said vessel and immovably connected with the free end of said vessel a second plate positioned adjacent the free end of said vessel and immovably connected with the fixed end of said vessel, a compression spring mounted between said plates and encircling said vessel, operating means connected to the free end of said vessel, and means for passing a fluid under pressure into said vessel.

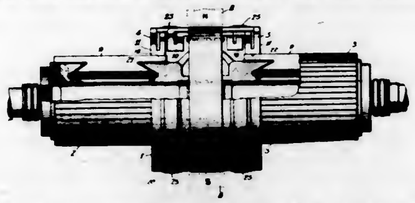
1,430,128. CONSTRUCTION OF AEROPLANES. RODOLFO VERDUZIO, Rome, Italy. Filed Oct. 16, 1920. Serial No. 417,436. 2 Claims. (Cl. 244—12.)

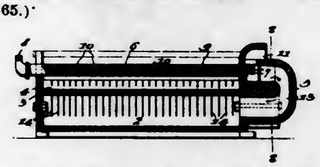
1. In an aeroplane, in combination with the fuselage and a wing brace structure including an upper and a lower wing plane, a pair of upwardly diverging struts on each side of the fuselage the lower ends of which are attached to said fuselage at a point intermediate said two planes and whose upper ends are attached to said upper plane.

1,430,129. GROMMET. JOHN VODICKA, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Cinch Fastener Corporation, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Nov. 8, 1920. Serial No. 422,637. 1 Claim. (Cl. 24—141.)



1. A grommet comprising a member having an approximately cylindrical, tubular neck, a dished portion and an outer raised rim forming an abrupt angle with the dished portion, and a second member comprising a concavo-convex portion, perforated to fit said neck, and having an annular shoulder adapted to be received within the rim of the first said member whereby the second member may be collapsed to expand the shoulder thereof radially to grip a fabric between said shoulder and the rim on the first said member.

1,430,130. ARMATURE WINDING. WALTER J. WARDER, Jr., Chicago, Ill.; Russell Warder Limbach, administrator of said Walter J. Warder, deceased. Filed Jan. 17, 1918. Serial No. 212,219. 2 Claims. (Cl. 171—206.)



1. An armature comprising two double layer windings with involute end connections adapted for connection to commutators upon opposite sides thereof, the coils of one winding having their connecting portions disposed in alternate slots relative to the slots housing the other winding and the involute end connecting portions of said windings being disposed in different planes.

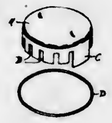
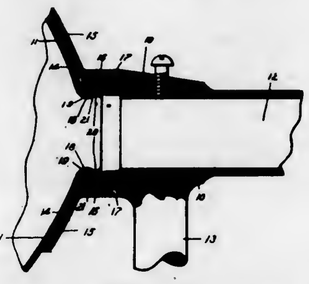
1,430,131. DOMESTIC OIL BURNER. CHARLES WARWICK, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, assignor to William R. Richardson, Vancouver, Canada. Filed May 23, 1921. Serial No. 471,870. 1 Claim. (Cl. 158—65.)



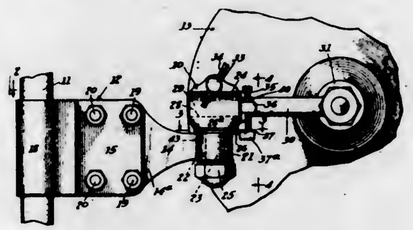
An oil fuel burner, comprising in combination, an elongated chamber apertured along its upper side as a burner, a vaporizing tube disposed medially along the upper side of the burner chamber and parallel therewith, said tube filled with a permeable heat conducting material, means for delivering oil fuel under pressure to one end of the vaporizing tube, means for delivering the vaporized oil through a fine aperture in the other end of the tube, a mixing chamber secured to the end of the burner chamber into which mixing chamber the end of the vaporizing tube is inserted, a duct delivering from adjacent the vaporizing tube end into the burner chamber, an air duct delivering from above into the mixing chamber adjacent the vaporizing tube end, and an air duct on each side opposite delivering into the mixing chamber adjacent the vaporizing tube end.

1,430,132. CAN-FEEDING APPARATUS. MARTIN E. WILBERTS, Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii, assignor to Hawaiian Pineapple Company, Limited, Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii. Filed Dec. 28, 1921. Serial No. 525,355. 3 Claims. (Cl. 198—22.)



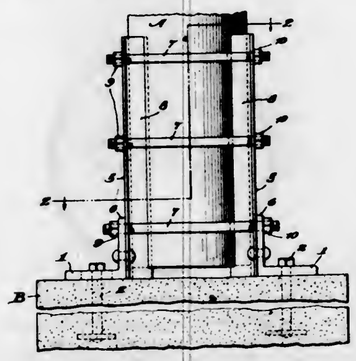
1. A feeding device for cans comprising a table having a flat conical top surface rotatable in a horizontal plane, stationary guard rails near the periphery thereof, and a guide rail cooperating with one guard rail to form a discharge for a continuous single row of contiguous cans.

1,430,133. BOTTLE CAP. GEORGE A. WILLIAMS, Decatur, Ill. Filed Mar. 4, 1920. Serial No. 363,107. 2 Claims. (Cl. 215—45.)



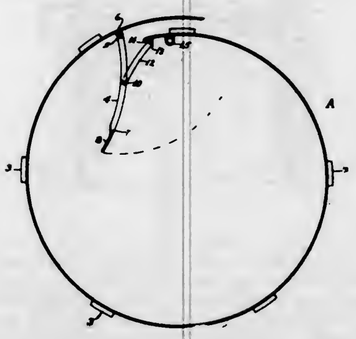
1. A bottle cap comprising a slotted skirt and a divided spring ring surrounding said skirt, the lower edges of said slotted portions being rolled about said ring, one of said portions being of greater dimensions than the other portion and rolled about and enveloping the meeting ends of the ring, said larger rolled portion projecting laterally from the skirt to provide a member for the application of pressure.

1,430,134. SPOTLIGHT. RALPH E. WILLIAMS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Nov. 26, 1919. Serial No. 340,919. 3 Claims. (Cl. 240—41.)



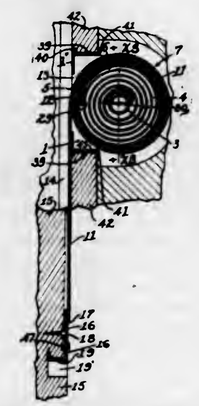
1. In a lamp, a mounting member having a grooved bore, and a reflector attached to the mounting member, the reflector having a neck swedged into the grooved portion of the bore of the mounting member.

1,430,135. REGULATING BRACKET FOR MOVABLE LIGHTS. RALPH E. WILLIAMS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Apr. 7, 1920. Serial No. 372,042. 5 Claims. (Cl. 240—7.)



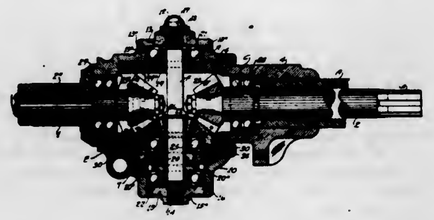
1. A lamp mounting comprising a stationary member forming a clamp body and a socket, a socket member having a trunnion rotatably carried in the socket formed by the stationary member, a lamp carrying member rotatably carried in the socket member, a pojection formed on the lamp carrying member, a member carried on the trunnion of the socket member and between the socket member and the stationary member, a pin extending from the stationary member to engage the member carried on the trunnion to hold it against movement relative to the stationary member, and a projection on the member carried on the trunnion adapted to co-operate with the projection on the lamp carrying member to limit the rotary movement of the lamp carrying member in the socket.

1,430,136. POLE MOUNTING. ROLLAND G. WILLIAMS, Bridgeport, Conn. Filed Jan. 5, 1922. Serial No. 527,179. 4 Claims. (Cl. 72—84.)



4. In a pole mounting, a base, supports thereon, opposed pole holding members seated at their lower ends on the base and engaged with said supports and having means to bite into the pole to hold the latter spaced above the upper face of the base, and means to secure the members to the pole.

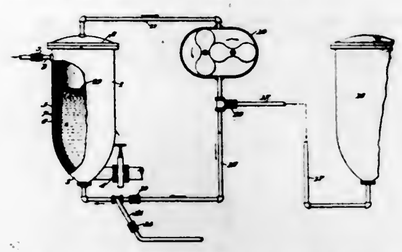
1,430,137. LOCKING ATTACHMENT FOR SPARE-TIRE HOLDERS. WEAVER WILSON and SAM PRICE, Wellington, Kans. Filed Feb. 4, 1921. Serial No. 442,445. 2 Claims. (Cl. 224—29.)



1. In combination, a solid ring-like tire holder as attached to the rear portion of an automobile, a tire casing arranged on a rim, said rim being arranged in position upon and surrounding said tire holder; a locking attachment comprising a split metallic band of lesser diameter than said tire holder arranged within and adjacent to said holder, lug elements rigidly arranged upon the periphery of said attachment with the flanges thereof extending upon the opposite sides of said tire holder; and means for contracting and expanding said split ring from or towards said tire holder, comprising a lever pivotally attached to the outer inner portion of said split ring, said lever having an end portion fashioned as a hasp, a link pivotally connecting to said lever and to the inner portion of the opposite end of said split ring, an eye rigidly positioned near the inner end portion of said split ring beyond the link and adapted to enter said hasp when the said split ring is expanded and means for securing said eye and hasp in a locking engagement.

1,430,138. SASH BALANCE. WILLIAM E. WREAD, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Armand Y. Belverge, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jan. 30, 1922. Serial No. 532,573. 9 Claims. (Cl. 16—198.)

2. A sash balance having a housing composed of a stamping bent to form side members, a fixed axle, a pulley comprising side members secured together to form a chamber and being adapted to revolve on said axle, flexible means connected to and wound upon said pulley and adapted at one end to be connected to a sash to be balanced, and means in said chamber adapted to revolve said pulley to take up the flexible connection.



1,430,139. DRIVING MECHANISM FOR VEHICLES. CLIFFORD H. YOUNG, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Mar. 21, 1921. Serial No. 454,125. 6 Claims. (Cl. 180—44.)

1. A driving mechanism for vehicles, comprising an axle housing provided at one end with a gear case, an oscillating wheel carrying member having portions that embrace parts of said gear case, a king pin consisting of a one piece spindle that extends vertically through said gear case and wheel carrying member, a thrust cap resting upon the top wall of said wheel carrying member and connected by screw threads to said king pin, a threaded member adjustably mounted in the underside of said wheel carrying member and connected to said king pin by screw threads, and friction reducing bearings arranged in concentric relation with said king pin and interposed between the gear case and said thrust cap and adjustably mounted member.

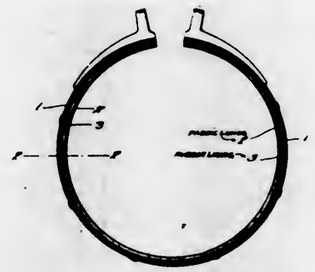
1,430,140. PROCESS OF AND APPARATUS FOR PRECIPITATING COPPER FROM SOLUTIONS. FRANCIS S. ADAMS, Anaconda, Mont. Filed July 20, 1920. Serial No. 397,655. 7 Claims. (Cl. 75—18.)

1. In the process of precipitating copper from hot solutions by sulfur dioxide, the step which consists in repeatedly passing sulfur dioxide gas through the solution.

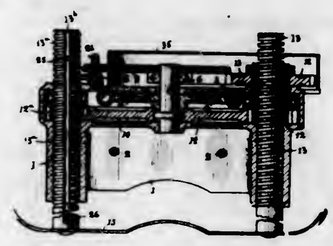
1,430,141. ACCELERATING PUMP FOR WATER-HEATING SYSTEMS. HARRY H. ANGUS, Toronto, Ontario, Canada, assignor to The Atlas Engineering & Machine Company, Limited, Toronto, Canada. Filed Apr. 7, 1920. Serial No. 372,078. 2 Claims. (Cl. 253—179.)



1. An accelerating pump for water heating systems, comprising a casing convergent at both ends, a rotor of conical shape centrally disposed in the intake end of the casing and having radial impeller vanes, a plurality of stationary radial vanes arranged at the inner end of the impeller to engage the water flowing from the impeller vanes, a central bearing supported within said casing back of the impeller, a shaft journalled in said bearing and supporting said impeller, and a journal bearing extending through the wall of the pump casing in alignment with said forward shaft bearing.

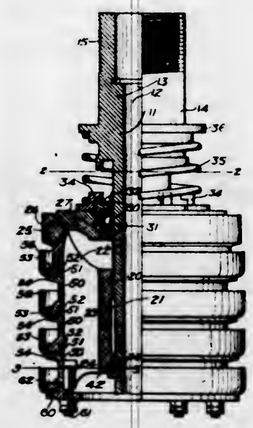
1,430,142. INSULATING AND ANTICORROSIVE PAINT AND METHOD OF MAKING SAME. CHARLES APPLETON and FORBES MCREA, Surf Inlet, British Columbia, Canada. Filed May 10, 1922. Serial No. 559,881. 5 Claims. (Cl. 134—52.)

2. A composition to be used as a paint consisting of the following ingredients, by weight: 5% of pine oil, 20% of beech wood creosote and 75% of coal tar mixed together.



5. A process for producing paint consisting in thoroughly mixing pine oil and beech wood creosote, then allowing the solution to stand for about 30 minutes until well assimilated, then adding coal tar and allowing the resulting fumes to pass off and then mixing all the ingredients by agitation.

1,430,143. BRAKE BAND LINING FOR AUTOMOBILES, ETC. JOSIE C. BAREFOOT and AARON A. KNEE, Charlotte, N. C., assignors to Velvet Action Brake Lining Company, Mecklenburg County, N. C., a Corporation. Filed May 11, 1921. Serial No. 468,569. 3 Claims. (Cl. 188—259.)

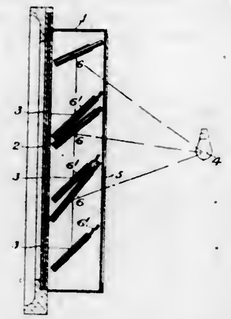


3. As a new article of manufacture, a brake band lining for attachment to a brake band or clutch element, said lining comprising a heavy fabric band member, and a resilient lining member of resilient substance, said resilient lining member being vulcanized to the inner surface of the fabric band element to which the lining is to be applied, and being of uniform thickness throughout.

1,430,144. JACK. HENRY BARON, Mayenne, France. Filed Sept. 21, 1920. Serial No. 411,840. 3 Claims. (Cl. 254—86.)

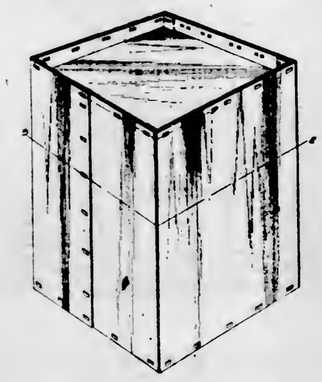
1. An automatic lifting device or jack for motor vehicles, characterized in that an endless screw controlled by the motor is in engagement with a tooth-wheel mounted on a central spindle which carries a small pinion in engagement with another which, in turn, engages with a third, these latter two being loose in a disconnecting head, the movement of which makes it possible to actuate in one direction or the other two lifting screws each controlled by a pinion that forms a nut and is firmly connected with a pinion which is operated by the one or the other pinion of the uncoupling and reversing head, the two nut-pinions being of equal diameter and each engaging with a tooth-wheel mounted loosely on the central spindle, so that the two lifting screws move together and at the same speed.

1,430,145. BUCKET FOR DEEP-WELL PUMPS. ARCHILLES A. BARTON, Glendale, Calif. Filed Nov. 25, 1919. Serial No. 340,936. 3 Claims. (Cl. 103—68.)



3. In a pump, the combination of: a structure; a series of rings slidably mounted on said structure, each ring having a lip fitting inside an adjacent ring; and cup leathers on said lips between said rings.

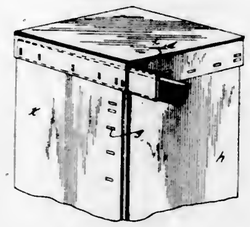
1,430,146. SAND TRAP FOR OIL-WELL PUMPS. SAMUEL W. BATEMAN, El Dorado, Ark. Filed Apr. 7, 1922. Serial No. 550,553. 3 Claims. (Cl. 103—220.)



1. A sand separator for a pump structure comprising the combination with separated section of the pump barrel, of connected pipe sections between the sections of said barrel, a depending frusto-conical member within said connected pipe sections, a tube extended upwardly from said depending frusto-conical member, a valve mounted on said tube, a funnel member mounted in said connected pipe sections below said depending frusto-conical member, a sand return pipe depending from said funnel member, and perforated pipe sections surrounding said depending sand return pipe.

1,430,147. ILLUMINATED SIGN OR ADVERTISEMENT. WEBSTER JOHN BEVILLE, London, England. Filed May 17, 1921. Serial No. 470,284. 3 Claims. (Cl. 40—132.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)

1. An illuminated sign, comprising a source of light, a casing having an illuminable sign-bearing face, a fluted reflecting member adapted to receive the light from said source, and a second fluted reflecting member adapted to receive said light from said first reflecting member and reflect it on to said sign-bearing face, the flutings of said first reflecting member extending transversely of the member and the flutings of said second reflecting member extending at right-angles thereto.



1,430,148. METHOD OF SEALING FIBER SHIPPING CASES. HERBERT R. BLISS, Niagara Falls, N. Y. Filed July 3, 1920. Serial No. 393,825. 2 Claims. (Cl. 93—2.)

2. The method of constructing and sealing a recessed end fiber shipping case, which comprises folding a rectangular blank to form the bottom and two side walls and the overlapping top flaps, slotting a pair of rectangular end blanks at the corners and scoring each with a single rectangular scoring figure parallel with the four edges to form with the said slots four flanges, the setting of the end blanks the complete depth of the flanges into the folded main body blank and causing the free edges of the flanges to register with the edges at the end of the main body blank, the running of a line of stitches through the flanges and the ends of the bottom and side walls, and sealing the case by taking a continuous H run of stitches on the overlapping cover flaps in which the center bar of the H runs along parallel with and near the meeting edges of the flaps and the two uprights of the H run along the ends of the flaps and through the flanges of the end blanks.

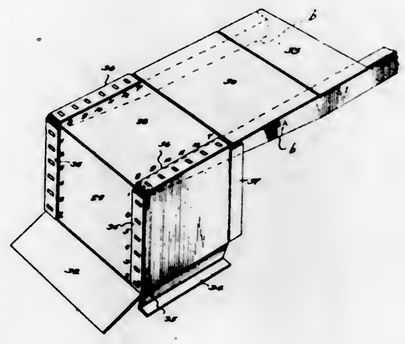
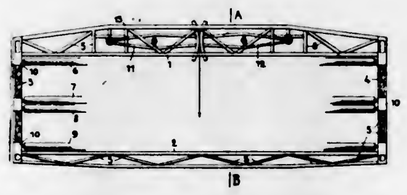
1,430,149. SHIPPING CASE. HERBERT R. BLISS, Niagara Falls, N. Y. Filed Nov. 15, 1920. Serial No. 424,060. 6 Claims. (Cl. 229—43.)

3. In a shipping case constructed of fiber or equivalent material, a body portion having side walls united to form a container and provided with a plurality of slots at the corners at the sealing end of the body, and a flanged cover fitting over the sealing end of the body, said flanges being secured to the body by metallic fasteners driven into the flanges from the outside and clinched on the inside of the body by an anvil withdrawable through the slots at the corners.



1,430,150. WIRE-STITCHING MACHINE. HERBERT R. BLISS, Niagara Falls, N. Y. Filed Sept. 24, 1921. Serial No. 502,966. 10 Claims. (Cl. 1—11.)

1. In a machine for the purpose specified, the combination of a pair of stitching heads, a pair of anvils supported below the stitching heads, the anvils and stitching heads being spaced apart to accommodate themselves to the length of a shipping case, means for synchronously operating the drivers of the stitching heads, a reciprocating table on which the work is carried, and means yieldingly tending to urge the sliding table forward.



1,430,151. METHOD OF CONSTRUCTING FIBER SHIPPING CASES. HERBERT R. BLISS, Niagara Falls, N. Y. Filed Sept. 24, 1921. Serial No. 502,967. 7 Claims. (Cl. 93—42.)

1. The method of constructing a fiber shipping case out of a scored body blank and end blanks with flaps, which consists in holding the end blanks so that each end blank has one flap overlapping the opposite ends of the same wall of the body blank, simultaneously stitching such flaps to the wall of the body blank, second, folding the body blank and end blanks to bring another pair of flaps of the end blanks in overlapped relation at the opposite end of the succeeding wall of the scored body blank and simultaneously stitching said two flaps to such wall, and third, folding the body blank and the end blanks to bring a third pair of flaps of the end walls in overlapped relation to the third succeeding wall of the body blank and simultaneously stitching the said pair of flaps to such third wall of the body blank.

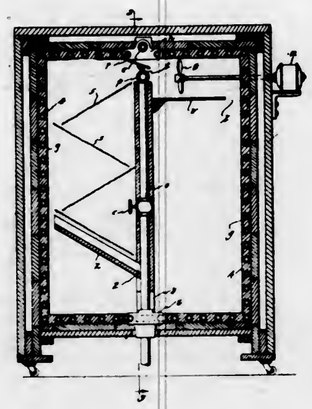
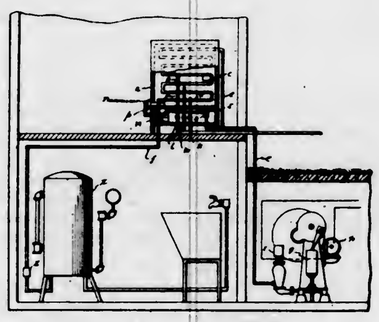
1,430,152. FABRIC FRAME FOR SEVERAL-NEEDLE EMBROIDERING MACHINES. MAX RICHARD BRETSCHNEIDER, Plauen, Germany. Filed Sept. 22, 1921. Serial No. 502,490. 1 Claim. (Cl. 112—90.)



In several-needle embroidery machines a fabric frame composed of girders consisting of pipe parts of oval section, joined by means of welding, the long axis of the oval section of each of said pipe-parts being arranged transversely to the plane of said frame, substantially as described.

1,430,153. REFRIGERATING APPARATUS. LLOYD G. COPEMAN, Flint, Mich., assignor to Edwin W. Atwood, Flint, Mich. Filed July 18, 1921. Serial No. 485,411. 7 Claims. (Cl. 62—6.)



1. In refrigerating apparatus, the combination of a box provided with a cooling chamber, a plurality of coils for circulating water through the walls of said box and having a connection with the service line to cause circulation through said coils when water is drawn for service purposes, and means for wasting water drawn through said coils in said box through a spray delivered into said cooling chamber, substantially as described.

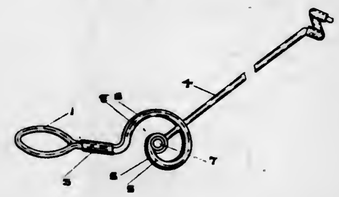
1,430,154. REFRIGERATING APPARATUS. LLOYD G. COPEMAN, Flint, Mich., assignor to Edwin W. Atwood, Flint, Mich. Filed July 18, 1921. Serial No. 485,412. 8 Claims. (Cl. 62—6.)

8. In refrigerating apparatus, the combination of a box arranged to hold water, a plurality of coils for circulating water through said box, means for supplying cold water to said coils, a plurality of controllable outlets for maintaining a body of water at a selectable level in the bottom of said box, and a controllable waste for wasting water derived from said supplying means in the bottom of said box.



1,430,155. FERTILIZER DISTRIBUTOR. WILLIE C. CAGLE, Hemingway, S. C. Filed Oct. 17, 1921. Serial No. 508,158. 1 Claim. (Cl. 111—76.)

A fertilizer distributor comprising a frame having upwardly and rearwardly extending handles, cross members between the handles, a hopper on the frame, pivoted doors in the hopper, pins carried by one of the cross members, bars pivotally connected to the doors and slidable between the cross members, said bars having openings for reception of the pins and being resilient to maintain engagement with the pins, a second slidable bar mounted on the cross members, flexible elements connected to the second bar, pivoted bottoms in the hopper and connected with the flexible elements.

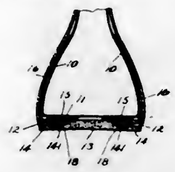
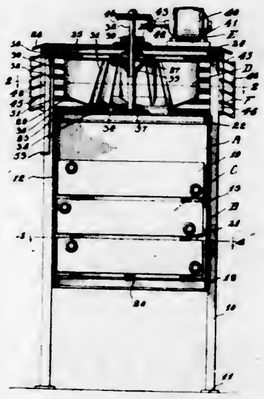
1,430,156. LAMP-SHADE-TILTING DEVICE. ARCHIBALD STANNARD CUBITT, London, England. Filed Dec. 27, 1919. Serial No. 347,689. 7 Claims. (Cl. 240—88.)



1. The combination of a socket holder having a resilient member terminating in a pivot bearing, and a conductor engaging bar pivoted in said bearing and frictionally engaging the resilient member at points remote from the bearing.

1,430,157. METHOD OF MAKING TURN SHOES. MILTON L. DODGE, Newburyport, Mass. Filed Dec. 22, 1919, Serial No. 346,543. Renewed Aug. 15, 1922. Serial No. 582,069. 6 Claims. (Cl. 12—142.)



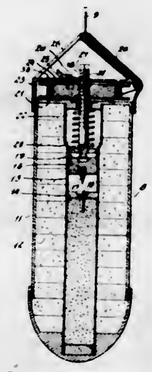
1. The method of making a turned shoe, which consists of taking a blank of flexible material treated with a stiffening agent adapted to be softened, shaping it into approximately the shape desired, locating the same in the toe of the shoe, softening the stiffening agent, shaping the box upon a last of the desired shape inserted into the shoe, and allowing the box to harden and then withdrawing the last.

1,430,158. COUNTER STIFFENER. MILTON L. DODGE, Newburyport, Mass. Filed May 25, 1918, Serial No. 236,497. Renewed Aug. 15, 1922. Serial No. 582,070. 3 Claims. (Cl. 36—68.)

1. As a new article of manufacture, a molded counter stiffener, comprising a side wall, and an inwardly-projecting heel-seat flange integral therewith, the material of the flange adjacent said wall being depressed to form a downwardly-projecting rib.

1,430,159. HEATING APPARATUS. WILLIAM F. DOERFLING, Galt, Ontario, Canada. Filed Apr. 4, 1921. Serial No. 458,580. 8 Claims. (Cl. 257—137.)

1. In a heating or cooling apparatus, a casing, a partition disposed adjacent to the upper end of the casing having an axial opening therein a temperature changing means disposed within the casing adjacent to one end thereof, a vertically disposed fan wheel arranged in the casing on the opposite side of the partition from the temperature changing means to draw the air from around said temperature changing means to discharge the same tangentially to the periphery of the fan wheel, an annular flange formed on the partition wall around the opening in the partition, and a flange of annular configuration formed on the fan wheel arranged to engage the first mentioned flange.



1,430,160. APPARATUS FOR COOLING BREAD AND FOR SIMILAR OPERATIONS. GUSTAV BERNHARD EGGERT, Saginaw, Mich., assignor to Baker-Perkins Manufacturing Corporation, Saginaw, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Dec. 20, 1921. Serial No. 523,692. 20 Claims. (Cl. 198—157.)

1. In an apparatus of the kind described, in combination a pair of parallel endless chains arranged in zigzag fashion, a plurality of trays carrying the articles through the apparatus, each tray consisting of a light and wide front part forming the platform, on which these articles rest, and a narrow back part supporting the front part and so heavy and so arranged in regard to the latter as to place the center of gravity of the tray considerably nearer to the end of its back part than to that of its front part, short shafts revolubly mounted in the said chains, vertically to their course and fixed, one to each side of each of the said trays at such points above their center of gravity that, when in equilibrium, the said trays are in an inclined position frontpart upwards, the distance of the axis, round which the said trays turn, from the end of their front-part being greater than that from the end of their backpart, sprocket wheels on which the said chains run, and shafts having the said sprocket wheels affixed thereto and revolubly mounted in stationary supports, those of the said sprocket wheels situated at the points, where the frontparts of the said trays moving round the same face the said shafts, having in proportion to the difference of the above distances larger diameters than those situated at the points, where their barkparts face the same.

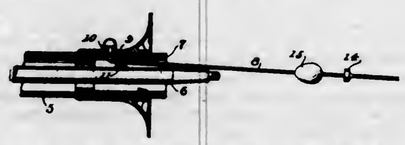
2. The combination of a mine which sinks when released in the water, a buoy, a flexible connection from the buoy to the mine, a reel in the mine with which the flexible connection cooperates, a threaded member which is moved axially by the rotation of the reel, a firing mechanism for the mine controlled by the axial movement of the threaded member, and means for adjusting the threaded member and the reel relatively to establish any one of a plurality of relations between them so as to regulate the depth at which the mine will be exploded; substantially as described.

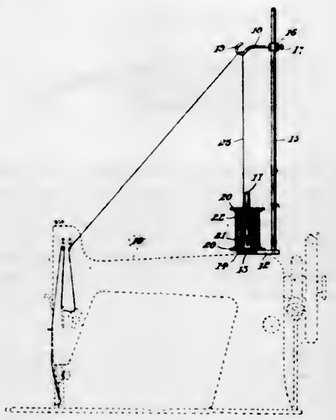
1,430,162. APPARATUS FOR DETECTING AND INDICATING THE PRESENCE OF SUBMARINE BOATS. GIOVANNI EMANUELE ELIA, New York, N. Y. Filed June 26, 1917. Serial No. 177,039. 8 Claims. (Cl. 114—240.)



1. Apparatus for detecting and indicating the presence of submarine boats comprising the combination of a plurality of net sections adapted to be submerged in the sea to constitute a net barrier, a series cable submerged in the sea below the net sections, independent connections from each net section to the series cable each having a weakened portion therein, a plurality of bouyant automatic signalling devices, one for each net section, each connected to the series cable so as to lie between that cable and the lower edge of the overlying net section and intermediate the ends of that net section and means operated automatically when any net section is engaged and carried away by a submarine boat for releasing the corresponding bouyant automatic signalling device to permit that device to rise to the surface and transmit its signal; substantially as described.

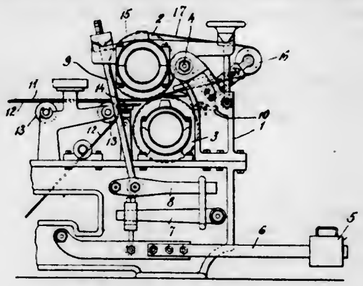
1,430,163. PROCESS FOR IMPARTING TRANSPARENT EFFECTS TO COTTON. HEINRICH FORSTER, Bruggen, Switzerland, assignor of one-half to Conrad Forster, Dedham, Mass. Filed Sept. 21, 1920. Serial No. 411,849. 8 Claims. (Cl. 8—20.)

1. The process of imparting transparent effects to cotton which consists in subjecting the cotton to treatment with successive parchmentizing reagents under different conditions of operation and thereafter mercerising the cotton.



6. The process of imparting transparent effects to cotton which consists in subjecting the cotton to treatment first with sulphuric acid below 50½° Baumé, then with sulphuric acid above 50½° Baumé and then with concentrated caustic alkali.

1,430,164. BEARING-SLEEVE EXTRACTOR. FRANK C. HANEY, Powell, Wyo. Filed Aug. 22, 1921. Serial No. 494,185. 1 Claim. (Cl. 29—88.2.)

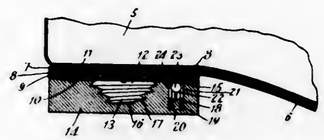


A tool of the character described comprising a bar having a work engaging finger on one end thereof, said finger extending to one side of the tool, a supporting member carried by said tool adjacent the work engaging finger, an anvil element carried by the opposite end of the tool in spaced relation to said last mentioned end to provide a handle and a hammer element slidable on the tool between the supporting member and the anvil whereby the tool and work are moved in accordance with the blow delivering movement of the hammer element.

1,430,165. SEWING-MACHINE ATTACHMENT. FRANCES HEINDRICH and JULIUS GLUCK, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 8, 1921. Serial No. 490,596. 2 Claims. (Cl. 242—140.)

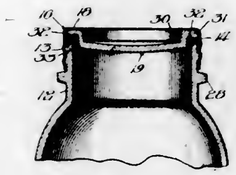
1. An attachment to sewing machines comprising an elongated base bar having an opening at one end attached to fit on the spool receiving pin of a sewing machine, a set screw passing through said bar into said opening to engage and hold the same on said pin, a standard extending upward from the opposite end of the bar, a sleeve slidable and rotatable on the upper end of said standard, a set screw extending through the said sleeve and engaging said standard to hold the sleeve in adjusted position, an arm projecting outward from said sleeve, and a thread guide hook formed on the outer end of said arm.

1,430,166. STRIPPING MEANS FOR PRESSURE ROLLS. HAROLD HINCKLEY, Bangor, Me. Filed Oct. 26, 1921. Serial No. 510,449. 9 Claims. (Cl. 92—49.)



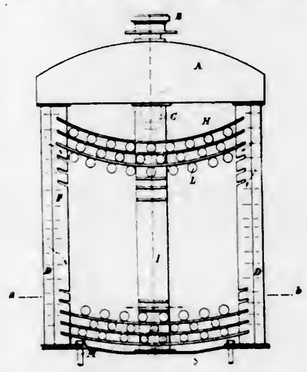
1. In a wet machine, the combination of a pair of pressure rolls, a circumferential groove in the face of one of the rolls, and a guide in said groove at the point where the two rolls contact, said guide extending tangentially beyond the rolls.

1,430,167. METHOD OF TREATING AND RESTORING USED STORAGE BATTERIES. MARSHALL E. HUNT, Belle Plaine, Iowa. Filed Nov. 4, 1921. Serial No. 512,926. 3 Claims. (Cl. 204—29.)



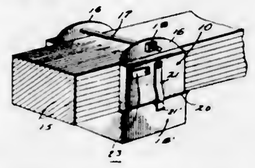
2. The herein described method of treating and restoring used storage batteries, consisting in subjecting the positive and negative plates to heat of different degrees.

1,430,168. FASTENING DEVICE FOR DETACHABLE SHOE HEELS. LOUIS IANNELLE, Newton, Mass. Filed Aug. 8, 1921. Serial No. 490,449. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—216.)



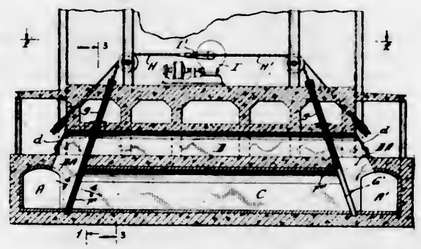
1. In combination, a plate provided with a projection formed integral therewith, and a spring clip and embodying therein a plurality of resilient fingers adapted to spring into engagement with said projection upon said plate, said clip being provided with a plurality of longitudinally extending grooves upon the outer surface thereof, said clip also being provided with a plurality of screw-threads upon the interior thereof.

1,430,169. RECEPTACLE CLOSURE. CHARLES R. KEERAN, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 2, 1918. Serial No. 209,976. 3 Claims. (Cl. 215—40.)



1. In combination with an open mouth receptacle, a closure consisting of a cap provided with an annular depending shoulder and with a gasket seat bounded by the shoulder on one side and by the peripheral edge of the cap on the other, the cap seat being formed with an annular channel adjacent the shoulder, there being a passage leading from the channel to the inner face of the cap, a gasket arranged for positioning upon the seat provided on the cap, the cap and gasket being adapted to fit over the receptacle mouth to form a closure therefor, substantially as described.

1,430,170. RADIATOR FOR MOTOR CARS AND THE LIKE. ALEXANDRE LAMBLIN, Paris, France. Filed Oct. 5, 1920. Serial No. 414,887. 2 Claims. (Cl. 257—125.)



1. In a radiator for thermal motors, cooling elements comprising flat tubes through which the water to be cooled circulates, three conduits for the inflow and the outflow of the water, the cooling elements being fixed at three points near their base to the three conduits, and means for securing the connection between the cooling elements and the water conduits.

1,430,171. LUBRICATING ATTACHMENT FOR SPRINGS. DAVID L. LAWSON, Orby, Calif. Filed Dec. 9, 1921. Serial No. 521,176. 4 Claims. (Cl. 154—1.)

1. A leaf spring lubricating attachment, comprising a U-shaped member adapted to be fitted upon a leaf spring construction, the leg portions thereof being channeled shaped on inner side and extending below the bridge portion, a wick within each leg portion and extending through an opening in the bridge portion so that the lower ends of said wick may depend below the bridge portion, and a removable lubricating pan fitted upon the extended portions of said legs.

1,430,172. REVERSING VALVE FOR REGENERATIVE FURNACES. CHARLES V. MCINTIRE, East Orange, N. J., assignor of one-third to Louis Wilputte and two-thirds to Alice A. Wilputte, both of New Rochelle, N. Y. Filed Oct. 4, 1919, Serial No. 328,521. Renewed Feb. 16, 1922. Serial No. 537,124. 2 Claims. (Cl. 202—4.)

1. In a regenerative coke oven having distributing channels extending longitudinally of the oven battery and connected to the regenerators thereof, the improved means for supplying air under pressure, and for withdrawing products of combustion from said distributing channels which comprise a pair of conduits extending transversely of the oven structure and arranged one above the other, a pair of reversing valves spaced apart longitudinally of said conduits and each movable from one position in which it closes one of said conduits to a second position in which it closes the other of said conduits, means for supplying air under pressure to one of said conduits between said valves, and a products of combustion outlet opening from the other conduit between said valves.

1. A hair cutting tool comprising a handle having a chamber formed therein, a guard plate projecting rigidly from said handle and including a plurality of spaced teeth of uniform length, a reciprocatory cutter mounted upon said plate and provided with teeth capable of registering with the teeth of said plate, certain of the teeth of said cutter being of substantially the same length as the teeth of said guard plate, the remaining teeth of said cutter being appreciably shorter than the teeth of said guard plate, and mechanism situated within the chamber of said handle and capable of effecting the reciprocation of said cutter.

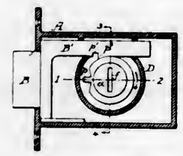
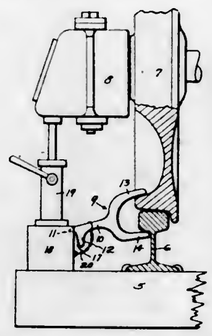
1,430,174. PRESSURE GAUGE. AMOS S. MARCHUS, Oakland, Calif. Filed June 28, 1919. Serial No. 307,278. 3 Claims. (Cl. 73—111.)

1. The combination of a hollow block having a part projecting therefrom adapted to impinge against the needle of a tire valve to open said valve and apertured to permit air to flow from the tire into said block, a plunger in said block arranged to move by the pressure of the air flowing into said block, said block having a longitudinal slot in a side thereof, a slide piece having a neck extending through said slot, one part of said slide piece being arranged to be engaged by said plunger to be moved thereby, a portion of the slide piece outside the block being in the form of a rack, a pinion rotated by said rack, and a rotatable device rotated by said pinion to indicate the movement of the plunger.



1,430,175. MUTE. PETER MAZZERI, Omaha, Nebr. Filed July 9, 1921. Serial No. 483,543. 2 Claims. (Cl. 84—400.)

1. The combination with a wind instrument having a bell, of a muting device for said instrument, said device comprising a lever pivoted on said bell, a spherical member carried by said lever, a lever pivoted on the instrument at a point removed from the bell, a connecting rod between said last named lever and the bell carried lever and spring means for normally holding said spherical member out of registration with the end of the bell.



1,430,176. LOCK. DANIEL K. MILLER, deceased, late of Philadelphia, Pa., by Marguerite G. Campbell, executrix, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed May 27, 1918. Serial No. 236,942. 10 Claims. (Cl. 70—46.)

2. A lock in which are combined a tumbler carrier, a set of tumblers having a positive movement, a set of tumblers the movement of which is due to frictional contact with the positive tumblers, and which are moved towards the bitted face of the key by such contact a device independent of said tumbler carrier whereby the movement of the positive tumblers is effected, and a bolt the movement of which is dependent upon the adjustment of the tumblers, said bolt being distinct from the tumbler carrier.

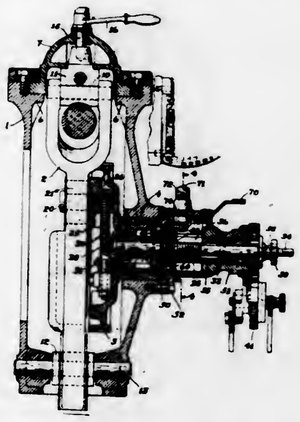
1,430,177. WHEEL CLAMP. BLAGOYE D. MITSAREFF, Wolf Point, Mont. Filed Oct. 3, 1921. Serial No. 504,916. 2 Claims. (Cl. 254—33.)

1. In a device of the character described the combination with a clamp having a forked inner end adapted to embrace the ball of a rail and the flange of a car wheel and having a longitudinally projecting prong at its outer end, of a wooden jack block adapted to be penetrated by said prong and a jack adapted to rest upon said block and hold said block in place when said jack is in action.

1,430,178. RAILWAY-TRACK CROSSING. DANIEL O'HERN, Joliet, Ill. Filed Apr. 22, 1922. Serial No. 556,066. 2 Claims. (Cl. 246—463.)

1. In a railway crossing the combination of a pair of continuous rails extending through said crossing, a plurality of intersecting rails forming an intersecting track, the ends of said intersecting rails terminating adjacent the continuous rails and a plurality of curved bars connecting the ends of said intersecting rails to said continuous rails.

1,430,179. DREDGE HULL. WILLIAM H. OWENS, Evans City, and JOHN L. TAYLOR, West View, Pa. Filed Mar. 11, 1922. Serial No. 542,941. 5 Claims. (Cl. 114—77.)



1. A hull comprising a plurality of pontoon members, each of said members being composed of bottom, end and side framing having suitable plating rigidly secured thereto, and a plurality of trusses extending in a fore-and-aft direction the entire length of the hull and adapted to rigidly connect said pontoons together, said trusses each being composed of top and bottom chords, a plurality of vertical posts and a plurality of diagonal bracing members.

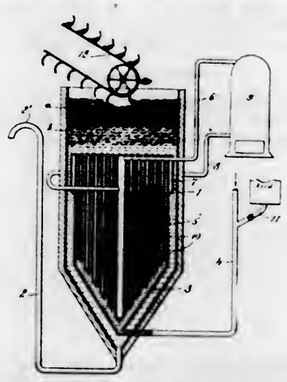
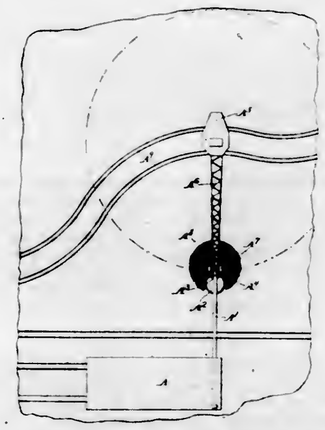
1,430,180. METAL SHAPER. ALBERT W. PARKES, Dundas, Ontario, Canada, assignor to Niles-Bement-Pond Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 10, 1920. Serial No. 387,935. 7 Claims. (Cl. 90—39.)



1. In a shaper having a ram and an oscillating link, an adjustably mounted crank pin to vary the stroke of said link and ram, means for adjusting the position of said crank pin, an indicator dial, a pointer movable over said dial, a screw threaded portion on said crank pin adjusting means, and means engaging said screw thread to position said pointer whereby the position of the pointer relative to said dial indicates the stroke for which the shaper is adjusted.

1,430,181. SETTLING TANK. WILLIAM HESSER PAVITT, Jr., Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor of one-third to Louis Wilputte and two-thirds to Alice A. Wilputte, both of New Rochelle, N. Y. Filed May 16, 1919. Serial No. 297,511. 5 Claims. (Cl. 196—1.)

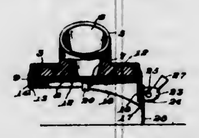


1. The combination with a settling tank of a cleaning member pivoted to swing back and forth through said tank about a horizontally disposed axis, the bottom of said tank being curved to closely conform to the path of the cleaning member, except adjacent one end of said path, where it diverges from said path.

1,430,182. DEHYDRATING ACTIVATED SLUDGE. CHARLES LEE PECK, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Dorr Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 17, 1921. Serial No. 453,187. 35 Claims. (Cl. 71—8.)

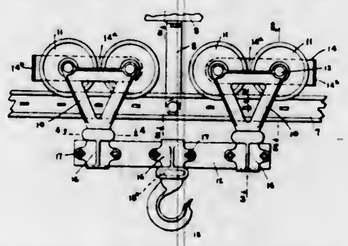
1. The method of dehydrating activated sludge which comprises acidifying the sludge under conditions resulting in gas evolution until it is slightly acid to methyl orange indicator and thereby causing levitation of solid matter in the sludge, permitting the levitated solid matter to accumulate and form a floating mass of which a considerable part is above the liquor level of the sludge, and withdrawing solid matter to the desired extent from that portion of the floating mass which is above the liquor level of the sludge.

1,430,183. PROCESS OF HANDLING COAL. JOHN H. D. PETERSEN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Link-Belt Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 12, 1918. Serial No. 249,467. 10 Claims. (Cl. 214—152.)



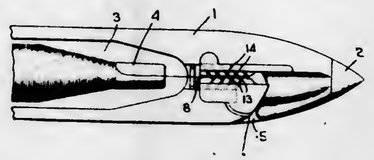
1. The method of handling and storing mixed materials of various grades which consists in conveying the mixed materials to a distribution point, grading the material at that point, conveying one grade of material to the point of use, simultaneously, conveying another grade of material toward a storage place, discharging it by gravity at an intermediate point, moving it thence to the storage place, returning it from the storage place to the intermediate point, conveying it thence to the distribution point and thence with other material of similar grade to the point of use.

1,430,184. METHOD OF MANUFACTURE OF PHENOLS AND THE LIKE. RAPHAEL POCIUS, Phoenixville, Pa. Filed July 17, 1920. Serial No. 397,004. 11 Claims. (Cl. 260—154.)



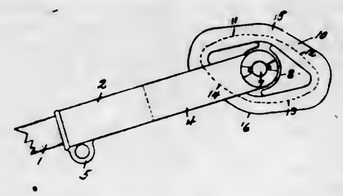
1. The improvement in the art of manufacturing products in which an OH group is introduced by fusion with caustic in excess of the quantity of such caustic which is used up in the reaction, which improvement comprises concentrating the liquid containing the excess caustic, and reusing the same containing the accumulated product in a repetition of the process.

1,430,185. SOUND REPRODUCER. MORRIS S. RANKIN, Mount Ephraim, N. J. Filed May 12, 1921. Serial No. 468,889. 4 Claims. (Cl. 274—35.)



1. A sound-reproducer, comprising a stylus-bar formed of sheet-metal folded to provide a shank portion comprising a double thickness, the sides of said shank portion adjacent at one end being provided with oppositely extending fingers adapted to be secured to a vibratory diaphragm, while the opposite end portions of said shank thicknesses are extended laterally in opposite directions to provide a support for said stylus-bar, and said arms being provided with integral parallel extending ears adapted to receive between them a removable stylus, and means pivotally carried by and between said ears operative to removably retain said stylus in position.

1,430,186. CARRIER. ROBERT F. RASMUSSEN, Oshkosh, Wis., assignor to C. A. Libbey Company, Oshkosh, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Sept. 15, 1921. Serial No. 500,784. 4 Claims. (Cl. 105—152.)



2. A carrier of the class described comprising a pair of brackets, a roller mounted on each of said brackets, each bracket at its lower end having an annular flange, a load carrying member, a pair of clamping members fixed to said carrying member adjacent each end, said clamping members having annular grooves adapted to receive the flanges of said respective brackets, a second load carrying member having at its upper end an annular flange, and a pair of clamping members fixed to said first mentioned carrying member intermediate said first mentioned pairs of clamping members and having an annular groove adapted to receive the flange of said second mentioned carrying member, for the purpose described.

1,430,187. LOOM SHUTTLE. ALONZO E. RHOADES, Hopedale, Mass., assignor to Draper Corporation, Hopedale, Mass., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Feb. 28, 1922. Serial No. 539,970. 4 Claims. (Cl. 139—46.)

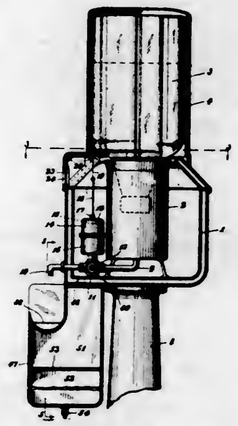
1,430,188. TROLLEY SHOE. HARRY A. RHOADS, Leetonia, Ohio. Filed Apr. 1, 1922. Serial No. 548,801. 2 Claims. (Cl. 191—59.1.)



1. In a device of the class described, comprising four wire engaging surfaces, said surfaces forming an outer groove, said wire engaging surfaces practically forming a substantially elliptical shaped perimeter, substantially as described for the purpose set forth.

1,430,189. LIQUID-VENDING MACHINE. JOSEPH RINALDI, New York, N. Y. Filed Sept. 15, 1919. Serial No. 323,850. 4 Claims. (Cl. 221—117.)

1. A liquid dispensing machine embodying a casing, provided with a sight opening, a liquid supply reservoir positioned within the casing, a duct leading from the supply reservoir to the exterior of the casing, a measuring receptacle associated with the duct and a valve cooperating with the duct for placing the measuring receptacle in communication with the supply reservoir or with the outlet end of the duct, in combination with a float controlled valve associated with the measuring receptacle for allowing the air to be expelled from said receptacle when liquid flows thereinto and to seal said receptacle against overflowing when the receptacle has been filled, an indicating member movable interiorly of the sight opening in the casing and operative connections between the indicator and the float operated valve, whereby the presence of liquid in the measuring receptacle may be visually indicated.

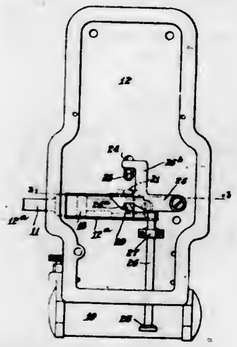
1,430,190. SHANK PIECE FOR SHOES. BENJAMIN Ross, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Aug. 12, 1921. Serial No. 491,726. 6 Claims. (Cl. 36—76.)

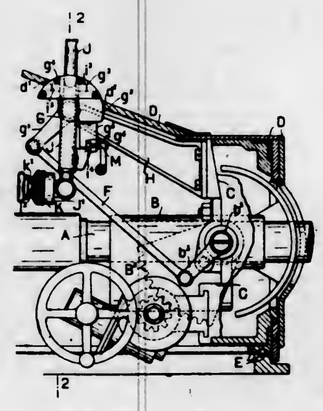
1. A shank piece for shoes, comprising a bearing plate adapted to be secured upon the heel portion interiorly of the shoe and having a part to protrude toward the shank of the shoe, a convexly curved yielding strip having one of its ends slidably pivoted to the protruding part of the bearing plate and its other end adapted to be held to the shank of the shoe to allow the pivoted end of the strip to slidably move lengthwise and move crosswise on top of the bearing plate, and the second end part of the strip having a laterally extending concaved portion.

1,430,191. TEAT CUP FOR MILKING MACHINES. NEALON D. RUTHERFORD, Lansing, Mich., assignor to United Engine Company, a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Apr. 26, 1920. Serial No. 376,528. 3 Claims. (Cl. 31—102.)



1. In a teat cup, the combination with a frangible body or bowl portion of substantially conical form, being provided with a circumferential bead at its larger end, a flexible teat engaging device held in position on the said frangible body portion or bowl by the said bead, the smaller end of the frangible body portion or bowl being provided with a perforated nipple adapted to form a union with the flexible connection, there being a grooved peripheral enlargement formed integrally on the exterior of said body portion or bowl intermediate the extremities thereof, and a circumferential member of flexible material in the said groove, the exterior peripheries of said circumferential flexible member and said teat engaging device lying in common planes, each wholly without the said frangible body portion or bowl of the teat cup, whereby to protect the said frangible body portion or bowl against contact should the cup forcibly contact with a plane hard surface.

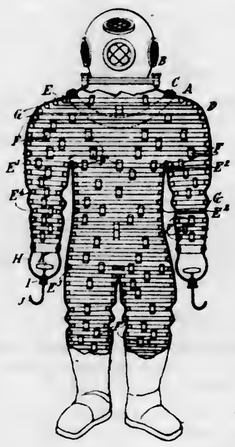
2. In a teat cup, the combination with a bowl being provided with a circumferential bead at one of its ends, a flexible teat engaging device held in position on the said bowl by the said bead, a diaphragm having a perforation at the approximate center thereof and a depending flange adapted to pass over said bead and embrace the outer walls of said bowl intermediate the inner wall of said teat engaging device and said bowl.



3. In a teat cup, the combination with a substantially conically shaped bowl having a circumferential bead at its larger end with a flexible teat engaging device adapted to engage said bead and a portion of the outer wall of said bowl, a diaphragm having a perforation at its approximate center and of dish-like formation, said diaphragm being provided with a skirt-like portion adapted to lie over said bead and embrace the upper portion of the said bowl intermediate the said bowl and the said teat engaging device.

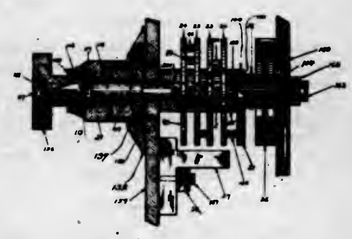
1,430,192. LOCKING DEVICE AND RELEASING MECHANISM FOR DOOR CHECKS. NEWTON L. SCHLOSS, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 27, 1920. Serial No. 433,209. 2 Claims. (Cl. 16—52.)

1. In means for controlling an electrically operated locking and releasing mechanism for a door check, the combination with an arcuately movable main arm having ratchet teeth and a cam surface, of a pivotally mounted pawl having one end movable into the path of the said ratchet teeth and the opposite end being provided with a projecting portion movable through a vertical plane in which the said cam is adapted to pass, and a pivotally mounted hook member movable longitudinally through the said vertical plane and provided with a forked free end, one arm of said fork being provided with a notch to receive the cam on the main arm and the other arm of the fork having an angular projection above the projecting portion of the pawl, whereby movement of the said pawl to engage with the ratchet teeth of the main arm will operate the hook member to disengage the notch from the said cam.



1,430,193. SIGHTING DEVICE FOR ARMORED PORTABLE GUNS. RICHARD SCHÜRMANN, Essen, Germany, assignor to Fried. Krupp Aktiengesellschaft, Essen-on-the-Ruhr, Germany. Filed Jan. 17, 1921. Serial No. 437,886. 6 Claims. (Cl. 33—48.)

1. In a transportable gun having an armored carriage and trunnions about the axis of which the gun barrel may be elevated, a sighting device arranged on said carriage and comprising a sighting telescope, a supporting member for said telescope mounted on the carriage to rotate about an axis disposed in parallel to the gun trunnions and carrying an arc-shaped head surrounding the telescope, the armour having an opening through which said head and telescope project, means for fixing the sighting line of the telescope in different angular positions to correspond to the range of the target, pivotal means for connecting the telescope to said supporting element, the axis of said pivotal means being arranged at right angles to the axis of rotation of said supporting element and adjustable in unison with said supporting element parallel to the direction to be given the bore of the gun barrel, and means for fixing the telescope in different angular positions with respect to the axis of said pivotal means whereby the influence exerted by an oblique position of the trunnions may be eliminated, the arc-shaped head of said supporting element closing the opening in said armour in any position imparted to the supporting element.



1,430,194. DIVING DRESS. MAXIMILIAN CHARLES SCHWEINERT, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 1, 1913, Serial No. 782,467. Renewed Feb. 27, 1922. Serial No. 539,773. 3 Claims. (Cl. 61—71.)

1. A diving dress having a series of circularly extended tubes connected with the dress proper, said tubes being constructed of flexible material with thick walls capable of withstanding a high internal pressure, and being adapted to be inflated to a high pressure to distend the tubes to ring-shape, the internal pressure holding said tubes in said ring-shaped position as against external pressure of the water, whereby to relieve the diver of pressure, and at the same time permit motion of the diver's limbs.

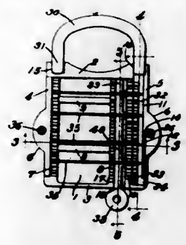
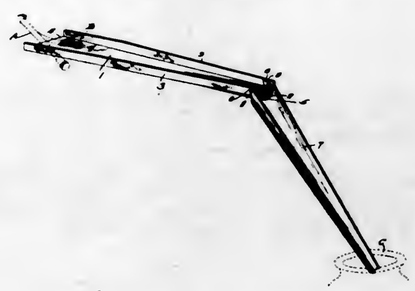
1,430,195. PERMUTATION LOCK. JOHN C. SHELLER, Janesville, Wis., assignor to Elias Segal and Leon Boruszak, both of Janesville, Wis. Filed Feb. 10, 1921. Serial No. 443,907. 8 Claims. (Cl. 70—53.)



1. In a permutation lock, a rotatable arbor having a sleeve mounted thereon, said sleeve carrying a series of notched tumbler disks, a second arbor geared to the first and having a second series of notched tumbler disks mounted thereon, means operable by the rotation of said sleeves for bringing the notches of the first series of disks into alignment, means operable by the rotation of said arbors for bringing the notches of the second series of disks into alignment, a knob slidably mounted on said first named arbor, means for clutching said knob with the arbor when slid outwardly, and means for clutching it with the sleeve when moved inwardly.

1,430,196. LOCK. CHARLES W. SNEDEKER, Kingston, N. Y. Filed Feb. 18, 1921. Serial No. 446,085. 4 Claims. (Cl. 70—108.)



4. A pad-lock comprising a case provided with spaced racks, and having a key-way; a tumbler rod extended transversely of the key-way, one end of the tumbler rod being received in one rack, and the other end of the tumbler rod being slidable in the other rack, the tumbler rod being shiftable in the racks to enable the lock to be opened by different keys; and a shackle having means wherewith the tumbler rod engages.

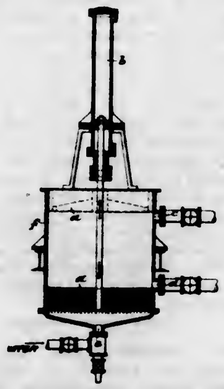
1,430,197. DRAINAGE DEVICE. FRANCIS M. SONDAY, Churubusco, Ind. Filed July 22, 1921. Serial No. 486,871. 2 Claims. (Cl. 137—111.)

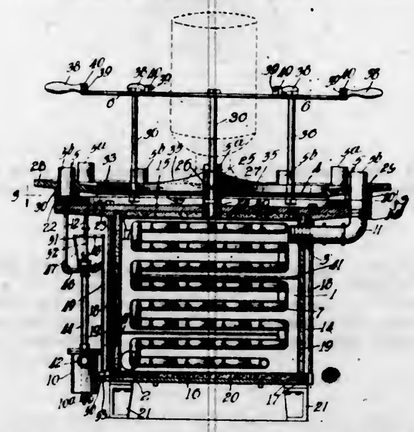
1. A drainage device for undertakers, comprising a metal trough widened at its receiving end and narrowed at its mouth and having upturned sides, said trough having slots in its upturned sides near its mouth, and a second trough positioned under the mouth of the first-mentioned trough and having hooked members releasably engagable in the slotted portions of the first mentioned trough and depending therefrom, substantially as shown.

1,430,198. APPARATUS FOR REMOVING OBJECTS FROM A LIQUID BODY. FRED STEBLER, Riverside, Calif. Filed July 13, 1921. Serial No. 484,305. 8 Claims. (Cl. 210—173.)



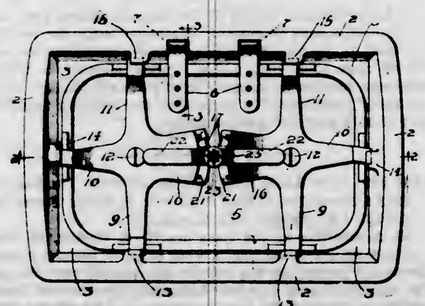
1. In an apparatus of the character described, rotary means to remove objects from a liquid body, a platform adjacent the rotary means and means operating to intermittently pitch the objects from said platform.

1,430,199. LUBRICATOR. OLOF SWANSON, Denver, Colo. Filed Mar. 27, 1920, Serial No. 369,231. Renewed Feb. 24, 1922. Serial No. 539,035. 10 Claims. (Cl. 184—3.)



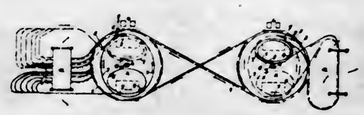
7. A lubricator comprising a casing adapted to contain lubricant, means to control the escape of lubricant therefrom, a chamber therebeneath into which said lubricant escapes, means in the bottom of said chamber for feeding said escaped lubricant to a wheel-flange, and a steam chamber disposed adjacent said lubricant chamber, there being a port between said steam chamber and said lubricant chamber for supplying a small amount of steam to the latter, said lubricant-feeding means comprising a pin loosely mounted in the lower end of the lubricant chamber, and along the sides of which the lubricant is adapted to flow.

1,430,200. PROCESS FOR PURIFYING SUGAR JUICES BY FILTRATION AND DECANTATION. FRITZ TIEMANN, Berlin-Wilmersdorf, Germany. Filed July 6, 1921. Serial No. 482,781. 4 Claims. (Cl. 127—2.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



1. A method for purifying sugar juices by filtration and decantation, comprising moving a body of filtering material through the stationary juices and squeezing out the juice contained in the sediment accumulated beneath the filter, removing the filtered juice left in the wake of said moving filter, and abruptly returning the filtering material at a relatively high velocity for removing the sediment accumulated within the filter and upon its lower surface.

1,430,201. CAN STERILIZING AND DRYING APPARATUS. THEODORE L. VALERIUS, Fort Atkinson, Wis., assignor to The Creamery Package Mfg. Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Oct. 8, 1917. Serial No. 195,475. 5 Claims. (Cl. 141—7.)



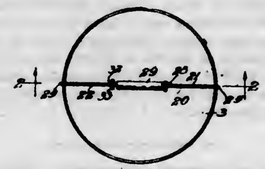
3. An apparatus of the character described having, in combination, a stationary circular supporting member substantially flat and having an annular peripheral upstanding flange, a rotary can supporting table provided with a peripheral annular portion having a continuous sliding contact with said flange, a series of discharge nozzles carried by said table and inwardly spaced from the periphery thereof, valve-controlled means for supplying a sterilising medium to said nozzles in the rotation of the table, said means including a pipe extending upwardly through the supporting member at one side thereof, and means for supplying a drying medium to said nozzle including a second pipe located substantially diametrically opposite the first mentioned pipe, said supporting member having an enlargement into which said second pipe extends and adapted to cooperate with said annular portion of the table to control the discharge of the drying medium from said second pipe.

1,430,202. LOCK FOR CHURN COVERS. THEODORE L. VALERIUS and OLAF LARSEN, Fort Atkinson, Wis., assignors to The Creamery Package Mfg. Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 6, 1918. Serial No. 220,734. 6 Claims. (Cl. 292—51.)

5. In combination, a churn body with an opening in one wall, a cover for closing said opening, a member movably positioned on said cover and comprising a plurality of arms rigid with reference to each other, certain of said arms being adapted to operatively engage with said wall to secure said cover in closed position, and gear means mounted on the cover in operative engagement with one of said rigid arms whereby said securing arms may be positively swung into and out of securing engagement with said wall.

1,430,203. AMUSEMENT RAILWAY. EGON FREIHERR VON TAUTPHOEUS, Munich, Germany. Filed June 20, 1921. Serial No. 478,915. 5 Claims. (Cl. 104—55.)

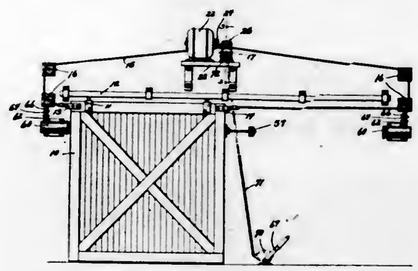
1. An amusement railway, comprising a main line having a loop therein, a plurality of circulatory auxiliary lines within said loop, and means for transferring cars from the auxiliary lines to the main line.



1,430,204. PENCIL. JAMES H. WARING, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor of one-half to Paul F. Schryer, Wauwatosa, Wis. Filed Feb. 28, 1921. Serial No. 448,318. 2 Claims. (Cl. 120—17.)

1. In a pencil, a casing, means movable within the casing for projecting the lead, a sleeve fitted upon one end of the casing and provided with an enlarged end, and a cap movable within the enlarged end of the sleeve and limited by said sleeve so as not to move beyond the end of said sleeve, said cap being operable for actuating said lead projecting means.

2. In a device of the class described, the combination of lead, a lead housing, a ring rigid therewith and having ball engaging surfaces, a group of balls, a ball retainer, a second ring, a second group of balls, said ring having ball engaging surfaces, a spring contacting with said second ring and said retainer, a second ball retainer, a lead guide rigid therewith, a housing for said spring, said rings, said balls, and said retainers limiting the movement of said first mentioned ring, and a casing enveloping said lead housing, said second mentioned housing and said lead guide.



1,430,205. EGG CRATE. ERNEST F. WILLMANN, Palatine, and WILLIAM KUERSTEN, Chicago, Ill. Filed July 25, 1921. Serial No. 487,408. 9 Claims. (Cl. 217—27.)

1. An egg crate comprising a casing having a removable cover, a spring supported transverse member in the lower part of the casing and a similar member in the top of the casing, the springs adapted to contact with the ends of the casing, a series of cellular sections arranged in a stack between the two flat members, and each of the cellular sections comprising a shallow tray, the tray substantially filled with vertical tubular members each adapted to contain one egg.

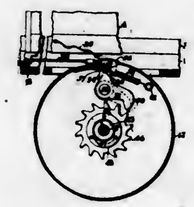
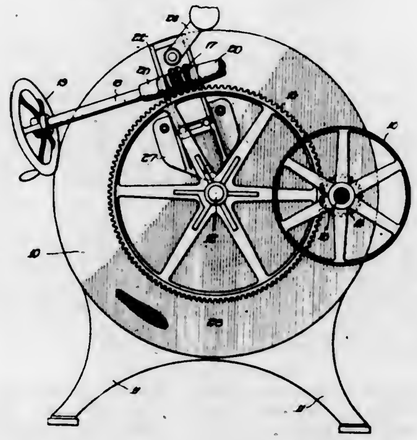
1,430,206. ELECTRIC DOOR-OPERATING MECHANISM. FOREST E. WILTERDING and NORMAN N. BUCK, Eau Claire, Wis., assignors to said Buck. Filed Apr. 26, 1921. Serial No. 464,587. 5 Claims. (Cl. 268—8.)

1. In combination, a slidable door, an electric motor operable when energized to successively open and close the door, a piston projecting laterally from the door, a dash pot in position to receive the piston when the door approaches the limit of its movement in that direction, and means operable by the entrance of the piston into the dash pot to interrupt the circuit through the motor.



1,430,207. MAP HOLDER. HENRY WOODHOUSE, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 25, 1919. Serial No. 273,049. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—16.)

A map holder comprising a yielding back adapted to be arched, retaining edges formed upon opposite sides of the back, said retaining edges forming longitudinal stiffening members, said retaining edges having open ends for the insertion of a map between the same, a strap having portions thereof secured to the retaining edges adapted for attaching the back to the arm or leg, and a retaining member adapted to extend between the said edges and press the map against the back.



1,430,208. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. EDWIN E. BARNEY, Newark, N. J., assignor to Remington Typewriter Company, Ilion, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 10, 1920. Serial No. 364,644. 16 Claims. (Cl. 199—62.)

1. In a typewriting machine, the combination with a carriage, a spring driven wheel and a strap by which said wheel propels said carriage, of a lock adapted to hold said wheel against turning to unwind its spring, one element of said lock constituting the means whereby said strap is connected with said wheel and said strap normally holding said lock out of action.

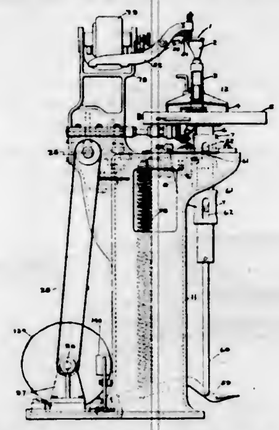
1,430,209. GEAR MECHANISM FOR LAUNDRY MACHINES. WILLIAM BARTHOLOMEW, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Troy Laundry Machinery Company, Ltd., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of New York. Filed Oct. 11, 1919. Serial No. 330,118. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—36.)



1. In laundry machinery of the class described, the combination of a gear operatively associated with the operating shaft of the machine, a gear member movable into and out of mesh therewith, and a bracket member in which said gear member is movably mounted, said bracket member being adjustable for correcting the meshing relationship of said gear and gear member.

1,430,210. INSOLE-ROUNDING MACHINE. CHARLES C. BLAKE, Brookline, Mass. Filed Aug. 8, 1916. Serial No. 113,722. 47 Claims. (Cl. 12—17.)

36. A machine of the class described, having, in combination, an operating tool, a work support, feeding means, means for correcting the relative position of the tool and the support during the feed including a leader for determining the path of the tool, mechanism for relatively shifting the tool and the work to cause the tool to traverse a detour coterminous with said path, a driving mechanism for the shifting mechanism, means on the leader for holding the driving mechanism inoperative, tripping devices on the leader for throwing the driving mechanism into operation, and connections between the leader and the driving mechanism, substantially as described.

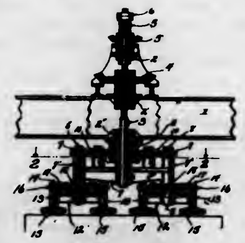
1,430,211. BELT FASTENER. JACOBUS JOHANNES BERNARDUS JOSEPHUS BOCVY (NICOLAASZOON), Dordrecht, Netherlands. Filed July 25, 1919. Serial No. 313,185. 3 Claims. (Cl. 24—33.)

3. A belt fastener comprising two pairs of pincers connected by a movable connecting piece, each pair of pincers comprising two stampings pivoted together, and the free arm of each pair being forked, and a locking bolt engaging the forked extremity of each pair of pincers and having its shaft enclosed and engaged by the forked extremities of the gripper arms which are bent toward each other for this purpose.

1,430,212. CALENDAR. LEWIS J. BRABANT, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed July 10, 1919. Serial No. 309,860. 6 Claims. (Cl. 40—109.)

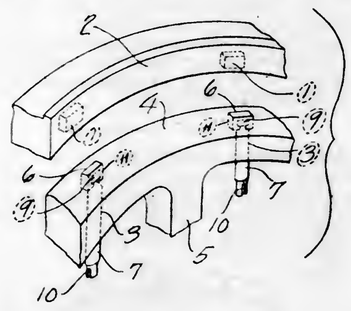


1. In a calendar, a slide having apertures, a second slide movable vertically thereon and having thereon a month group with the months classified in rows according to the number of days in them, each row of months having corresponding thereto a specially arranged and positioned row of figures, the distance between and relative position of corresponding rows being similar in each case so that they may show coincidentally through the apertures in the first named slide, said first named slide having thereon a date group of sufficient numerals to form a twenty-eight day month so that when a row of months show through one aperture, there will appear at further apertures following the figures 28 appropriate numerals extending the date group to 29, 30 or 31, as appropriate to the months shown, substantially as described.

1,430,213. VEHICLE WHEEL RIM. RICHARD S. BRYANT, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Standard Parts Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 11, 1914. Serial No. 823,981. 3 Claims. (Cl. 301—30.)

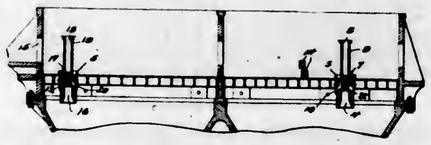
1. The combination with a transversely split tire-supporting rim, having a transversely disposed slot adjacent to, but spaced from, one end of said rim, such slot having its transverse face nearest such rim-end formed at an angle to the radius of said rim; of a plate attached to the other end of said rim and extending beneath such first-named end, when such ends are brought into juxtaposition; a transverse rib on said plate adapted to thereupon engage such slot and having an edge complementary to such acute-angled edge of the latter; and a locking member pivotally mounted upon the first-named end of such rim and adapted to engage with said plate and thereby prevent disengagement of said rib from such slot.

1,430,214. GRINDING AND POLISHING MACHINE. JAMES CARRIE, Butler, Pa., assignor to William D. Sawyer, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Apr. 5, 1921. Serial No. 458,859. 2 Claims. (Cl. 51—120.)



1. A grinding and polishing machine comprising a vertically adjustable main drive shaft, a master head revoluble with the main drive shaft, a fixed master gear positioned above said master head, a plurality of vertically disposed arbors journaled in the master head in gear connection with the master gear wheel, a burnishing head secured to each arbor, an auxiliary gear wheel positioned axially about each arbor, a series of vertically disposed spindles journaled in each burnishing head, each being in gear connection with its associated auxiliary gear, and a burnishing shoe secured to the lower end of each spindle.

1,430,215. TIRE LOCK FOR LOCOMOTIVE WHEELS. IRA E. CORWIN, Jerome, Ariz. Filed Oct. 31, 1921, Serial No. 511,572. Renewed July 31, 1922. Serial No. 578,849. 2 Claims. (Cl. 295—15.)



1. In combination with a locomotive drive wheel and the tire thereof, the rim of the wheel having a threaded bore extended radially therethrough and the tire having an elongated recess on its inner side; a lock for the tire, same comprising a threaded pin set through the threaded bore of the rim, said pin having a neck portion and a squared head rotatively mounted on the neck portion; and a U-shaped yoke loosely mounted over the head and adapted to engage the recess in the tire.

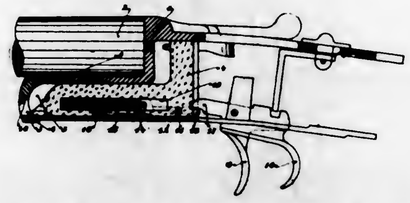
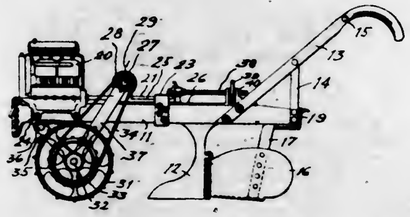
1,430,216. COAL WASHER. FERNAND COURTOY, Brussels, Belgium. Filed June 24, 1919. Serial No. 306,460. 6 Claims. (Cl. 83—79.)



1. In a coal washer, in combination, a screen for supporting coal and heavier impurities to be separated therefrom and having an aperture therein for the passage of such impurities, means for forcing a liquid through the meshes of the screen, and means responsive to the height of liquid over the screen for controlling the passage of impurities through said aperture.

1,430,217. TUBING BLEEDER. FRED NELSON CRIPPEN, Pasadena, Calif. Filed June 12, 1922. Serial No. 567,557. 2 Claims. (Cl. 103—221.)

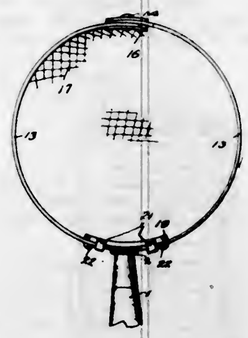


1. A tubing-bleeder detachably connecting two adjacent sections of right-hand screw-threaded well tubing and including a first collar screwed upon one of said tubing sections, a second collar screwed upon the adjacent tubing section and having a left-hand screw-threaded engagement in the first collar permitting a separation of the two sections by a right-hand rotation of one section relative to the other, and a barrel carried by the first collar and surrounding the second collar and adjacent tubing section and provided with a stop abutment with which the second collar engages to limit the separation of the two sections, the barrel having perforations allowing the escape of liquid from the tubing when the sections are separated.

1,430,218. HAMMERLESS SMALL ARM. JEAN DESSARD, Herstal-lez-Liege, Belgium. Filed Dec. 14, 1920. Serial No. 430,756. 5 Claims. (Cl. 42—43.)

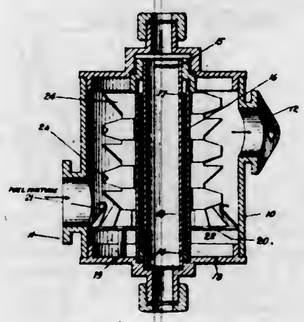
1. A firing mechanism for guns comprising in combination, a frame, a bolt reciprocable in the frame and provided with a longitudinal recess, a sear pivot pin fixed in the frame and passing through the recess, and a firing spring disposed in the recess between the sear pin and one end of the recess.

1,430,219. TRACTOR PLOW IMPLEMENT. ZACARIAS DOMINGUEZ, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jan. 3, 1921. Serial No. 434,692. 4 Claims. (Cl. 180—19.)



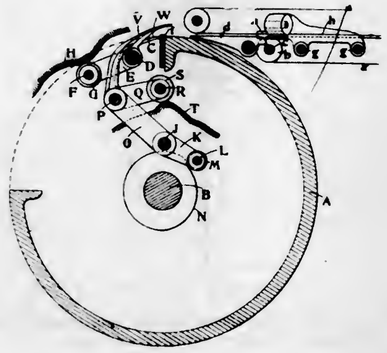
1. In a plow, the combination with a beam, of a bearing member sliding on the beam, retaining members for the bearing member and permitting longitudinal movement thereof, brackets pivoted to the beam, brackets pivotally connected to the bearing member, axial shafts pivotally connected to said brackets, tractor wheels on the axial shafts, a motor mounted on the plow-beam, a counter shaft journalled in the bearing member, a motor power shaft journalled in the bearing member, a worm pinion feathered to the power shaft, a gear in mesh therewith, and keyed to the countershaft, and power transmission elements connecting the tractor wheels and the countershaft.

1,430,220. FLYING-MACHINE STRUCTURE. CLAUDIUS DORNIER, Friedrichshafen, Germany. Filed June 28, 1920. Serial No. 392,543. 4 Claims. (Cl. 244—12.)



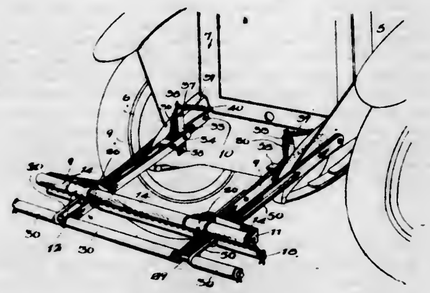
1. In a flying machine in combination, a supporting plane, a pair of cross beams extending from the hull substantially diagonally across said supporting plane so as to meet in one point and a stay obliquely extending between said hull and the meeting-point of said cross-beams.

1,430,221. FISHING NET. JAMES K. DUKAS, Edwardsville, Pa. Filed Aug. 10, 1920. Serial No. 402,525. 2 Claims. (Cl. 43—12.)



1. A collapsible net frame comprising a plurality of hoop sections pivotally secured together at the outer ends, a handle receiving member, means for pivotally connecting the inner ends of said sections to said handle receiving member, the inner end of each section being inclined, a handle provided with a reduced shank adapted to engage said handle receiving member and fit between the inclined ends of said hoop sections for holding the same against swinging movement and means carried by said handle receiving member for engaging the hoop sections and prevent the swinging thereof in a downward direction.

1,430,222. MEANS FOR COMPLETING THE VAPORIZATION AND HOMOGENIZATION OF MIXTURE DELIVERED BY A CARBURETOR. ARTHUR B. EVANS, West Perth, Western Australia, Australia. Filed Apr. 29, 1921. Serial No. 465,412. 2 Claims. (Cl. 257—241.)



1. In an apparatus of the class described, the combination with a mixing chamber having an inlet and an outlet, of a tube extending through said chamber and through which exhaust gases pass, a jacket surrounding the tube, mercury within said jacket, and baffle devices located within the chamber.

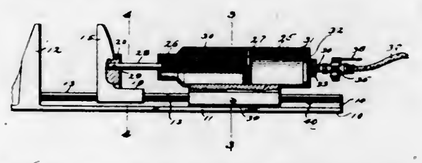
1,430,223. SHEET-FEEDING MECHANISM FOR PRINTING PRESSES. ARTHUR BURROUGHES EVANS and RAYMOND PERCIVAL PAYNE, Leeds, England. Filed May 10, 1922. Serial No. 559,853. 4 Claims. (Cl. 271—53.)

1. Sheet feeding mechanism for printing presses wherein the sheet is seized by grippers upon a continuously rotating sheet carrying or impression cylinder at a time when it is travelling towards the grippers at a speed approximately equal to the circumferential speed of the cylinder, having means for effecting front registration of the sheet against front lays mounted upon the cylinder, such means consisting of mechanism also mounted upon the cylinder and adapted to draw the sheet into contact with the front-lays before the grippers become operative, substantially as described.

1,430,224. AUTO FENDER. SAMUEL G. FITZ SIMONS, Charleston, S. C. Filed Mar. 27, 1922. Serial No. 547,077. 11 Claims. (Cl. 293—41.)

1. A bumper for automobiles comprising upper curtain supporting arms having means whereby the same may be pivotally connected to a vehicle, lower curtain supporting arms, a curtain associated with said upper and lower arms, hanger bars pivoted to said lower arms and to the vehicle, and a bumper having means whereby to hold the upper and lower arms in position.

1,430,225. WALL-PAPER CLEANER. GEORGE J. FORCIER, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed May 15, 1920. Serial No. 381,646. Renewed June 16, 1922. Serial No. 568,819. 3 Claims. (Cl. 15—219.)



1. In a device of the character described, the combination with a frame provided with a cross bar, of a receptacle mounted within said frame for swinging movement, a latch on said cross bar and means carried by said receptacle and cooperating with said latch for locking the receptacle against swinging movement.

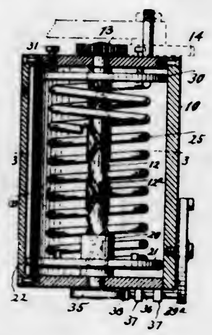
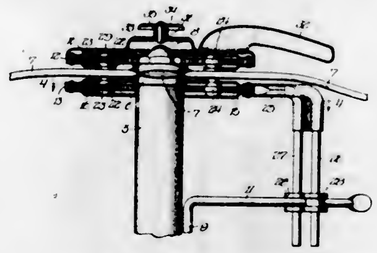
1,430,226. VISE. EVARIST GOODREAU, Cordova, Territory of Alaska. Filed Dec. 29, 1921. Serial No. 525,616. 6 Claims. (Cl. 81—17.)



1. In a device of the character described, a rail, a stationary jaw at one end of the rail, a second jaw opposing the stationary jaw and slidable longitudinally of the rail, a cylinder mounted on said rail and in alignment with the second or movable jaw, a piston within said cylinder, connecting means between said piston and the movable jaw and connecting means whereby a compressed fluid may be injected into said cylinder for causing said piston to move in a direction for advancing the movable jaw toward the stationary jaw, and means associated with the piston adapted to cause the same to move in a direction for retracting the movable jaw from the stationary jaw upon the discontinuance of the fluid pressure therein.

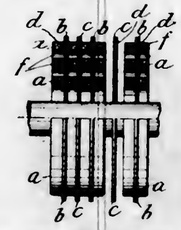
1,430,227. LAWN RAKE. CLARENCE F. HAMILTON, Peru, Ind., assignor of one-half to Charles W. Gipson, Peru, Ind. Filed July 10, 1922. Serial No. 573,960. 5 Claims. (Cl. 55—146.)



1. In combination with a lawn rake, a rock-shaft journaled on the top-bar of the rake head, a lever connected to this rock-shaft, means for detachably holding the lever against the rake-handle, and means whereby when said lever is disconnected from the rake-handle and swung over backwardly the teeth of the rake will be cleared of rubbish, etc.

1,430,228. DOOR-CONTROLLING MECHANISM. JOSEPH B. HARRIS, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Nov. 26, 1920. Serial No. 426,476. 4 Claims. (Cl. 16—49.)

3. In a door closing device, the combination of a cylinder adapted to be connected with the door, a shaft rotatably mounted therein, means through which the opening or closing of the door is necessarily accompanied by a rotation of said shaft, a brake disk secured to said shaft, and brake operating mechanism mounted upon the cylinder, the cylinder having radial guides on its lower end, a bar slidable in said guides, a brake shoe fixed to said bar for engagement with the periphery of the brake disk, a rocker pivotally mounted on the cylinder and having an inclined surface with which the end of said bar engages.



1,430,229. THROTTLE AND HORN CONTROL APPARATUS. GEORGE S. HEATH, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 4, 1922. Serial No. 579,563. 13 Claims. (Cl. 74—33.)

1. The combination with a steering wheel, and a throttle lever disposed beneath said wheel and outside the steering post, of a manually operable device above the wheel, and a connection between said device and said lever for transmitting movement of the device to said lever without affecting movements of said wheel.

1,430,230. BUFFER AND OTHER SPRINGS CONSTRUCTED OF INDIA RUBBER. CHARLES WILLIAM CRESSWELL HINE, Dorking, England. Filed May 18, 1920. Serial No. 382,270. 6 Claims. (Cl. 267—63.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)

1. A spring comprising concentrically-arranged rubber rings, metal dividing plates associated with said rings and formed with annular marginal shoulders to surround and confine the end faces of the outer rubber rings, the surfaces of said dividing plates from the outer rings inwardly being unobstructed to permit the peripheries of the inner rings to move relative to the plate.

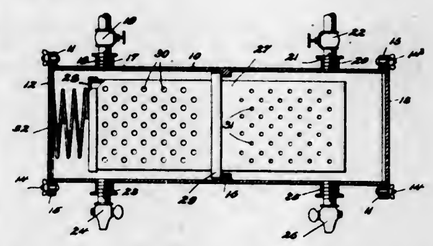
1,430,231. WINDSHIELD VISOR. CHARLES F. HOPEWELL, Watertown, Mass., assignor to Hopewell Brothers, Watertown, Mass., a Copartnership composed of Charles F. Hopewell and Helen C. Hopewell. Filed Sept. 8, 1920. Serial No. 408,965. 5 Claims. (Cl. 296—95.)

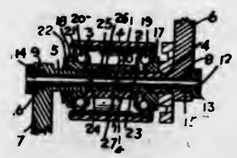
1. A device of the class described comprising supporting brackets, a rectangular frame having an extensible rod formed in interlocking sections rotatably mounted in said supporting brackets and a shouldered collar secured to one end of said extensible rod engaging the inner side of one of said brackets and clamping means on said extensible rod engaging the other side of said bracket.

1,430,232. MACHINE FOR MAKING PAPER BOXES. CHARLES HORTON, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Percy E. Ginn, Boston, Mass. Filed Sept. 26, 1918. Serial No. 255,744. 14 Claims. (Cl. 93—51.)



1. In apparatus of the class described, in combination, folding instrumentalities adapted partially to fold a blank, means including an oscillatory member to act on said blank when so partially folded, a device carried by said oscillatory member normally removed from the blank, and means adapted to actate said oscillatory member whereby said device will further fold said blank.

1,430,233. VEHICLE WHEEL. JOSEPH S. JAKUBOWSKI, Wilmington, Del. Filed May 17, 1922. Serial No. 561,644. 3 Claims. (Cl. 152—23.)

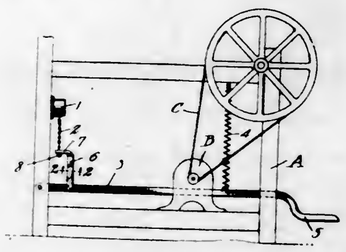


3. In combination, a band, a plurality of blocks arranged about the band in spaced relation to each other, bolts passing through the band and the blocks, said bolts terminating in projecting lugs on the outer faces of the blocks, a pair of spaced rims mounted on the blocks, legs depending from the rims and arranged in pairs so as to embrace the blocks and a bolt connecting the ends of each pair of legs.

1,430,234. FILTER. JOSEPH S. KEITHLINE, Askam, Pa. Filed Aug. 18, 1921. Serial No. 492,334. 6 Claims. (Cl. 210—131.)

1. In a filtering device the combination with an outer cylinder having a removable end closure and longitudinally spaced inlet and outlet openings of an inner perforated cylindrical container for filtering material spaced from the inner surface of the outer cylinder with substantial uniformity laterally, and means between and so connected to the outer periphery of the container and the inner periphery of the outer cylinder between said inlet and outlet openings as to prevent the passage of liquid from the inlet to the outlet in the space between said container and outer cylinder.

1,430,235. BICYCLE-CRANK-HANGER CONSTRUCTION. JAMES WESLEY KELLEY, Oakville, Ontario, Canada. Filed July 25, 1921. Serial No. 487,223. 3 Claims. (Cl. 208—64.)



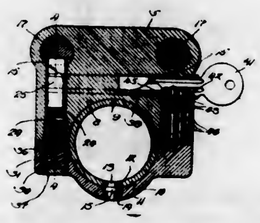
1. In a crank hanger construction, the combination with the centre bracket bearing cups and balls, of a divided axle, each member having a longitudinal groove in longitudinal alignment one with the other, means for tying the divided members of the axle longitudinally together, a bearing cone carried by each member of the divided axle coacting with the balls and cups of the centre bracket, a sleeve surrounding the joint between the members of the divided axle and having an internal longitudinal groove opposing the grooves of the divided axle, and a key adapted to be inserted to engage both the grooves of the divided axle and the groove of the sleeve.

1,430,236. PNEUMATIC TIRE. JOHN GEORGE AULSEBROOK KITCHEN, Lancaster, England. Filed Sept. 25, 1920. Serial No. 412,858. 3 Claims. (Cl. 152—13.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)

1. A pneumatic tire having a thickened crown of elastic rubber, and side walls, annular reinforcing layers of flexible material in said walls having their outer edges separated and terminating at opposite sides of the center of the tire, and an annular series of longitudinally spaced reinforcing members disposed transversely of the tire between the tread and said separated edges of the reinforcing layers.

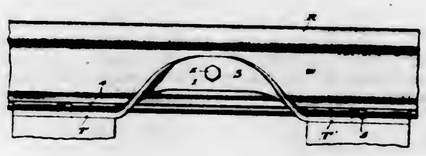
1,430,237. SAFETY ATTACHMENT FOR WASHING MACHINES. HOWARD F. KUHNS, Allentown, Pa. Filed May 16, 1921. Serial No. 469,899. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—81.)

In a device of the class described, a supporting structure, a standard rising from said structure, a lever fulcrumed at one end on said standard, a coiled spring suspending the free end of said lever from said structure, an arm extending laterally and upwardly from said lever near its fulcrum and having right angular bifurcations at its free end extending toward said standard and adapted to straddle a switch pull chain.



1,430,238. FASTENING DEVICE. HILLARD P. LA BORDE, Driftwood, Pa. Filed Feb. 25, 1922. Serial No. 539,299. 6 Claims. (Cl. 85—5.)

1. A fastening device comprising an open link, abutment blocks extending through the link and engaged with the respective ends thereof, and a wedge extending through the link in engagement with one of the abutment blocks.



1,430,239. LOCK FOR AUTOMOBILES. HERMAN W. LAMPMAN, Angola, Ind. Filed Aug. 12, 1921. Serial No. 491,820. 3 Claims. (Cl. 70—129.)

2. In an automobile lock, a lock casing, means for securing said casing to the steering column of an automobile, spaced bores in said casing, a pair of plungers slidably mounted in said bores, means connecting said plungers together to limit the movement of said plungers to extended position, a locking bolt for limiting movement of said plungers to retracted position, said plungers when in extended position adapted to receive therebetween a spoke of the steering wheel.

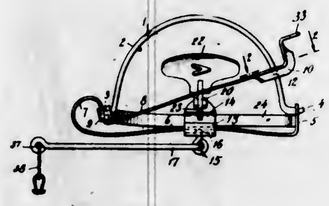
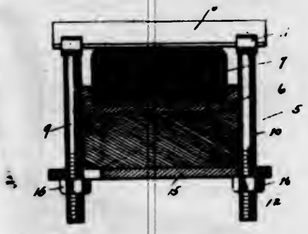
1,430,240. ANTICREEPER FOR RAILWAY RAILS. JOHN H. LARMONTH, Montreal, Quebec, Canada, assignor of one-half to Victor C. Armstrong, Hackensack, N. J. Filed July 19, 1922. Serial No. 576,166. 8 Claims. (Cl. 238—315.)



1. A rail anchor including a pair of tie plates, connecting means for the tie plates, and means for securing the connecting means to the web of the rail.

1,430,241. COIL-BOX PROTECTOR. FRANK POWELL LIDE, Decatur, Ala. Filed Oct. 6, 1920. Serial No. 414,951. 2 Claims. (Cl. 180—90.)

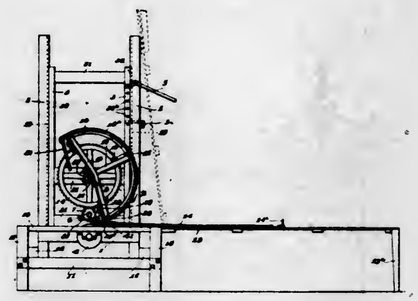
1. In a motor vehicle, in combination with the dash thereof, a cowl having its forward edge extended, said extended edge being slit transversely to provide an intermediate portion and two end portions, the intermediate portion being bent to form a trough whereby to discharge the water running forwardly upon said cowl to either side of the engine associated with said motor vehicle and the end portions being bent downwardly whereby the same may be secured to the dashboard for rigidly holding the cowl in position.



1,430,242. GAME TRAP. ALLEN MCMULLEN, Kenwood, N. Y., assignor to Oneida Community, Limited, Oneida, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 14, 1919. Serial No. 289,932. 9 Claims. (Cl. 43—88.)

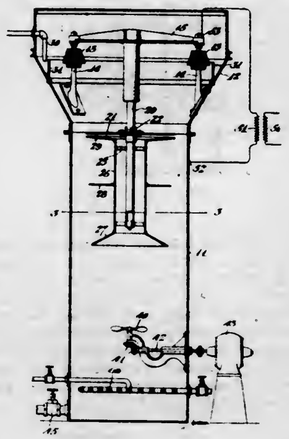
4. The trap comprising a frame, a pair of trap jaws, a cooperating jaw spring of spring steel strip formed with a curved funnel shaped jaw opening flanged down in said strip to provide relatively separated jaw starting portions engaging the jaws when the trap is in set position, and formed with relatively closely spaced portions to engage the jaws when the trap is in its substantially closed sprung position.

7 The jaw trap comprising spring operated trap jaws, a securing chain and a substantially rigid spacing member of such length as to extend adjacent the outer edge of the trap bottom and connected to said chain and loosely and swivelingly connected adjacent the center of the trap bottom to minimize tangling and cramping of the chain.



1,430,243. GROUND-GRIPPING DEVICE. PATRICK J. MCNAMEE, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 15, 1921. Serial No. 522,573. 2 Claims. (Cl. 152—2.)

1. A ground gripping device of the class described comprising an angle bar, clamping bolts having U-shaped head slidably mounted for adjustment on said angle bar, a clamping plate having slots adjacent each end thereof for receiving said bolts and fastening elements on the bolts for locking said plate and angle bar to the felly and periphery of the wheel respectively.



1,430,244. WOOD-BENDING MACHINE. LEWIS PRESTON MALIN, Long Beach, Calif. Filed Sept. 20, 1921. Serial No. 502,009. 5 Claims. (Cl. 144—267.)

1. In a wood bending machine of the character described, a main frame which includes a table, a pair of rigid uprights that extend through the table, a lifting frame vertically movable along the uprights, and means cooperating with the lifting frame for holding the said lifting frame to different vertical adjustments relatively to the table, a forming frame having a semi-circular rim, said forming frame with its rim face opposing the table, a bending band adapted to lie flatwise on the table and to pass between the table and the rim of the forming frame, means on the forward end of the semi-circular rim for clamping the forward end of the bending band to cause it to travel around with the rim of the forming frame, the said band and the forming frame rim constituting the seat for receiving the forward end of the wooden core to be bent, the said means for clamping the band comprising a segment on the forming frame, a segment on the band for connecting with the other segment, and means for holding the two segments interlocked.

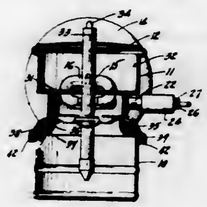
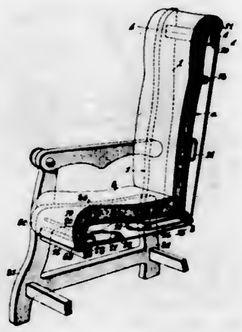
1,430,245. CENTRAL CIRCULATING DEHYDRATOR FOR PETROLEUM OILS. WYNN MEREDITH, Alameda, Calif., assignor to Petroleum Rectifying Company, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Mar 14, 1921. Serial No. 452,389. 9 Claims. (Cl. 204—24.)



1. In an electrical dehydrator for emulsions, the combination of a hollow cylindrical outer electrode; a hollow cylindrical inner electrode open at the bottom to allow emulsion to pass freely therein; means for directing the emulsion outwardly from the top of said inner electrode, into the space between said electrode; and means for impressing an electrical potential between said inner and outer electrodes.

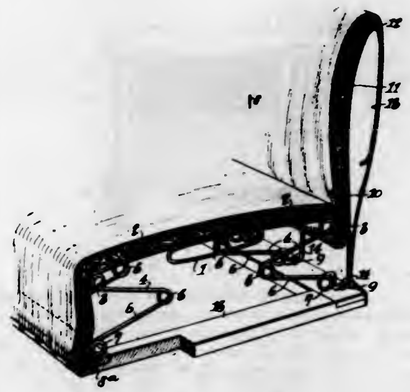
1,430,246. STRATIFYING DEHYDRATOR. WYNN MEREDITH, Alameda, Calif., assignor to Petroleum Rectifying Company, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Apr. 30, 1921. Serial No. 465,909. 6 Claims. (Cl. 204—24.)

1. In a dehydrator for emulsions, the combination of: a charged electrode supported in and surrounded by the emulsion to be treated; and means for surrounding said electrode with a fluid envelope of higher di-electric strength than the emulsion to be treated.



1,430,247. MINER'S LAMP. PETER MIGLIO, Marseilles, Ill. Filed Mar. 29, 1922. Serial No. 547,760. 5 Claims. (Cl. 240—1.)

1. In an acetylene lamp of the character described, a body constituting a water chamber and a carbide chamber connected to the body but separated from the water containing chamber, a pair of burner pipes extending through the side wall of the body and opening into the carbide chamber, said pipes having confronting inner ends, a valve disposed between the confronting ends of the burner pipes and shiftable into contact with one or the other of the burner pipes, and means exterior to the body whereby the valve may be shifted.



1,430,248. FURNITURE SPRING. FRANK W. MORSE, San Fernando, Calif., assignor of one-half to San Fernando Manufacturing Association, San Fernando, Calif. Filed Dec. 15, 1921. Serial No. 522,542. 6 Claims. (Cl. 155—53.)

1. A furniture spring composed of a single strand of spring wire bent upon itself between its ends to form a coil for fitting onto a fixed member of the furniture to which the spring is applied, one portion of the wire being located at substantially right angles to the other portion whereby to provide back and seat rest members, one end of the strand being shaped to fixedly connect with the upper portion of the chair back, and the other end being shaped to fixedly connect to the front rail of a chair, said coil constituting the hinge joint that connects the seat and back portions of the spring.

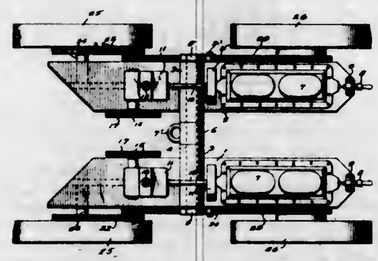
1,430,249. SEAT-CUSHION SPRING. FRANK W. MORSE, San Fernando, Calif., assignor of one-half to San Fernando Manufacturing Association, San Fernando, Calif. Filed Apr. 17, 1922. Serial No. 553,673. 5 Claims. (Cl. 155—179.)

1. A spring composed of a single strand of spring wire including a crown loop, crown end coils, inward V-shaped extensions from said coils with coils at the apexes of the V and means to secure the ends of the wire to the supporting frame of the seat.



1,430,250. TIRE PUMP. TAKEO NAMURA, Walnut Grove, Calif. Filed June 8, 1921. Serial No. 476,047. 4 Claims. (Cl. 230—27.)

1. A tire pump comprising a pair of clamps adapted to be secured to the spokes of a vehicle wheel, a pump cylinder, a piston therein, a piston rod for said piston, a pivotal connection between one end of said cylinder and one of said clamps, and a lever handle pivotally connected to the other of said clamps and to the piston rod.

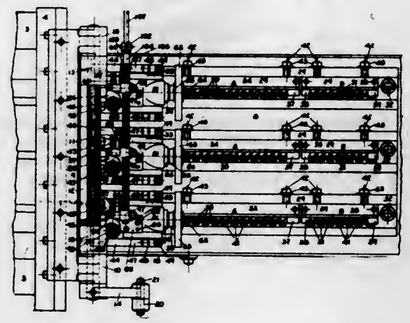
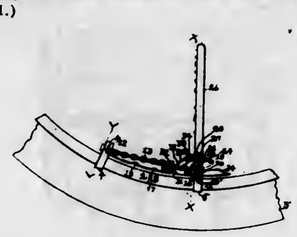
1,430,251. TRACTOR. JOSEPH N. PARKER, Bedford, Va. Filed Dec. 8, 1921. Serial No. 521,001. 3 Claims. (Cl. 180—17.)



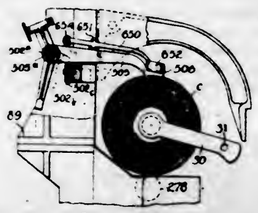
1. A tractor comprising a pair of frames, a connecting member arranged between said frames to maintain them in spaced relation, a power unit mounted on each of said frames, wheels mounted on the outside of each frame, a drive shaft connected to each power unit, a pair of sprockets mounted on each of said drive shafts, sprockets mounted on said wheels, and chains passing over the sprockets on said drive shafts and the sprockets on said wheels.

1,430,252. MULTIPLE GEAR-CUTTING MACHINE. JULIAN L. PERKINS, West Springfield, and FRANK W. SICKLES and JOHN OAKLEY, Springfield, Mass., assignors to Perkins Appliance Company, Springfield, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed July 15, 1920. Serial No. 396,495. 30 Claims. (Cl. 90—8.)



2. In a multiple gear-cutting machine, cutting means reciprocable in a straight path, oscillatory supporting means intersecting the vertical plane of such path, adjustable work-holding means carried by said second-named means, said work-holding means being capable of having attached thereto different types of gear blanks, and to carry the same in cutting position, and means automatically to oscillate intermittently said second-named means.

15. The combination, in a multiple gear-cutting machine, with a gear-blank arbor, a rotary support for said arbor, an index-wheel and a ratchet-wheel mounted on said support, locking, releasing, and actuating means for said ratchet-wheel, locking and releasing means for said index-wheel, and operating means, consisting in part of an arm, for said locking, releasing, and actuating means for said ratchet-wheel, and for said locking and releasing means for said index-wheel, of a suitably mounted bell-crank-lever, a rod, an arm attached to said rod and pivotally connected with said first-named arm, a link connecting said bell-crank-lever and said rod, a suitably supported arm having a lug, and a bolt tapped into and through said lug to provide an adjustable stop for said bell-crank-lever.



25. The combination, in a multiple gear-cutting machine, of a bracket, a block supported by said bracket, a shouldered sleeve arranged in said block for rotation, a gear-blank arbor having a taper fit in said sleeve, an index-wheel mounted on said sleeve, with the hub of said index-wheel contiguous to the shoulder on said sleeve, a bolt extending into the inner terminal of said sleeve and tapped into the inner terminal of said arbor, a washer interposed between said hub of said index-wheel and the head of said bolt, a ratchet-wheel secured to said index-wheel, a ring loosely mounted on a supporting part of said index-wheel, between the latter and said ratchet-wheel, said ring having an arm and a cam, a spring arranged to actuate said ring in one direction, a detent for said ratchet-wheel, a pawl for said ratchet-wheel, said pawl being pivotally connected with said arm, a locking plunger having teeth for engagement with said index-wheel, and provided with a member which extends into the path of said cam, and means to actuate said arm and ring against the force of said spring.

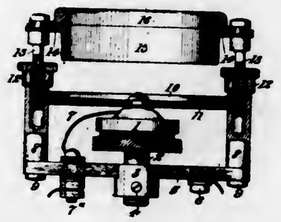
In a rim breaker a pair of clamps, a lever pivoted to one of the clamps, a toothed bar pivoted to the other clamp and having notches to engage the cross bolt of the first clamp, a pawl pivoted to the lever and engageable with the teeth of the bar and a hook on the pawl with which a flexible connection also pivoted to the second clamp may be adjustably connected.

1,430,254. WINDER. BURT A. PETERSON, Rockford, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Edgar S. Nethercut, Evanston, Ill. Filed Dec. 3, 1919. Serial No. 342,214. 13 Claims. (Cl. 247—36.)

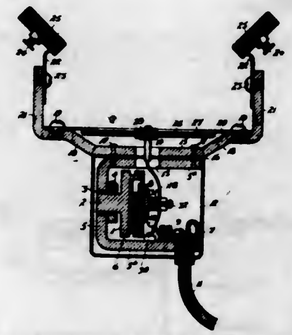


2. A winder having, in combination, means for gaging yarn masses, and means for automatically suspending the operation of the gaging means upon impending faulty coaction between the gaging means and the yarn mass.

1,430,255. BUCKLE FOR BELTS. GEORGE E. PRENTICE, Berlin, and ROBERT C. LEGAT, New Britain, Conn. Filed Feb. 1, 1922. Serial No. 533,146. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—191.)

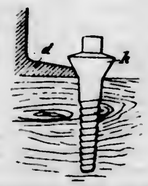
1. A buckle for belts comprising a body of channel form, having a front wall bordered by side walls, a clamping lever pivotally supported from said side walls and having a clamping nose that is generally directed towards the rear face of said front wall, a sliding member interposed between said nose and front wall and having a limited sliding movement along said front wall, and said sliding member having a pair of transverse ribs positioned in spaced relation, one on each side of said nose, whereby a circuitous path is provided for a belt end admitted to the space between said sliding member and nose.

1,430,256. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR TELEPHONICALLY TRANSMITTING SPEECH. EDWIN S. PRIDHAM and PETER L. JENSEN, San Francisco, Calif., assignors to Commercial Wireless & Development Company, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Aug. 21, 1917. Serial No. 187,361. 9 Claims. (Cl. 179—1̸38.)



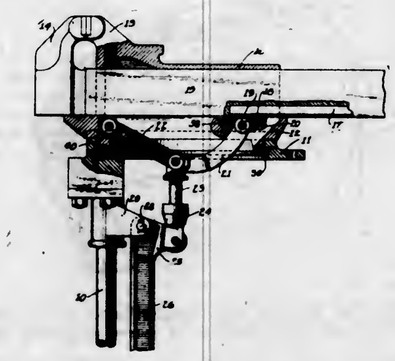
1. The method of telephonically transmitting speech vibrations in an environment of extraneous noises which consists in balancing the noise vibrations in the transmitter system so as to maintain a static condition of the telephone circuit normally and directing the speech vibrations into the transmitter system in a manner to have them unopposed.

1,430,257. TELEPHONE TRANSMITTER. EDWIN S. PRIDHAM, Oakland, Calif., assignor to The Magnavox Company, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of Arizona. Filed May 7, 1918. Serial No. 233,134. 9 Claims. (Cl. 179—138.)



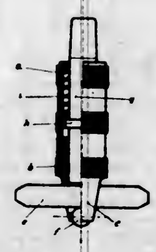
1. In a transmitter for telephonic communication, a variable resistance element, a diaphragm for said element, a bridge for said element and its diaphragm, and a perforated casing surrounding said element and its diaphragm within which the bridge is mounted, said casing acting as a guard for the diaphragm and variable resistance element and permitting free access of sound vibrations to both sides of said diaphragm.

1,430,258. TELEPHONE TRANSMITTER. EDWIN S. PRIDHAM, Oakland, Calif., assignor to The Magnavox Co., San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of Arizona. Filed Dec. 26, 1918. Serial No. 268,307. 11 Claims. (Cl. 179—122.)



1. In a telephone transmitter, the combination of a casing, a bridge or support mounted within said casing, a transmitter button mounted in said bridge, an operating arm connected to said button, said arm extending outside of said casing, with an open frame mounted exteriorly on said casing, a diaphragm mounted in said frame, said diaphragm being so mounted in said frame that extraneous sounds have access to either side of said diaphragm for the purpose of balancing out said extraneous sounds, a connection between said diaphragm and said operating arm whereby sounds that have access to but one side of said diaphragm produce their full effect upon said transmitter button.

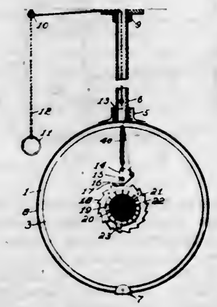
1,430,259. SPIKE AND SCREW FOR RAILS. FERNAND RADELET and EDMOND BONNET, Brussels, Belgium. Filed Jan. 26, 1920. Serial No. 354,068. 3 Claims. (Cl. 85—28.)



1. As a new article of manufacture, a railway spike comprising a stem adapted to be driven into a sleeper, and an enlarged head having a straight rail-engaging surface at an angle of at least 135° to said stem.

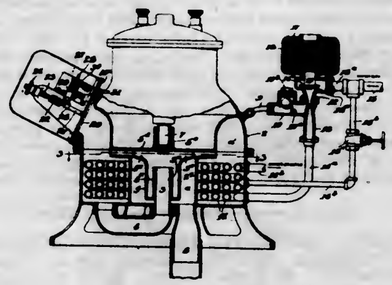
1,430,260. VISE. ALDEAN W. RAWLING, San Francisco, Calif., assignor to Georgie D. Bobo, Fairmead, Calif. Filed Apr. 3, 1922. Serial No. 548,928. 5 Claims. (Cl. 81—30.)

1. A bench vise of the foot-operated type comprising a supporting frame having a stationary ring, a turn-table mounted on the ring, a stationary jaw on the turn-table, a shank slidably mounted on the turn-table and carrying a jaw to co-operate with the stationary jaw, said shank being provided with teeth, a movable pawl carried upon the turn-table to engage the teeth on the shank, toggle links connected to the turn-table and to the pawl for actuating the latter, a foot-operated device carried on a stationary part of the frame for actuating said toggle links and a swivel connection between the foot-operated mechanism and the links permitting the turn-table and associated parts to be rotated.



1,430,261. HARDNESS-TESTING APPARATUS. ALOIS REPPER, Kladno, Czecho-Slovakia. Filed Nov. 29, 1920. Serial No. 427,168. 5 Claims. (Cl. 265—13.)

1. In an apparatus for testing hardness, a standard member, a holder, a ball engaging the standard member, a striker mounted in said holder and engaging the standard member, and resilient means releasably retaining the ball in operative position with respect to the standard member.



1,430,262. POOL-GAME-TALLYING DEVICE. CHARLES H. BITZMAN, Dumont, Iowa. Filed May 17, 1920. Serial No. 381,989. 2 Claims. (Cl. 235—91.)

1. In a device of the character described, a fixed shaft, a dial rotatably mounted thereon, a spring connected between said dial and shaft to exercise tension upon the dial when rotated in one direction, inner and outer ratchets having oppositely directed teeth fixed concentrically upon said dial, the outer ratchet having a portion of its circuit denuded of teeth, a resiliently controlled pawl yieldingly engaging teeth of said outer ratchet, a single detent extending radially outwardly from the said outer ratchet, a fixed stop-member extending into the path of rotation of said detent to stop the rotation of said ratchet at either limit of opposite rotations thereof, a rock-lever medially pivoted on said fixed shaft, a pool-game triangle flexibly suspended on one arm of said lever, a hanger suspended on the opposite end of said lever, a resiliently-controlled pawl mounted on the said lever and engaging teeth on the inner ratchet, a fixed plate positioned between said ratchets and said lever, and adapted to have the last-mentioned pawl ride upon it and be disengaged from said ratchet when said lever is rocked to its limit in one direction, and a resiliently-controlled pawl positioned yieldingly in the path of rotation of said detent and having an arm positioned in the path of movement of the opposite end of said lever, the latter when moved in one direction pushing over said arm to withdraw the last-mentioned pawl from the path of movement of said detent.

8. In a refrigerating apparatus of the class described, a refrigerator unit having a closed compartment for a volatilizable liquid, a condenser unit having a vapor chamber communicating with said closed compartment, and having a condenser chamber, means for withdrawing vapor from said vapor chamber and condensing it in the condensing chamber, an air suction device for producing a vacuum in the system, means controlled by the temperature in the refrigerating unit for governing the action of said air suction means, a motor for operating said vapor withdrawing and compressing means, and means controlled by the vacuum produced within the system for starting and stopping said motor.

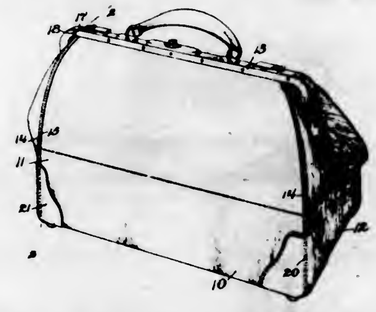
1,430,264. SIGNAL DEVICE FOR AUTOMOBILES. LEONARD L. SCHMIDT, THEODORE W. BEUCHEL, and PERCY C. OTWELL, Belleville, Ill. Filed Jan. 19, 1922. Serial No. 530,331. 5 Claims. (Cl. 40—132.)

1. In a device of the class described, the combination with a two part casing, each part of said casing being provided with a partition forming a signal compartment, the space between the partitions forming a third signal compartment, a pair of plates of diaphanous material for displaying signs, said plates being held in position by the assembling of the parts of the casing, and means for illuminating said compartments.

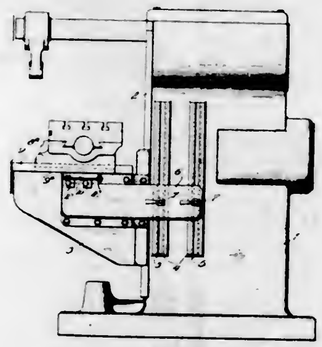
1,430,265. DOUGH-MOLDING MACHINE. JOHN A. SEXAUER, Sidney, Ohio. Filed Feb. 9, 1921. Serial No. 443,683. 4 Claims. (Cl. 151—9.)



4. In a dough molding machine, the combination of a frame provided with sides, a trough between said sides, a compression board between said sides and within said trough, a pair of vertical shafts carried by said board, gears threaded upon said shafts, a hand-operated shaft having bevel gears at its ends engaging said first-mentioned gears, a frame connected to said shaft at one end thereof and supporting one of said first-mentioned gears and resting upon said sides, and a bracket pivotally mounted upon said sides and supporting the remaining end of said hand shaft and supporting the remaining first-mentioned gear, as and for the purposes set forth.

1,430,266. PROCESS FOR PRODUCING ELECTRICAL INSULATING OBJECTS. AUGUST SIDLER, Zurich, Switzerland. Filed Mar. 23, 1921. Serial No. 454,930. 4 Claims. (Cl. 106—10.)

1. A process for producing electrical insulating objects, consisting of melting natural slate, casting said slate into moulds and cooling the molten mass slowly.



1,430,267. BAG. WILLIAM H. SMITH, Newark, N. J. Filed Aug. 26, 1921. Serial No. 495,619. 4 Claims. (Cl. 190—49.)

1. A bag having a welt in each corner thereof, and a spring wire enclosed in each welt, the top of the wire being attached to the bag frame and the bottom end of the wire terminating short of the bottom of the welt, whereby the wire can move longitudinally in the welt when the wire is straightened by reason of opening the bag.

1,430,268. MILLING MACHINE. GUSTAF DAVID SUNDSTRAND, Rockford, Ill., assignor to Rockford Milling Machine Company, Rockford, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Jan. 27, 1919, Serial No. 273,216. Renewed Mar. '22, 1922. Serial No. 545,900. 9 Claims. (Cl. 90—58.)

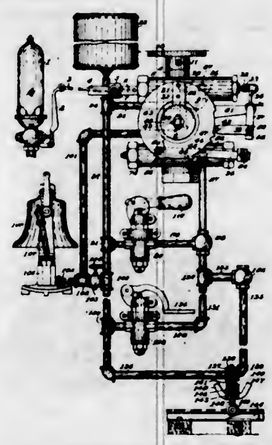
1. A milling machine having, in combination, a column, a guide on the side of the column, a knee vertically slidable upon said guide, a saddle horizontally movable upon the knee toward and away from the column, an arm rigidly secured to one side of the knee and extending rearwardly alongside of the column, means for clamping said arm to the column in any position of the knee upon said guide, a member upon the same side of the knee, and means for clamping the saddle to said member in any position of the saddle upon the knee.

1,430,269. EXTRACTION OF ZINC. WILLIAM GEORGE WARING, Webb City, Mo., assignor of one-half to Gordon Battelle, Columbus, Ohio. Filed Aug. 17, 1921. Serial No. 493,132. 2 Claims. (Cl. 23—13.)

2. In the extraction of zinc from lead and zinc containing materials by extraction with hot ammonium sulfate solution with subsequent deposition of zinc compounds by cooling said solution, the process which comprises reacting on said zinc compounds with ammonium carbonate solution to convert said zinc compounds into a zinc carbonate and form ammonium sulfate solution.

1,430,270. EXTRACTION OF LEAD AND ZINC. WILLIAM GEORGE WARING, Webb City, Mo., assignor of one-half to Gordon Battelle, Columbus, Ohio. Filed Aug. 17, 1921. Serial No. 493,133. 2 Claims. (Cl. 75—18.)

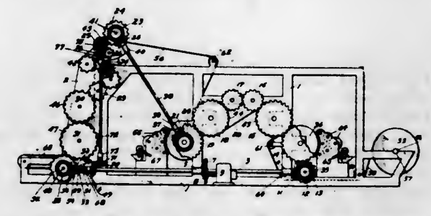
1. In the utilization of ore products containing lead and zinc values, the process which comprises extracting such products with a hot solution of ammonium sulfate to remove zinc and leave residues containing lead, treating such residues with a solution of ammonium carbonate containing NH_3 equivalent to the SO_3 present in the residues, thereby forming lead carbonates and an ammonium sulfate solution containing zinc and returning said ammonium sulfate solution for re-use in the extraction step.



1,430,271. TREATMENT OF ZINC-LEAD FUME. WILLIAM GEORGE WARING, Webb City, Mo., assignor of one-half to Gordon Battelle, Columbus, Ohio. Filed Aug. 17, 1921. Serial No. 493,134. 3 Claims. (Cl. 134—78.)

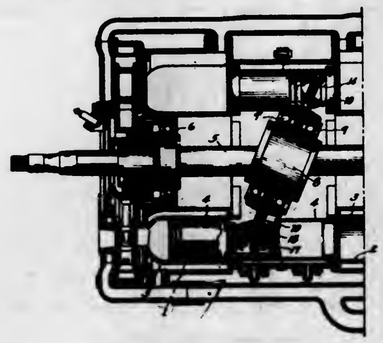
3. In the purification of sulfur-carrying zinc-lead fume intended for pigmentary purposes, the process which comprises roasting said fume at a low temperature to remove volatile impurities and to render cadmium soluble as sulfate, and leaching with water to extract said cadmium.

1,430,272. EXPLOSIVE COMPOSITION AND THE MANUFACTURE THEREOF. EDWARD M. WERNER, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Hoyne-site Explosives Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 15, 1921. Serial No. 515,268. 4 Claims. (Cl. 52—15.)



1. An explosive composition including in its ingredients, an alkali metal chlorate mixed with a solution of nitrobenzol and resin.

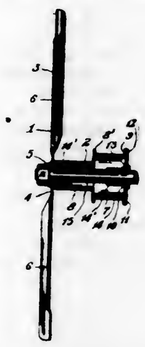
1,430,273. SIGNALING APPARATUS. ALBERTO I. WOODRING, Waterloo, Iowa, assignor, by mesne assignments, to National Safety Devices Company, Waterloo, Iowa. Filed Mar. 16, 1922. Serial No. 544,232. 8 Claims. (Cl. 116—65.)



6. In a signaling apparatus, a source of fluid supply under pressure, a whistle-signal having a movable operating element, a bell signal, a motor actuated by fluid pressure operatively connected to said bell-signal, a resiliently-controlled movable body having projections, a contact-device actuated by the projections on said movable body with step-by-step movements, a starting-motor actuated by fluid pressure operatively connected to said movable body, a relay-motor having an element operatively connected to said whistle operating-element, said relay-motor being in communication with said source of fluid supply, and containing resiliently-controlled valvular means actuated by said contact device for making and breaking communication of the motor with said fluid supply and including means for exhausting such fluid therefrom after such making and breaking actuations, other means of communication between said relay-motor and said bell-motor including a valve-chamber containing a check-valve, means of communication between said starting-motor, said source of fluid supply and the said communication between the relay-motor and the bell-motor and containing a valve-chamber, an operating-valve in said chamber, and means in said chamber for exhausting said fluid from said starting-motor after operation and release of said operating-valve, and valvular means for manually controlling the communication between said source of fluid-supply and said bell-motor.

1,430,274. LOST-MOTION TAKE-UP FOR PRINTING PRESSES OR THE LIKE. HARLEY C. ALGER, Oak Park, Ill. Filed Nov. 26, 1917. Serial No. 203,982. 7 Claims. (Cl. 74—7.)

1. In a printing press or the like, a series of operatively connected gears for driving a part of the press mechanism, a gear for driving a series, a gear driven by the series and means including a shaft tending to drive the diving gear from the driven gear whereby lost motion between the gears is eliminated.



1,430,275. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. JOHN O. ALMEN, Seattle, Wash., assignor to Almen-Crosby Motors Company, Inc. Filed Sept. 27, 1920. Serial No. 413,092. 6 Claims. (Cl. 121—119.)

1. In an engine of the class described, the combination with a revolvable power shaft and a piston operating in a line parallel with the shaft, of a rocker plate mounted on the shaft and coacting bearing members mounted between a face of the plate and the piston end having a sliding connection with the piston to permit movement toward and from the power shaft, and a sliding connection with the plate to prevent lateral pressure on the piston.

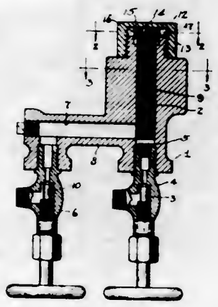
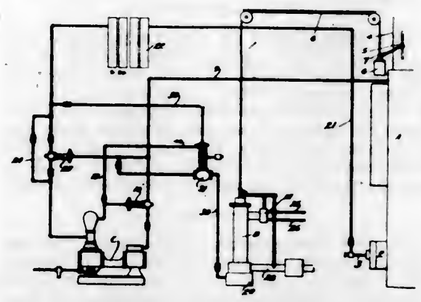
1,430,276. AUTOMOBILE FAN. ERNEST H. ARNOLD, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to Henry M. Strong, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Oct. 14, 1921. Serial No. 507,047. 7 Claims. (Cl. 170—173.)



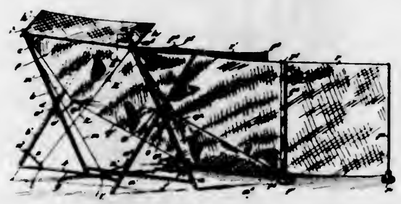
1. A hub-member for an automobile fan, comprising an integral seamless sheet of metal shaped to form a pulley portion at one end and a portion of different diameter from that of said pulley portion, at the other end; together with a separate end plate secured to said pulley portion.

1,430,277. FUSION OF ORGANIC SUBSTANCES WITH ALKALIES. FREDERICK WILLIAM ATACK, Manchester, England, and JOHN ANDERSON, St. Andrews, Scotland, assignors to The British Alizarine Company Limited, Manchester, Lancaster, England. Filed Feb. 18, 1921. Serial No. 446,151. 17 Claims. (Cl. 260—29.)



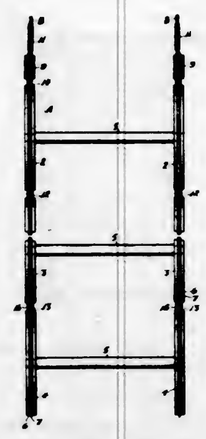
3. The process which comprises fusing an aromatic body containing less than four benzene nuclei with caustic alkali in presence of an inert non-hydroxylic diluent.

1,430,278. LIQUID-FUEL BURNER. WILLIAM J. BARBER and WILLIS J. IRVIN, Cleveland, Ohio, assignors, by mesne assignments, to The Barber Oil Burner Company. Filed Jan. 26, 1921. Serial No. 439,934. Renewed Feb. 8, 1922. Serial No. 535,090. 8 Claims. (Cl. 158—78.)



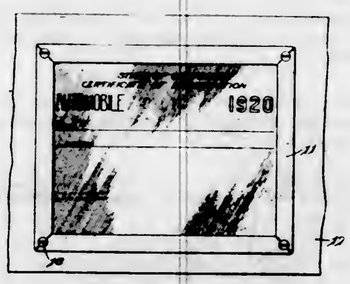
3. In a burner of the character described, the combination of a body having a straight elongated atomizing chamber, a material providing a multitude of fine interstices, completely filling said chamber for substantially its entire length, liquid fuel and air supply lines connected with one end of said chamber, and an apertured member associated with the other end thereof providing a restricted passageway for the discharge of the combustible mixture produced by the passage of said liquid fuel and air through said filling material.

1,430,279. AUTOMATIC CONTROL FOR MECHANICAL OIL-BURNING SYSTEMS. GEORGE S. BLANKENHORN, San Francisco, Calif., assignor to Coen Company, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Sept. 28, 1921. Serial No. 503,798. 7 Claims. (Cl. 158—45.5.)



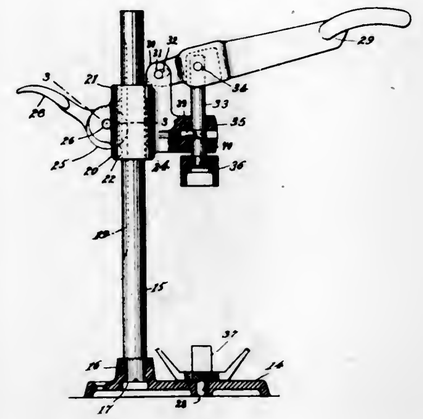
1. In a mechanical oil burning installation of the character described, the combination with the boiler, the pump governor, the oil pressure regulating valve and the damper regulator, of a diaphragm mounted in the damper regulator, a pipe delivering steam direct from the boiler to the diaphragm and exerting boiler pressure thereon, a safety regulating valve on said pipe between the boiler and the diaphragm, a casing on said valve divided into two chambers by a diaphragm, a connecting stem between the diaphragm and the valve to regulate the steam flow to the diaphragm in the damper regulator, a pipe connecting one chamber of the safety regulating valve with one side of the oil pressure regulating valve, and a second pipe connecting the other chamber with the other side of said valve, said pipes normally maintaining an unbalanced pressure in the two chambers so as to normally maintain the safety regulating valve in an open position.

1,430,280. GOLF-PRACTICE NET. JOHN ROBERTS BOLTON, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to A. G. Spalding & Bros., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Sept. 17, 1921. Serial No. 501,264. 1 Claim. (Cl. 46—4.)



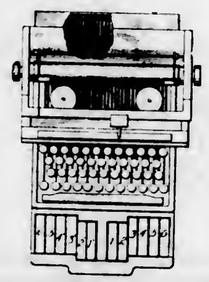
The combination with a supporting frame comprising a double set of pivoted crossed members, rods uniting and bracing corresponding crossed members, a net having its upper portion supported by said frame and having its lower end carried forward toward the feet of the player, extension nets extending forwardly from said first named net towards the player to further confine the flight of the ball, and standards having extension hooks to support said extension nets in spaced relation thereto.

1,430,281. LADDER. HARRY H. BRANN and GEORGE H. TENBROOK, San Francisco, Calif., assignors to Haviside Company, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Nov. 23, 1921. Serial No. 517,164. 3 Claims. (Cl. 228—40.)



1. A ladder of the character described, comprising spaced sides, each side comprising spaced sections and a pair of cables, each section having a surrounding groove, and rungs connecting the sections of opposite sides, said cables being alternately reeved around opposite sides of said sections in the respective grooves and thereby embracing the sections, each cable crossing its companion cable between said sections and at such points of crossing being reeved one through the other in alignment with the grooves of the sections so as to insure against displacement of the cables from the grooves.

1,430,282. CARD HOLDER. BARTON C. BRIDGHAM, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Apr. 20, 1921. Serial No. 462,823. 3 Claims. (Cl. 40—10.)

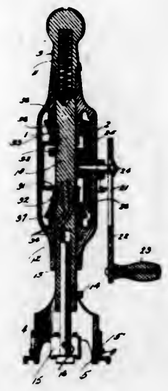


1. A card holder comprising a shallow tray to receive a card, an enclosing frame, said frame having end and side walls to surround the tray and inwardly extending flanges overlying the card, a protective covering overlying the card and lying behind the flanges of the frame and means for fastening the parts in place on a supporting surface so that the edges of the end and side walls of the frame contact throughout their length with the supporting surface and the inwardly extending flanges compress the protective covering against the card in the tray whereby to prevent the entrance of moisture or dirt to the card.

1,430,283. BOTTLE-CAPPING APPARATUS. LEO A. BRIGEL, Cheviot, Ohio. Filed Aug. 23, 1920. Serial No. 405,470. 2 Claims. (Cl. 226—84.)

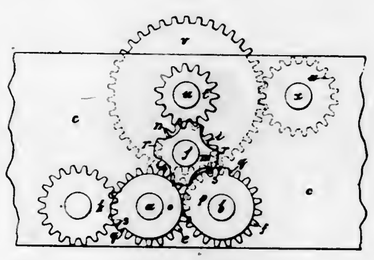
1. A bottle capper comprising a base, a cylindrical standard having a key way, a head adjustable upon said standard to and from said base, a cam lever to engage the key-way in said standard to lock said head to the standard and also to prevent the head moving rotatably relative to said standard, a plunger mounted to reciprocate in a guide on said head and provided with a capping tool, and a lever pivotally connected to said head to actuate said plunger.

1,430,284. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. PAUL H. BURDICK, Geneva, Ill. Filed Sept. 3, 1920. Serial No. 407,928. 21 Claims. (Cl. 197—11.)



1. In a typewriting machine, a plurality of writing devices, magnets for operating said devices, keys for controlling the circuits of said magnets, and a common conductor included in all of said circuits, an automatic device connected in series with said conductor and effective to limit the time during which any magnet can remain operated.

1,430,285. VALVE GRINDER. OSCAR E. BROWN, Lancaster, Pa. Filed Dec. 24, 1919. Serial No. 347,124. 8 Claims. (Cl. 51—29.)



1. In a valve grinder, the combination with a hollow body, a driven gear rotatably mounted therein, and means for oscillating it irregularly; of a shaft mounted for rotation and reciprocation in said body and extending through the gear, the shaft having a plurality of grooves of various lengths, means in the gear for engagement with the grooves selectively to limit the descent of the shaft, a spring bearing the shaft normally downward, and valve-holding means at its lower end.

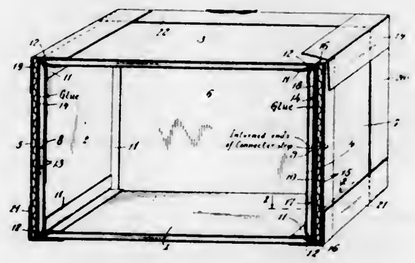
1,430,286. COTTON-COMBING MACHINE. WILLIAM CORDWELL and DYSON BARKER, Manchester, England. Filed June 4, 1920. Serial No. 386,510. 2 Claims. (Cl. 19—118.)

2. In a fibre-combing machine the means for controlling the detaching roller comprising driven wheels intermeshing with each other, section wheels compounded with the driven wheels, a wheel adapted to be driven intermittently in opposite directions by the section wheels, a star wheel fixed to the intermittently-driven wheel and cams fixed to the section wheels to lock the star wheel in position when the section wheels are out of gear with the intermittently-driven wheel and allow the latter and star wheel to rotate when the gears engage.



1,430,287. CONTAINER. CHARLES H. CROWELL, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Dec. 24, 1919. Serial No. 347,201. 7 Claims. (Cl. 229—43.)

5. The non-pilferable shipping container comprising a container body member formed of paper board material, and a cooperating cover member formed of paper board and cooperating with said container body member, the edges of one of said members having a projecting outer flange and having an inner concealed portion secured to the cooperating member.

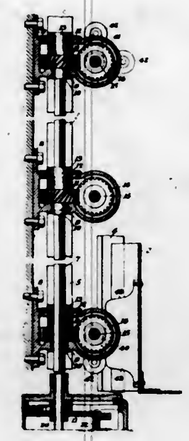
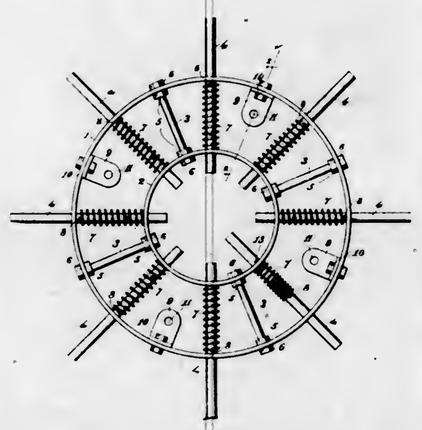
1,430,288. SHIPPING CONTAINER. CHARLES H. CROWELL, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Dec. 24, 1919. Serial No. 347,202. 12 Claims. (Cl. 229—43.)



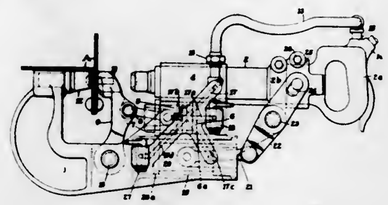
12. The shipping container comprising a container body of corrugated paper material and a cooperating top and bottom secured to said container body by connected inside portions.

1,430,289. VEGETABLE SLICER. JOHN W. DAHMER. Festus, Mo. Filed Aug. 16, 1920. Serial No. 403,805. 1 Claim. (Cl. 146—7.)



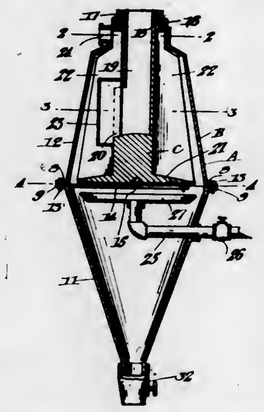
An improved vegetable slicer, composed of a single permanently flat sheet of metal having a plurality of rows of integral forwardly inclined triangular staggered slitting-teeth struck up therefrom and extending diagonally across said sheet, and an integral reinforcing diagonal cutting-knife struck up from said sheet in the rear of and closely adjacent said slitting-teeth, substantially as and for the purpose set forth.

1,430,290. CONTROLLING SYSTEM. LOUIS DE MARKUS, Montrose, Pa., assignor to McKenna Braas & Manufacturing Company, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 29, 1921. Serial No. 511,412. 15 Claims. (Cl. 187—29.)



5. In an elevator control, a cage, a plurality of controlling devices for controlling the positioning of the cage, mechanical connections between said devices, and a circuit making device actuated by said mechanical connections, substantially as described.

1,430,291. TRACTION-INCREASING DEVICE. BENJAMIN E. DENSON, Columbus, Ga. Filed May 27, 1922. Serial No. 564,048. 3 Claims. (Cl. 305—51.)

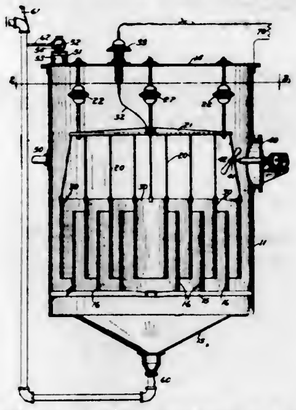


3. A traction increasing device for elastically-tired wheels comprising concentric spaced rings, means rigidly connecting the rings, means for detachably connecting the rings to a wheel, radially-disposed pins slidingly mounted in the rings for moving to and from a ground-engaging position, cushioning means stressing the pins toward such ground-engaging position, and means for locking the pins in their inner or ground-non-engaging position.

1,430,292. WORK CLAMPING AND CUSHIONING ATTACHMENT FOR PNEUMATIC HAMMERS. THOMAS A. DICKS, Wilkinsburg, Pa. Filed Apr. 3, 1920. Serial No. 371,036. 9 Claims. (Cl. 78—52.)

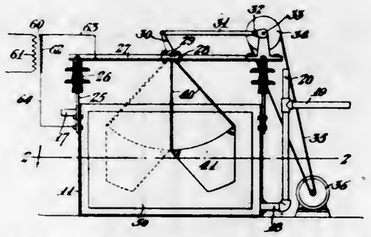
1. A work clamping device for pneumatic hammers, comprising a frame in which the hammer is mounted, an anvil on said frame, a clamping lever adapted to clamp the work against the anvil, a cylinder on the frame, a differential piston in said cylinder, an actuating connection between the piston and lever, and means for admitting air to said cylinder at opposite sides of the piston, substantially as described.

1,430,293. GRAIN AND SEED GRADER AND SEPARATOR. EDGAR DUNCOMBE EDDY, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada. Filed Feb. 13, 1920. Serial No. 358,344. 11 Claims. (Cl. 83—82.)



1. An apparatus for grading and cleaning grain and seeds comprising a casing, a rotor rotatably mounted in the casing, peripheral vanes on the rotor, means for delivering stock to be treated axially of the rotor, means for delivering liquid to the casing, and curvilinear baffle walls eccentrically located between the vanes.

1,430,294. DEHYDRATOR. HAROLD C. EDDY, Los Angeles, and JOHN T. WOATHINGTON, Whittier, Calif., assignors to Petroleum Rectifying Company of California, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Mar. 2, 1921. Serial No. 449,061. 6 Claims. (Cl. 204—24.)



1. An apparatus for de-emulsifying petroleum emulsions comprising a cylindrical tank; a cylindrical electrode inside of and concentric with said tank; and mechanical means for imparting a whirling movement to a body of emulsion carried in said tank.

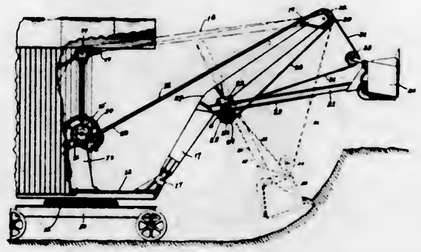
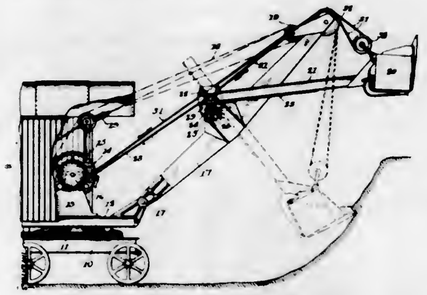
1,430,295. ADJUSTABLE FIELD DEHYDRATOR. HAROLD C. EDDY, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Petroleum Rectifying Company of California, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed June 25, 1921. Serial No. 480,349. 8 Claims. (Cl. 204—24.)



1. In a dehydrator, the combination of: a moving electrode formed of a flat plate; and means for moving said plate in its own plane.

1,430,296. DOUBLE FIELD DEHYDRATOR. HAROLD C. EDDY, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Petroleum Rectifying Company of California, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed June 25, 1921. Serial No. 480,351. 8 Claims. (Cl. 204—24.)

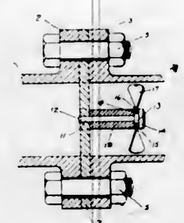


1. A dehydrator comprising: a tank: an electrode concentric with said tank and having a central opening; and a member electrically connected to said tank and projecting concentrically into the opening in said electrode.

1,430,297. ROPE-THRUSTING SHOVEL. WALTER FERRIS, Milwaukee, and SVANTE R. W. M. BAGER, South Milwaukee, Wis., assignors to Bucyrus Company, South Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Mar. 24, 1921. Serial No. 455,303. 17 Claims. (Cl. 214—135.)

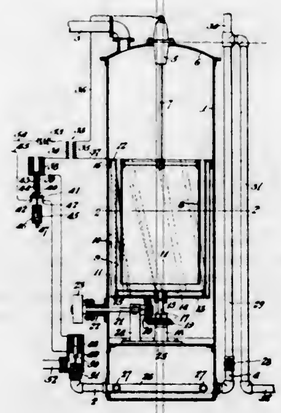
1. In a power shovel, the combination of a rotatabel platform, two independently rotatable drums mounted thereon, a boom carried by said platform, a dipper and dipper handle carried by said boom, a drum mounted beneath said boom and associated with said dipper handle, a cable connecting one of said first named drums with the drum on said boom, and a dipper hoisting cable connecting the other of said first named drums with the drum on said boom.

1,430,298. ROPE-THRUSTING SHOVEL. WALTER FERRIS, Milwaukee, and SVANTE R. W. M. BAGER, South Milwaukee, Wis., assignors to Bucyrus Company, South Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Continuation of application Serial No. 322,261, filed Sept. 8, 1919. This application filed Aug. 3, 1921. Serial No. 489,408. 26 Claims. (Cl. 214—135.)



8. In a power shovel, means for thrusting the dipper against the work, comprising a dipper handle, a shipper shaft associated with it, a drum thereon and cables wound thereabout in opposite directions and extending away from the drum and separate means under control of operator for controlling the operation of said cables.

1,430,299. MIXING DEVICE. CARL E. FLATTER and ORA E. CHRISTOPHER, Anderson, Ind., assignors of one-third to Luther Flatter, Muncie, Ind. Filed May 29, 1920. Serial No. 385,270. 1 Claim. (Cl. 48—180.)



A mixing device for internal combustion engines comprising a relatively thin washer member, a spider formed centrally thereof, a spindle extending axially through said spider and having its end upset for securing it to the spider, an enlarged head formed at the opposite end of said spindle, an integral enlarged portion on said spindle of greater diameter than the spindle and of less diameter than the enlarged head, a fan mounted on said enlarged portion of the spindle, a ring on either side of said fan, pins extending transversely through said rings and the interposed portion of said fan, and a bushing surrounding said spindle and extending from said spider to said fan for holding the fan on the enlarged portion of said spindle and adjacent said enlarged head.

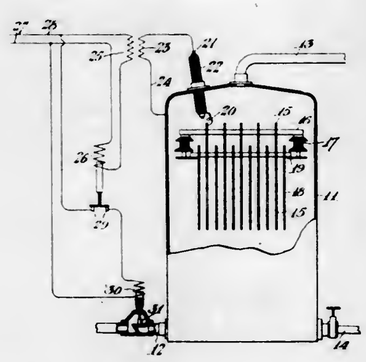
1,430,300. DEHYDRATOR. FORD W. HARRIS, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Petroleum Rectifying Company of California, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Sept. 7, 1920. Serial No. 408,694. 5 Claims. (Cl. 204—24.)

1. In a dehydrator for petroleum emulsions, the combination of: a stationary tank; a stationary inner electrode in said tank, said inner electrode being insulated from said tank; an outer electrode, electrically connected to said tank and situated between said tank and said stationary inner electrode; means for rotating said outer electrode; and means for impressing an electromotive force between said inner electrode and said outer electrode.



1,430,301. STARTER FOR ELECTRICAL DEHYDRATORS. FORD W. HARRIS, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Petroleum Rectifying Company, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Nov. 1, 1920. Serial No. 420,980. 4 Claims. (Cl. 204—24.)

1. The process of dehydrating emulsions which comprises circulating emulsion from a bulk supply through an electric field at such a velocity that the formation of permanent short circuit in that field is prevented and thereafter subjecting the coarse emulsion so formed in the bulk supply to the action of a second electric field in which the disruption of the current paths occurs automatically without mechanical agitation.

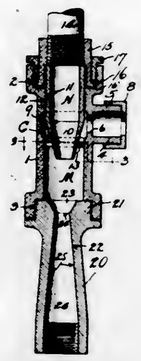
1,430,302. METHOD OF AUTOMATIC DEHYDRATION. FORD W. HARRIS, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor to Petroleum Rectifying Company, a Corporation of California. Filed May 31, 1921. Serial No. 473,875. 4 Claims. (Cl. 204—24.)



1. A dehydrator comprising a tank: electrodes in said tank; wires supplying electric current to said electrodes; an inlet pipe supplying oil to said tank; a valve in said inlet pipe; and means for closing said valve upon failure of the current supply.

1,430,303. PRESSURE-MIXING DEVICE FOR RAW WATER AND OZONE. HARRY BUXTON HARTMAN, Scottdale, Pa., assignor to Electric Water Sterilizer and Ozone Company, Scottdale, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 24, 1920. Serial No. 353,860. 3 Claims. (Cl. 261—76.)

1. A pressure mixing device for ozone water purifying apparatus including a body having a lateral ozone intake port, a Venturi member fitted to one end of the body, a raw water nozzle fitting into the other end of the body and having its discharge end projecting beyond the ozone inlet port, and a distributing baffle ring carried by the end of the nozzle.

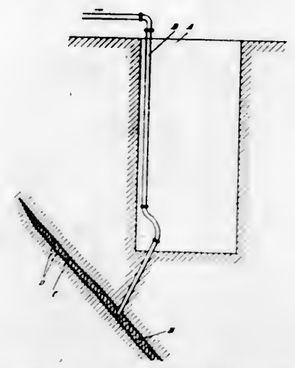
1,430,304. MANUFACTURE OF ACETIC ANHYDRIDE. HENRY DREYFUS, London, England. Filed May 24, 1921. Serial No. 472,283. 25 Claims. (Cl. 260—123.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



1. Process for the manufacture of acetic anhydride comprising bringing a salt of acetic acid into reaction with a pyrosulfate.

1,430,305. TRANSMISSION MEANS. EDUARD EUCKEN, Alzey, Germany. Filed Aug. 21, 1920. Serial No. 405,189. 1 Claim. (Cl. 64—52.)

Improved means for the transmission of power from a source of power, which is preferably mounted upon the same base of foundation as said means, to a working machine which is mounted at approximately right angles to said base of foundation comprising a counter-shaft, an oscillating frame in which said counter-shaft is mounted, an oscillating support for said frame of the counter-shaft, and means of transmission uniformly stretched automatically through pull resulting from the weight of the supporting system, substantially as described and shown and for the purpose set forth.

1,430,306. METHOD OF MAKING FISSURED WATER-BEARING STRATA WATER-TIGHT. ALBERT FRANÇOIS, Hatfield, near Doncaster, England. Filed Dec. 9, 1920. Serial No. 429,554. 6 Claims. (Cl. 61—36.)

1. A process for making fissured water-bearing strata watertight in cases where cement milk is injected and when it is found that the cement does not normally penetrate the fissures consisting in stopping the cementation step, injecting into the fissures a mixture in the form of a liquid holding a gelatinous precipitate in solution and thereafter resuming the injection of cement.

1,430,307. COIN AND STAMP BOX. JOHN R. HALLEY, Nashville, Iowa. Filed May 20, 1921. Serial No. 471,111. 2 Claims. (Cl. 232—33.)

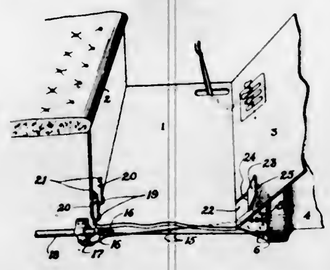
1,430,308. MILK-BOTTLE CAP. EDITH M. HILL, Melrose, Mass., assignor, by mesne assignments, to John E. Hill, Melrose Highlands, Mass. Filed Apr. 29 1920. Serial No. 377,646. 1 Claim. (Cl. 215—51.)

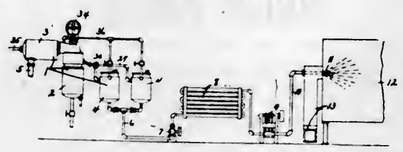


A milk bottle cap comprising a disk-shaped portion to close the neck of the bottle, said disk-shaped portion having integral therewith a resilient arm extending upwardly and inwardly from one edge of said disk and then outwardly, downwardly and inwardly to a point below said disk, the extremity of said arm being bent outwardly to form a finger piece and said arm having a curve of such shape that when the cap is closing the neck of the bottle said arm will clear the bead of the bottle neck and the lower end of the arm will engage the inclined under face of said bead whereby downward pressure on the finger piece causes such lower end to slide downwardly on the inclined face of the bead thereby causing the disk to tilt about its edge.

1,430,309. SPREADER. FRANK M. KINNARD, Sebring, Ohio, assignor of one-half to Charles L. Sebring, Sebring, Ohio. Filed Mar. 24, 1922. Serial No. 546,293. 12 Claims. (Cl. 25—26.)

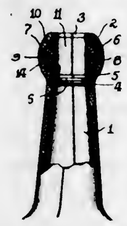
1. A spreader including a pivoted arm, a rotatable spreader tool carried by the arm, means for rotating the tool when the arm is lowered and means for automatically stopping the rotation of the tool when the arm is raised.

1,430,310. OIL-TESTING APPARATUS. CLARENCE A. MCINTOSH, Canton, Ohio. Filed Mar. 25, 1921. Serial No. 455,693. 1 Claim. (Cl. 180—77.)



In an automobile, an oil testing apparatus comprising a pair of valves connected to the rear end portion of the crank case of the automobile engine, one of said valves being located beneath and to one side of the other valve, and having a nipple extending to a point beneath the other valve, means for normally closing the valves, flexible members connected to the valves and extending to a point beneath the driver's seat, a window in the dashboard of the automobile located in a position to permit observation of the valves from the driver's seat, and a cover normally closing said window.

1,430,311. HARROW. EDWARD J. MANN, Rock Township, Woodbury County, Iowa. Filed Sept. 20, 1921. Serial No. 502,057. 5 Claims. (Cl. 55—84.)



1. A harrow draw-bar embodying an intermediate section, end sections, transverse pivot members on the end portions of the former section, on which the end sections swing vertically, and supporting strips pivoted coaxially with said members and secured to the end sections to prevent their declining below a determinate plane.

1,430,312. DESICCATED BUTTERMILK. IRVING S. MERRELL, Syracuse, N. Y., assignor to Merrell-Soule Company, Syracuse, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Original application filed Apr. 8, 1916, Serial No. 89,901. Divided and this application filed June 10, 1920. Serial No. 387,937. 3 Claims. (Cl. 99—5.)

3. As a new product, a soluble buttermilk powder having upon return to liquid form, a smooth, uniform appearance, and the dissolution of whose constituents upon return to liquid form will be arrested.

1,430,313. BOTTLE CLOSURE. VLADA MILLITY, Detroit, Mich. Filed Oct. 25, 1920. Serial No. 419,456. 1 Claim. (Cl. 215—76.)

The combination of a bottle neck having a head provided with an axial opening and a slot in said head disposed in a plane parallel to the longitudinal axis of the bottle neck and segment shaped in elevation, a closure member trunnioned in said bottle neck head and having an opening adapted to aline with the head opening, a coiled spring at one of the trunnions of said closure member maintaining said closure member normally closed with the axis of its opening at an angle to the axis of the bottle neck, and a handle carried by said closure member at the other trunnion thereof and extending through the slot of said bottle neck head.

1,430,314. ADVERTISING DEVICE. VIVIAN STREATFEILD MORLEY, Tankerton, England. Filed Aug. 17, 1920. Serial No. 404,055. 6 Claims. (Cl. 40—137.)

1. In an advertising device, the combination of two screens one of which is provided with a plurality of parallel opaque lines arranged thereon to obtain intervening clear spaces while the other screen is provided with a plurality of color lines of at least two different alternate colors arranged in more than one series, the lines of one series being inclined at a small positive angle, and the lines of another series being inclined at a small negative angle to those of the first mentioned screen.

1,430,315. ADVERTISING DEVICE. VIVIAN STREATFEILD MORLEY, Tankerton, England. Filed Aug. 17, 1920. Serial No. 404,056. 7 Claims. (Cl. 40—137.)

1. In an advertising device, the combination of two screens one of which is provided with a plurality of parallel opaque lines arranged thereon to obtain intervening clear spaces while the other screen is provided with a plurality of color lines of at least two different alternate colors arranged in more than one series, the lines of one series being inclined at a small positive angle, and the lines of another series being inclined at a small negative angle to those of the first mentioned screen.

1,430,316. OPTICAL SQUARE. PAUL NICHTERLEIN, Jena, Germany, assignor to the Firm Carl Zeiss, Jena, Germany. Filed Aug. 8, 1921. Serial No. 490,723. 2 Claims. (Cl. 88—1.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat L., 1313.)

1. In an optical square composed of two silvered glass plates and an intermediate member connecting the said plates, springs connecting the said glass plates in at least three places to the said intermediate member, the said springs being yielding only in a plane parallel to the plane of the reflecting surface of the plate.

1,430,317. CLUTCH-CONTROL LEVER. CLARENCE T. NORTON, Merrill, Iowa. Filed Mar. 26, 1920. Serial No. 368,836. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—89.)

A clutch-control for a motor-vehicle having a supporting part, a clutch-lever-shaft and a foot-lever on the shaft, comprising a quadrant positioned adjacent the side of the foot-lever and mounted therebelow on the supporting part, a hand-lever fulcrumed on the quadrant below the clutch-lever-shaft, a part on the lower end of the hand-lever extended rearwardly and upwardly, a lug adjustably secured on the latter part, and a lateral arm on the lug operatively engageable with the foot-lever.

1,430,318. CULINARY UTENSIL. CHARLIE OLSON, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Aug. 15, 1921. Serial No. 492,291. 2 Claims. (Cl. 107—50.)

1. A culinary utensil comprising a combination of a dough-roller, a pair of handles, a biscuit-cutter carried by one of said handles, a doughnut-cutter carried by the other handle, a grater formed on the end of the roller, and a measure seated in the opposite end of the roller, and a locking means for supporting the biscuit-cutter and doughnut-cutter in position on the ends of the roller, substantially as specified.

1,430,319. SELF-ALIGNING HIGH-SPEED BALL-RACE BEARING. JOHN W. PARKER, Detroit, Mich. Filed July 11, 1921. Serial No. 483,943. 6 Claims. (Cl. 64—36.)

1. In a ball bearing, an inner race ring and an outer race ring, one of said race rings having a radiused groove therein and the other an angled groove therein, a plurality of balls between said race rings and adapted to run in said grooves, two points of contact for said balls on each groove, said points of contact on the groove in the outer raceway being at different angles to the center lines of the balls.

1,430,320. DIRIGIBLE HEADLIGHT FOR AUTOMOBILES. NORMAN E. PHILLIPS and JAMES E. MATHERS, Washington, D. C. Filed Feb. 11, 1922. Serial No. 535,831. 4 Claims. (Cl. 240—41.)

1. In combination with an automobile and the steering knuckles thereof, a rack carried by one of said knuckles, a lamp case rigidly mounted on said automobile, a reflector mounted for oscillating movement within said lamp case, a flexible shaft connected to said reflector having a pinion mounted thereon and adapted to mesh with the rack carried by the knuckle and to actuate the oscillation of the reflector within the case, with, but at a greater angle than the steering knuckle.

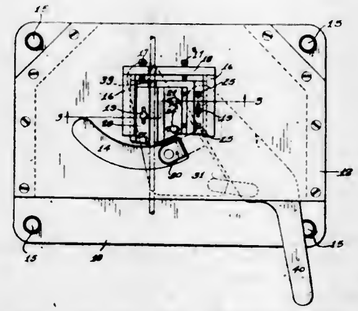
1,430,321. ARTICULATED STAY BOLT. ARTHUR F. PITKIN, Schenectady, N. Y. Filed Feb. 27, 1922. Serial No. 539,665. 2 Claims. (Cl. 85—1.5.)

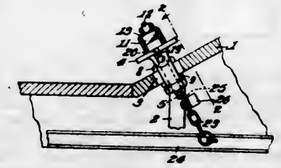


1. In an articulated stay bolt structure, the combination of a plug, adapted to be secured in an outer boiler sheet, said plug having a tapered threaded opening; an outer bolt section having a tapered threaded shank, fitting said opening and provided with a ball at its inner end, and a main bolt section having a socket.

1,430,322. WASHING MACHINE. RUDOLPH RAINALTER, Kansas City, Mo. Filed Jan. 28, 1920. Serial No. 354,601. 1 Claim. (Cl. 259—107.)

In a washing machine, a rectangular tub, a lid to said tub, a frame in the upper portion of the tub to reinforce the same, cross bars in the lower corners of the tub where the side walls join the bottom, baffle plates arranged in pairs and secured at their ends in said frame and the cross bars, a coupling, rods connected to the coupling and engaging the cross bars to retain the same in place, and an agitator within the tub to rub articles being washed against the baffle plates and said rods.

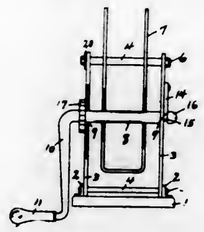
1,430,323. DEVICE FOR BENDING METAL RODS OR TUBES. JAMES N. REYNOLDS, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Mar. 5, 1921. Serial No. 449,815. 3 Claims. (Cl. 153—16.)



1. In a rod bending machine, a frame having an upper plate, guide members mounted on said plate and forming a guideway for rods to be bent, there being a slot in said plate adjacent the end of said guideway, a pivoted member mounted to move beneath said plate and having a bending roll extending through said slot, means for moving said bending roll in the slot to bend a rod held in said guideway, said means including a hand lever pivoted on said frame and means connecting the hand lever to the pivoted member whereby the latter may be actuated.

1,430,324. PROCESS OF MAKING ESTERS. WORTH H. RODEBUSH, Baltimore, Md., assignor to U. S. Industrial Alcohol Co., a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed May 8, 1919. Serial No. 295,748. 7 Claims. (Cl. 23—24.)

6. The process of producing an ester comprising heating between 160 and 180° C. under a pressure of about 150 lbs. per sq. in. ethylene dischloride and a salt of a fatty acid in the presence of ethyl alcohol.



1,430,325. AUTOMOBILE LOCKING DEVICE. JAMES F. ROSE, Bellaire, Ohio, assignor of one-half to Fred Del Vecchio, Bellaire, Ohio. Filed Jan. 26, 1922. Serial No. 531,887. 2 Claims. (Cl. 70—128.)

1. A lock for a pedal-carrying control lever of an automobile, comprising a member having a depending threaded stem mounted in a floor board adjacent to said lever with the lower end thereof located beneath said floor board, means for anchoring said stem against elevation, a locking bar pivotally carried by said member and adapted for vertical swinging movement to and from a position in which an end portion thereof occupies overlying seated relation to the pedal of the control lever when the latter is depressed, and rotary key-operated means whereby said locking bar is locked in said seated position in interengaged relation with said member.

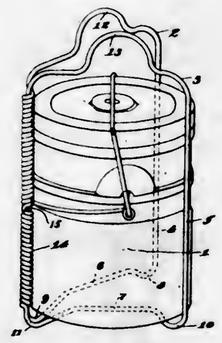
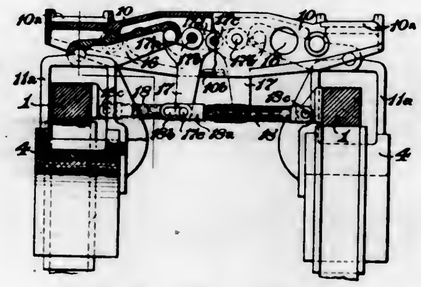
1,430,326. SPRING-REWINDING MACHINE. DOMENICK RUFF, Youngstown, Ohio. Filed Sept. 14, 1921. Serial No. 500,668. 1 Claim. (Cl. 153—64.)



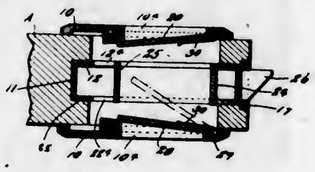
In a device of the class described, two vertical side plates, four bolts holding said side plates in a vertical position, a shaft journaled in said side plates, a stud on said shaft for the purpose of holding a spring end, a keeper member registering with a circular groove on the outer end of said shaft, a ratchet secured to said shaft, a dog registering with said ratchet, crank and handle for said shaft, in combination with a U-shaped guide member supported between the two side plates by said shaft, substantially as described for the purpose set forth.

1,430,327. DEVICE FOR EFFECTING THE COMBUSTION OF FUEL. ADELBERT SAUER, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Sept. 5, 1919. Serial No. 321,970. 10 Claims. (Cl. 158—99.)



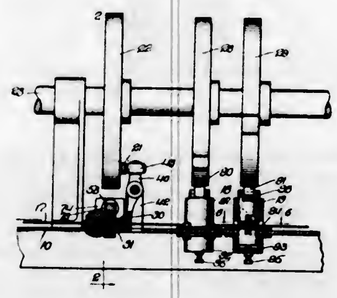
6. A device for effecting the combustion of fuel comprising a shell having an air inlet and a coniform discharge end, said discharge end being provided with an annular series of tangentially arranged spiral slots therein, a casing connected with said shell, a flared portion on said casing which surrounds said coniform discharge end but which is spaced therefrom to form a passageway, an annular heating chamber in said casing, means for supplying fluid to said annular heating chamber, means for permitting the passage of fluid from said chamber to said passageway, a nozzle at the rear of said shell, and a by-pass connecting said nozzle with said heating chamber.

1,430,328. JAR HOLDER. GEORGE H. SCOTT, Bridgewater, Mass. Filed Jan. 12, 1921. Serial No. 436,663. 10 Claims. (Cl. 53—1.)



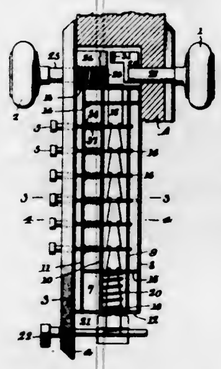
1. A jar holder comprising integrally united elements resiliently engageable with the side walls of a jar at a series of separated points, said elements being foldable whereby to lie substantially in the same plane.

1,430,329. LATERAL-MOTION APPLIANCE FOR LOCOMOTIVE DRIVING BOXES. FRANK F. SCOVILL, Schenectady, N. Y. Filed July 27, 1922. Serial No. 577,835. 9 Claims. (Cl. 105—80.)



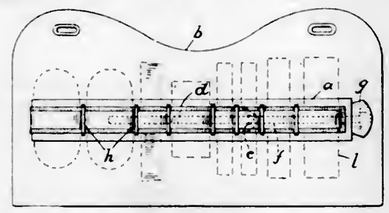
1. In a locomotive engine, the combination of a side frame; a driving box, fitted, with the capacity of lateral movement, therein; a spring supporting beam, which is vertically movable relatively to the driving box; and a lever, fulcrumed on the spring supporting beam and exerting bearing thereon and on the driving box, by which pressure is transmitted from one to the other of said members.

1,430,330. LATCH. JAMES L. SEAVER, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Feb. 1, 1921. Serial No. 441,547. 10 Claims. (Cl. 292—145.)



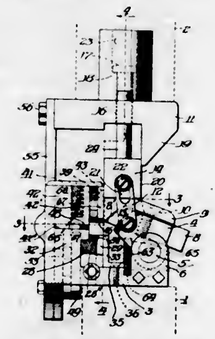
1. In a door latch of the class described, a housing provided with oppositely disposed hand openings, a rectangular frame slidably mounted in said housing and adapted to be manually operated through said hand openings and a latch bar fixed to said flange and designed when retracted to occupy a position wholly within said housing.

1,430,331. HAIRPIN-CRIMPING MACHINERY. HOMER P. SMITH, Appleton, Wis., assignor to Margaret Smith, Appleton, Wis. Filed Feb. 20, 1922. Serial No. 537,780. 18 Claims. (Cl. 140—87.)



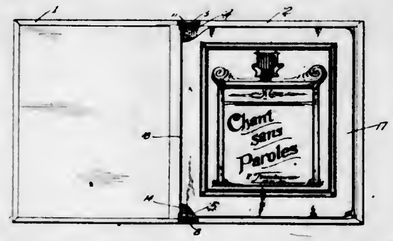
1. An improved process for making hair-pins with angularly displaced crimps on the respective prongs of said hairpin which consists in gripping the wire for the crimping operation on both prongs of said hairpin, then crimping one prong of said hairpin, then rotating the said wire through the desired angular displacement and thereafter crimping the second prong of said hairpin.

1,430,332. COMBINATION LOCK. HURLEY H. SMITH, Elkhart, Ind. Filed Mar. 3, 1922. Serial No. 540,704. 6 Claims. (Cl. 70—54.)



1. A combination lock comprising a frame, a locking bolt mounted to slide longitudinally in said frame and provided with shoulders at points intermediate its length, plates mounted to slide transversely in said frame and having cut-out portions adjacent said shoulders, certain of said cut-out portions registering with the locking bolt and others being out of register and having a portion of the plate underlying the shoulder to prevent movement of the bolt to unlocked position, a spring for normally holding the bolt in inoperative position, springs holding the plates in normal position, and finger keys for moving the operative plates to inoperative position.

1,430,333. MEANS FOR HOLDING FITTINGS IN BAGS. WILLIAM B. SMITH, Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 2, 1921. Serial No. 498,014. 7 Claims. (Cl. 190—41.)



1. Means for holding fittings in a bag comprising a base, a strip secured to said base, a band secured at one end and overlying said strip, the free end of said band extending beneath said strip, and means attached to said band whereby said free end may be drawn beneath said strip in one direction and said means moved relative to said band in the other direction.

1,430,334. NUT-CASTELLATING MECHANISM. ARTHUR SPEAR, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 26, 1920. Serial No. 369,117. 9 Claims. (Cl. 10—72.)

1. In a device of the kind described, a gang punch mounted upon bearings to swing up and down, a die device for holding a plurality of crowned nuts with their crowned ends facing the punch, the punch provided with forwardly projecting cutters, one for each nut, the cutters adapted to swing freely into the bores of the nuts and cut notches therein by pressing outwardly against a suitable die, and pressure means individual to each nut adapted to firmly seat the nut on the die, substantially as described.

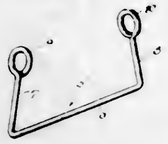
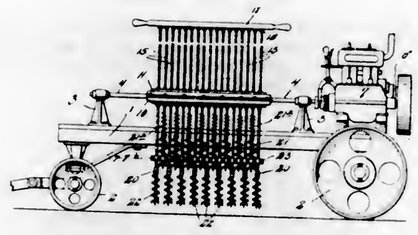
plates secured to the inner face of the stiff back near its ends, perforated abutments extending from the attaching plates, stops at the left sides of the abutments, said stops extending inwardly beyond the face of the stiff back, and cords inserted through the perforations and connecting the abutments.

1,430,336. FISH BAIT OR LURE. WILLIAM A. STOLLEY, Dowagiac, Mich., assignor to Jas. Heddon's Sons, Dowagiac, Mich. Filed Dec. 26, 1919. Serial No. 347,413. 10 Claims. (Cl. 43—46.)



1. In a fish bait or lure, the combination with a body provided with a downwardly and forwardly directed collar at its front end, of a double hook having upwardly directed points, hook attaching means whereby the hook is loosely and nonrotatably supported on the under side of said body at the rear end thereof, a streamer lying normally between the points of the hook, and a cruciform attaching device for said streamer having its lower longitudinal arm engaged with the front end of the streamer and its upper longitudinal arm engaged with the eye of the hook and its transverse arms clamped about the shank of the hook.

1,430,337. OIL BURNER. MORRIS GARDNER TALCOTT, Talcottville, Conn. Filed Nov. 24, 1919. Serial No. 340,216. 4 Claims. (Cl. 158—76.)



1. A burner comprising a fuel supply pipe, an air tube surrounding said fuel supply pipe and having an unobstructed open mouth concentric with said supply pipe, and a spreader having an unobstructed receiving recess in its under surface to receive the oil separately from the air, and force such oil, as it passes from said pipe, backwardly into the air currents in the open mouth of said air tube.

1,430,338. MEANS FOR SECURING SHINGLES TO ROOFS. JOHN A. TOPPING, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 18, 1921. Serial No. 453,434. 4 Claims. (Cl. 108—9.)

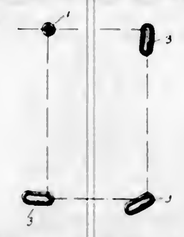
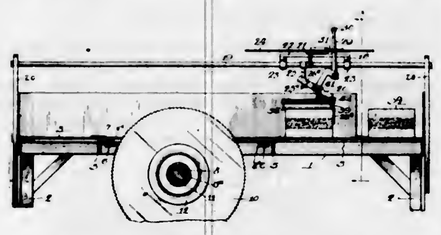
1,430,339. BORING MACHINE. HILRY M. TUCKER, Fort Worth, Tex. Filed Apr. 2, 1921. Serial No. 457,983. 3 Claims. (Cl. 144—110.)

1. In a boring and cutting machine, the combination of a support, a shaft mounted in bearings thereon, worm gears mounted on the shaft to turn therewith and be capable of movement longitudinally of the shaft, a casing mounted on the shaft and capable of longitudinal movement thereon, a battery of shafts extending through the casing and adapted to rotate and move endwise in the casing, means connecting the said shafts of the battery, worm gears keyed to the shafts of the battery, and through which the said shafts are endwise movable, said worm gears being arranged in the casing and intermeshed with the first-named worm gears, and augers carried by the forward portions of the shafts of the battery.



1,430,340. AUTOMATIC MECHANISM FOR PLAYER PIANOS. WILLIAM B. TUNSTALL, Worcester, Mass. Filed Jan. 28, 1921. Serial No. 440,589. 14 Claims. (Cl. 84—50.)

14. A pneumatic player mechanism having a vacuum chamber, and power pneumatics and valve mechanism for effecting and controlling the striking of notes, characterized by seats for the said valves between the valves and the conduits which connect with the power pneumatics whereby the valves, to open, move in the same direction as that in which air flows when a power pneumatic operates.



1,430,341. CARPET PROTECTOR. CLARA BELL WALSH, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Jan. 16, 1922. Serial No. 529,568. 1 Claim. (Cl. 45—137.)

A floor protector comprising a plurality of separate and independently attachable crater-like members, one of which serves as a pivotal point about which an article of furniture, whose legs are supported by said members, may be moved, the other of said members being curved and elongated to accommodate the swinging movement of the article of furniture about its pivotal point.

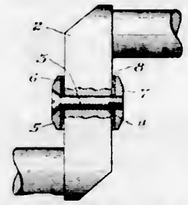
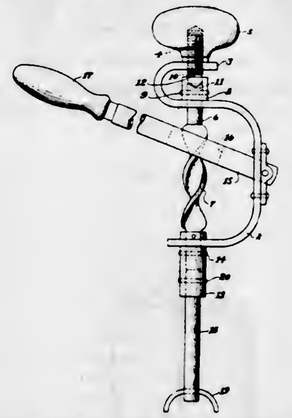
1,430,342. MACHINE FOR CUTTING BRICK ICE CREAM. WILLIAM C. WALSH, Chicago, Ill. Filed July 22, 1921. Serial No. 486,702. 17 Claims. (Cl. 107—22.)

1. In a machine of the character described, the combination of a table, a saw having a cutting edge above the surface of the table, a carriage comprising a brick engaging member, and means for lowering said brick engaging member into brick engaging position during the movement of the carriage in one direction, and for raising the same from brick engaging position during its movement in the opposite direction.



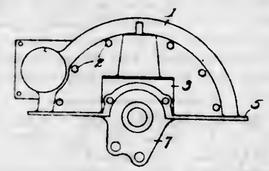
17. In a machine of the character described, the combination of a table, a spindle beneath said table, a plurality of circular saws mounted in predetermined spaced relation along said spindle, a portion of the saw blades extending through slots in the table surface, a carriage movable above the surface of the table parallel with the planes of said saws, and comprising brick engaging members suspended therefrom and consisting of a series of pusher plates located in horizontal alignment with the spaces between said saws, and a lever shiftable relative to said carriage in the movement thereof in opposite directions to raise and lower said plates from and into brick engaging position, and means interposed between said lever and pusher plates for exerting pressure indirectly to said plates.

1,430,343. HUSKING PEG. AUGUST S. WANNEMACKER, Cloverdale, Ohio. Filed Mar. 22, 1922. Serial No. 545,807. 3 Claims. (Cl. 130—10.)



1. A husking peg comprising a handle member, a husking peg pivoted exteriorly of the handle, said peg corresponding in length to the length of the handle, and means disposed between the peg and the handle for holding said peg in its closed or extended positions.

1,430,344. MEANS FOR SILENCING CRANK SHAFTS. CHILDE HAROLD WILLS, Marysville, Mich. Filed Nov. 12, 1920. Serial No. 423,682. 7 Claims. (Cl. 74—38.)



7. In a hydrocarbon motor, a crank shaft having an opening through a neutral section of a cheek thereof, a metal washer, a paper washer between said metal washer and the face of the cheek, and a retaining member engaging said metal washer.

1,430,345. VALVE-DRESSING TOOL. FRED WINDISH, Hartford, Conn., assignor of one-half to Martin Rudzik, Hartford, Conn. Filed Apr. 28, 1922. Serial No. 557,107. 1 Claim. (Cl. 51—29.)

A valve dressing implement comprising a body portion in the form of a yoke, one branch of which carries a handle, a sleeve supported for rotation by the other branch, and a spindle supported for rocking motion by one branch of the yoke and keyed to the sleeve carried by the other branch, said sleeve having means to removably fasten therein the shank of a tool, and a lever mounted for rocking motion upon the transverse portion of the yoke, the lever having a slot and the twisted portion of the spindle extending through the slot, the lever as it oscillates engaging said twisted portion to rock the spindle.

1,430,346. CASING FOR TRANSMISSION GEARINGS. WILLIAM S. WRIGHT, Newark, Ohio. Filed Feb. 17, 1922. Serial No. 537,212. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—56.)

1. A casing for change-speed transmission gearings, comprising two sections separable approximately in the horizontal plane of the main drive, the upper section carrying the entire transmission gearing with the change-speed gears suspended within the interior of the lower section and also carrying the driving clutch.

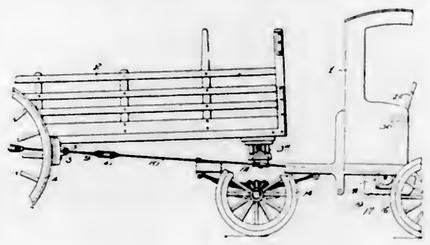
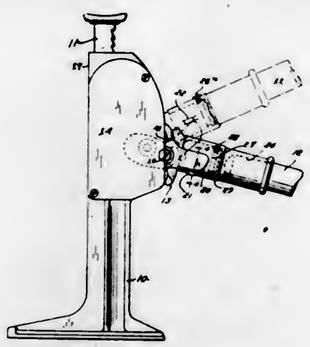
1,430,347. PROCESS OF PRODUCING PRINTING PLATES. EUGEN ALBERT, Munich, Germany. Filed May 19, 1914. Serial No. 839,663. 4 Claims. (Cl. 95—5.7.)

1. The process of treating a plate having thereon a coating of etching ground and an overlying light-sensitive bichromated colloid coating portions of which have been exposed to light to render them impermeable to a solvent liquid which process consists in subjecting such coated plate to the action of a solvent for the etching ground which solvent also possesses the property of permeating the unexposed portions only of the light sensitive coating and of simultaneously removing both the unexposed portions of said sensitive coating and their underlying etching ground without removing the exposed portions of the light sensitive film or their underlying etching ground, substantially as and for the purpose set forth.



1,430,348. SPRAYING ATTACHMENT. OLAF J. ARNESS, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Aug. 1, 1921. Serial No. 488,908. 4 Claims. (Cl. 299—85.)

1. A spraying attachment comprising a tank having at one end intake and discharge hose connections, a piston arranged in said tank, there being a water chamber on one side of said piston communicating with said hose connections and a chamber for a chemical solution on the other side of said piston, a rod connected with said piston and having a passage therein extending on one side of said piston and ports communicating respectively with said chemical solution chamber and with said water chamber, a valve mounted in said passage between said ports for cutting off the flow of the solution from one chamber to the other, and means extending to the outside of said tank for opening and closing said valve.



1,430,349. BRAKE MECHANISM. WILLIAM BARBER, New York, N. Y. Filed Feb. 14, 1918. Serial No. 217,055. 9 Claims. (Cl. 188—3.)

1. The combination with a tractor and trailer said tractor and trailer being pivotally connected together, of a brake for said tractor and a brake for said trailer, a manually operated brake control mechanism located on said tractor, connections between said brakes and said control mechanism, said connections comprising pairs of equal lever arms and inter-connecting links and means for connecting said brake control mechanism with said brakes to allow free pivotal movement between said tractor and trailer without interfering with the simultaneous application of said brakes upon the actuation of said brake control mechanism.

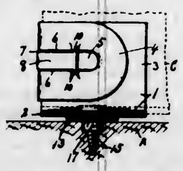
1,430,350. LIFTING JACK. EDMUND C. BATES, Alliance, Ohio, assignor to The Buckeye Jack Manufacturing Company, Alliance, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 8, 1920. Serial No. 422,488. 16 Claims. (Cl. 254—111.)

1. In a lifting jack, the combination with a raising mechanism, of a reversing device movable independently of the raising mechanism for determining the direction of actuation of said jack by its position and a member for operating the jack, said member being secured to the jack and serving for setting the reversing mechanism.

2. In a lifting jack, the combination of a raising mechanism, of a reversing device movable independently of the raising mechanism for determining the direction of actuation of said jack by its position, an operating member, and means rotatably mounted on said operating member and movable thereby for moving the reversing device for actuating the same.

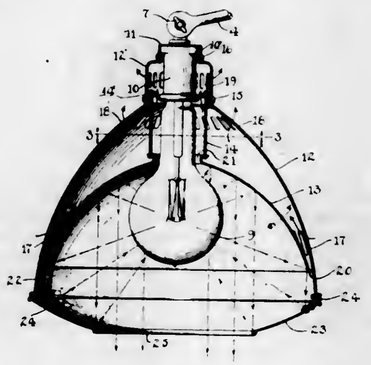
14. In a lifting jack, the combination with raising mechanism, of a reversing member, an oscillating lever connected with the raising mechanism, said lever having a cylindrical shank thereon, a recessed socket member rotatably embracing said shank, a handle non-rotatably connected to the socket member, an arm carried by the socket member and adapted to clear the reversing member during the normal oscillatory operation, said arm being adapted to engage the reversing member when the handle is rotated, whereby the subsequent operating movement of the handle shifts the reversing lever.

1,430,351. AUTOMATIC GAS CONTROL VALVE. PHILIP BENVISSUTO and LEUIGI MOMBARUZZO, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 30, 1920. Serial No. 420,802. 3 Claims. (Cl. 67—115.)



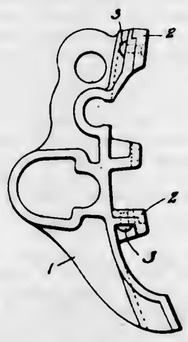
1. In a new article of manufacture, comprising in combination a hollow casing provided with a bottom having one smaller and one larger opening, a cylindrical body tightly fitting in said casing and rotatably mounted therein and having two longitudinal bores disposed diametrically opposite each other, one of which being of uniform diameter over its entire length, the other reduced at its lower portion, a hollow valve member fitting in the latter bore, means for turning said body into three different positions, one being that where said first mentioned bore registers with said larger opening, the other where said reduced bore registers with said smaller opening, and the third where neither of the bores register with any one of the openings, and means for keeping said body in any one of these positions at will.

1,430,352. AUTOMOBILE SIGNAL DEVICE. ALEXANDER BERGER, Bayside, N. Y. Filed May 1, 1922. Serial No. 557,769. 4 Claims. (Cl. 177—329.)



1. A signal device of the character described having a plurality of closed compartments, two of the compartments being in line with each other to contain right and left turn signals, and an intermediate compartment, said device being formed of sheet material including one integral piece which forms the base, end and upper walls of the right and left turn signal compartments and has an integral extension at the bottom to which a license plate is adapted to be attached, a second integral piece of sheet material adapted to fit over and form the top closing plate for the compartments together with means for readily detaching the same therefrom and having suitable transparent windows formed over the right and left turn signal compartments and a transparent window disposed under the aforesaid intermediate compartment.

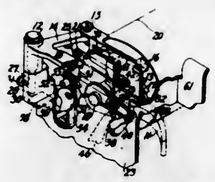
1,430,353. CARPET OR RUG FASTENER. WILLIAM BROOME, Oswego, N. Y. Filed May 12, 1922. Serial No. 560,329. 2 Claims. (Cl. 16—8.)



2. A carpet fastener comprising a floor member having a socketed head, a U-shaped clip adapted to receive the edge of the carpet between its opposite sides and having one side provided with a button for frictional engagement in the socketed head, a spring tongue having one end attached to the clip near the junction of said sides and its other end free to move in the intervening space, and a cam lever mounted on the clip for operating said tongue to grip the adjacent portion of a rug or carpet between opposite sides of the clip.

1,430,354. THERAPY LAMP. FRED F. BURDICK, Milton, Wis. Filed Apr. 24, 1920. Serial No. 376,374. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—1.)

A radio-therapeutic lamp casing comprising a conoidal outer wall formed and adapted to enclose the lamp as a whole to prevent side radiation, in combination with a conoidal inner reflecting wall open at the top and nesting therein, said inner wall being formed and adapted to enclose the lower bulging part of the lamp wherein the light is generated and having its lower edge turned outward against the lower part of said outer wall and the upward part being increasingly spaced toward the top, and threaded tension means for securing said walls together, the outer wall having ventilation apertures adjacent to the lower and upper edges of said inner wall whereby over-heating is prevented.



1,430,355. BRAKE HEAD. EDWIN G. BUSSE and GEORGE N. VAN SWERINGEN, Chicago, Ill., assignors to Chicago Railway Equipment Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Jan. 19, 1920. Serial No. 352,521. 6 Claims. (Cl. 188—236.)

3. A brake head comprising a body having a portion adapted to be mounted on the end of a brake beam and having integral extensions which are provided along their faces with undercut recesses spaced at substantial intervals, and renewable undercut lugs adapted to fit in said recesses and to support and space a brake shoe from said body.

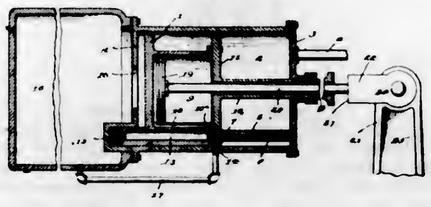
1,430,356. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. GEORGE W. CAMPBELL, Hartford, Conn., assignor to Underwood Typewriter Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 20, 1920. Serial No. 404,890. 10 Claims. (Cl. 197—114.)

1. In a typewriting machine, the combination of a revoluble platen, a line-space ratchet-wheel, operating means comprising a pawl to engage said line-space wheel to line-space the platen, and means comprising a regulator to swing said pawl to or away from the teeth of the line-space wheel, for pointing said pawl to different teeth of the line-space wheel to vary the line-spacing of the platen, said regulator comprising a forked guide embracing the pawl to guide the pawl in its line-spacing movements.



1,430,357. COMPOUND AIR BRAKE. WILLIAM G. CANION, Baltimore, Md., assignor to Canion Air Brake Company, Bisbee, Ariz., a Corporation of Arizona. Refiled for abandoned application Serial No. 791,809, filed Sept. 25, 1913. This application filed June 28, 1921. Serial No. 481,163. 6 Claims. (Cl. 303—32.)

6. In fluid pressure brake actuated apparatus the combination of a brake cylinder, a main brake piston therein, a cylinder and a charging reservoir therefor both carried by the main brake piston, said cylinder having ducts leading from opposite ends thereof to the said charging reservoir and said charging reservoir having a direct connection with said brake cylinder and a controlling valve to cause said charging reservoir to be charged from and with the brake cylinder, to also cause the charge in the charging reservoir to be utilized for moving the prime acting brake piston to brake applying position when the main brake piston is moving to such position, but at a higher rate of speed, and to exhaust from the main brake piston carried cylinder when the brake cylinder is recharged.

1,430,358. COMPOUND AIR BRAKE. WILLIAM G. CANION, Baltimore, Md., assignor to Canion Air Brake Company, Bisbee, Ariz., a Corporation of Arizona. Refiled for abandoned application Serial No. 819,265, filed Feb. 17, 1914. This application filed June 28, 1921. Serial No. 481,164. 5 Claims. (Cl. 303—32.)

4. In fluid pressure brake apparatus of the class described, the combination of a brake cylinder having an intermediate port, an auxiliary reservoir connecting with the rear end of said brake cylinder, a duct connecting said port with the auxiliary reservoir, a main brake piston normally closing said port and having a cylinder, a prime acting brake piston in the cylinder of the main brake piston and means actuated by release movement of the main piston to relieve pressure in the cylinder of said main piston behind the prime acting piston and by the braking movement of said main piston to charge the rear portion of said main piston cylinder from the brake cylinder and cause the prime acting piston to move relatively to the main piston and yieldable means to permit the main brake piston to momentarily open said port when the said piston moves to release position.

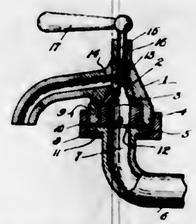
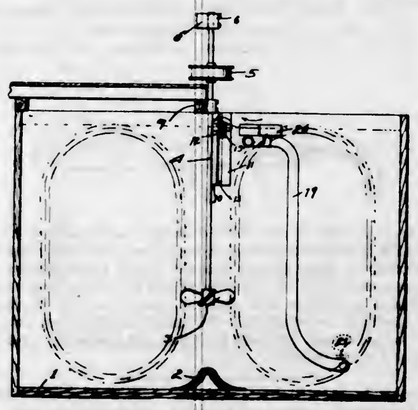
1,430,359. COMPOUND AIR BRAKE. WILLIAM G. CANION, Baltimore, Md., assignor to Canion Air Brake Company, Bisbee, Ariz., a Corporation of Arizona. Refiled for abandoned application Serial No. 846,831, filed June 23, 1914. This application filed June 28, 1921. Serial No. 481,165. 8 Claims. (Cl. 303—32.)

1. In fluid pressure brake apparatus of the class described, the combination of a brake cylinder, a main brake piston in the brake cylinder and having a cylinder movable with said piston, a prime acting brake piston in the cylinder of the main brake piston, a fluid pressure operated controlling valve carried by the main brake piston to charge the cylinder of the main brake piston from the brake cylinder on an initial braking movement of the main brake cylinder and cause the prime acting piston to move in said main piston, and means actuated by release movement of the main piston to cause said valve to relieve pressure in the cylinder of the main piston behind the prime acting piston, said valve operating means including a thrust rod carried by the main piston.



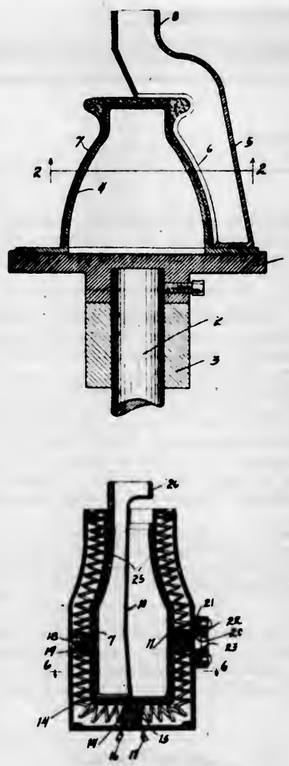
7. In fluid pressure brake apparatus of the class described, the combination of a brake cylinder, a main brake piston in the brake cylinder having a cylinder movable with said piston and also having a tubular piston rod; a prime acting brake piston in the cylinder of the main piston, having a piston rod operative in the tubular rod of the main cylinder, means operative on an initial movement of the main piston to charge the cylinder thereof and cause the prime acting piston to move therein, means to lock the piston rods of said pistons together after an initial braking movement of the prime acting piston, and means actuated by release movement of the main piston to cause said charging means to relieve pressure in the cylinder of the main piston behind the prime acting piston.

1,430,360. FABRIC. ROBERT M. CARSON and JOHN J. LEAHY, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Nov. 28, 1921. Serial No. 518,189. 19 Claims. (Cl. 139—9.)



1. A fabric of the class described comprising a stiffening base of relatively inferior material; and a ribbed pile-like face comprising relatively large weft threads substantially in contact, relatively fine weft threads positioned between the adjacent first mentioned weft threads, and binder warps binding together said face and base.

1,430,361. VALVE. JOHN P. CULLIGON, Columbus, Ohio. Filed Feb. 4, 1921. Serial No. 442,525. 1 Claim. (Cl. 251—95.)

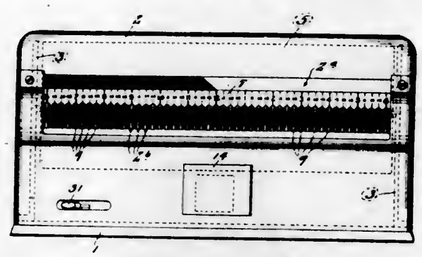


In a valve, a casing having a conical plug socket formed therein and an enlarged threaded portion extending from said socket, a hollow valve plug arranged to be rotatably engaged in said socket, a ring threaded in said threaded portion for engaging the plug to force the same into the socket, a fluid supply pipe having a collar thereon, a nut threaded on the casing and having an annular lip carried thereby for engaging said collar, a gasket disposed between the collar and ring, said nut serving to urge the gasket into engagement with the ring, whereby the gasket is held in tight engagement with the ring to hold the same against accidental rotation.

1,430,362. AGITATOR FOR LIQUID MATERIALS. WILLIAM G. DEVEREUX, San Mateo, Calif. Filed Feb. 2, 1922. Serial No. 533,054. 7 Claims. (Cl. 259—109.)

1. In an apparatus of the class described a liquid receptacle, an agitator therein for circulating the liquid in the receptacle, and a floating baffle plate to retard the rotation near the surface of the liquid.

1,430,363. PROCESS AND APPARATUS FOR APPLYING AND SHAPING PLASTIC MATERIAL. CHARLES S. DOLLEY, Nelson, N. H. Filed Dec. 5, 1919. Serial No. 342,677. 21 Claims. (Cl. 25—24.)



3. A device of the kind described comprising a support, a hollow member for containing plastic material adjacent one surface of said support having a slot therein extending from the center of the support to a point adjacent the periphery of the latter, and means for forcing plastic material outwardly through said slot onto the surface of the support, and means for simultaneously producing relative rotation of the support and said means.

4. A device of the kind described comprising a double-walled support, heating means arranged between the walls of said support, a hollow member for containing plastic material adapted to be inserted within said support having a slot therein extending from the center of the support to a point adjacent the periphery of the latter, means for forcing plastic material outwardly through said slot over the surface of the support, and means for simultaneously producing relative rotation between the support and said member.

1,430,364. ANNUNCIATOR. CLYDE P. EVANS, St. Louis, and MILFRED L. GREENSTREET and WALLACE DAY, Maplewood, Mo.; said Greenstreet and said Day assignors to said Evans. Filed Nov. 15, 1921. Serial No. 515,400. 21 Claims. (Cl. 161—4.)

1. An annunciator having a part movable by a time train, a series of contacts arranged on said movable part, elements each adapted to be moved into a position in the path of movement of said contacts, an electric circuit, and a signal placed in operative position upon the completion of said electric circuit by the engagement between one of said time train driven contacts and one of said elements.

1,430,365. COMPOSITE-SHEET BODY. GEORGE S. FINNEY, Chicago, Ill., assignor of one-half to Byron D. Adsit, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 21, 1921. Serial No. 471,435. 3 Claims. (Cl. 154—51.)

1. A composite sheet body for roofing, or like purposes, comprising a plastic stratum and an adherent surfacing for the same consisting of a granulated fused non-absorbent, vitreous composition of mineral substances.

2. A composite sheet body for roofing, or like purposes, comprising a plastic stratum and embedded therein, a granular material consisting of a fused composition of slag and silica.

3. A plastic body having incorporated into the superficial portion of the same, in a granular state, a substance consisting of a fused non-absorbent, vitreous composition of lime and silica.

1,430,366. TEMPORARY BINDER. LOUIS LEROY FLECK, New York, N. Y., assignor to Alexander Hamilton Institute, a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 14, 1922. Serial No. 543,620. 5 Claims. (Cl. 129—35.)

1. In a temporary or loose leaf binder comprising cover pieces for the sheets or leaves to be bound, extensible clamping means supported by one cover piece and arranged between the two cover pieces, the said clamping means consisting of upright posts having grooves in opposite faces, and co-operating clamping elements with finger-like projections to fit within the grooves of the posts to maintain a definite relationship between the clamps and posts, and threaded fastening means extending through the other cover piece and into the posts for maintaining the clamps in operative position, and also securing the cover pieces in proper relative position or book-like form.

1,430,367. REAR-AXLE CONSTRUCTION. HENRY FORD, Dearborn, Mich. Filed July 10, 1918. Serial No. 244,151. 6 Claims. (Cl. 74—99.)

6. In a rear axle construction wherein rear axle housings are connected to the sides of a transmission housing, and shafts extend through said rear axle housings into said transmission housing:—a differential mechanism for said shafts, said differential mechanism including a housing having end portions solely supported by said rear axle housings independent of said transmission housing and said shafts.

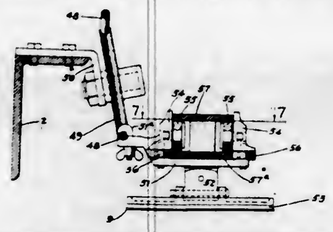
1,430,368. GAUGE COCK. HENRY A. FRACKELTON, Schenectady, N. Y. Filed Apr. 26, 1921. Serial No. 464,553. 3 Claims. (Cl. 251—22.)

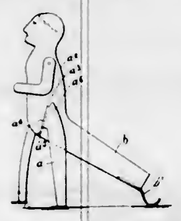
1. The combination, in a gauge cock, of a tubular body; a tubular bonnet; an interposed valve seat; a coupling nut, detachably connecting the body and bonnet; a main valve stem, having a threaded connection with the bonnet; a supplemental valve stem, having a threaded connection with the body; an operating closure valve and a repair closure valve, carried by said supplemental valve stem; and means for detachably connecting the main and supplemental valve stems.

1,430,369. REMOVABLE-TINE PITCHFORK. HENRY C. FUNK, Grant Township, Riley County, Kans. Filed Sept. 6, 1921. Serial No. 498,654. 3 Claims. (Cl. 294—49.)



1. In a tool of the class described comprising a head divided lengthwise forming a main head and face-plate, a plurality of tines having grooves in the butts thereof, a corresponding rib on the edge of one portion of said head adapted to engage said grooves when the two portions are brought together with the tines therebetween, means for securing said portions together, and means for attaching a handle thereto.

1,430,370. SANDING MACHINE. JOHN GALBRAITH, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Apr. 23, 1921. Serial No. 464,056. 7 Claims. (Cl. 51—141.)



1. In a sanding machine, a guide bar comprising flat upper and lower plates arranged in parallel relation and spaced apart and means at intervals securing the middle portions of said plates together, an unobstructed passage being provided between said plates upon each side of said securing means, a sanding head arranged beneath the lower member of said guide bar and having anti-friction bearings on the longitudinal edges of said lower member, and similar bearings between said members, and a sanding shoe connected with said head.

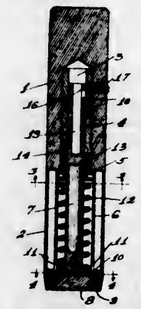
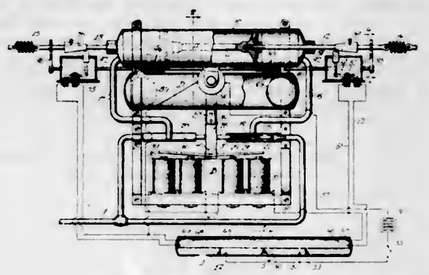
1,430,371. WALKING MECHANISM FOR TOYS AND OTHER ARTICLES. CHARLES JAMES HARVEY, Kidderminster, England. Filed Jan. 30, 1920. Serial No. 355,076. 9 Claims. (Cl. 46—40.)



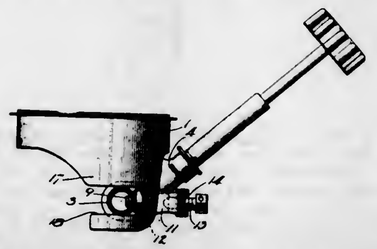
1. In mechanism for making movement, the combination of a body provided with means for preventing lateral oscillatory motion thereof; and a leg element; the leg element comprising rigid leg members, and transverse connecting means for coactively controlling the leg members for alternate movement thereof, whereby when said body is moved horizontally along on a plane surface and the leg members are contactable with said surface one leg member is moved to body-supporting position, and the other leg member is lifted and moved forwardly with a stepping motion; the leg members being spaced apart at their upper ends in adjacent opposite relation to each other and diverging downwardly.

1,430,372. JOURNAL LUBRICATOR. JAMES J. HENNESSY, New York, N. Y. Filed Sept. 20, 1921. Serial No. 501,866. 7 Claims. (Cl. 64—25.)



1. In a journal lubricator, a lubricant reservoir, a pump for elevating lubricant from said reservoir to a journal, and a pump operating member extending through the bottom of said reservoir.

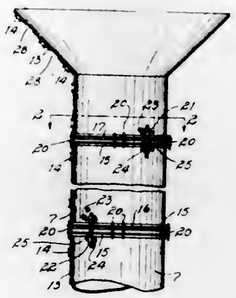
1,430,373. GASKET CUTTER. CHARLES H. HENNINGS, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 17, 1921. Serial No. 492,926 6 Claims. (Cl. 164—33.)



1. A device of the class described comprising a handle member, a cutter thereon, a second cutter coaxial with the first cutter and supported by the handle member, a rod slidably mounted in the second cutter, an ejector-plunger on the rod slidable in the end of said second cutter, a second ejector-plunger slidable between the first and second cutters and connected to said first mentioned ejector-plunger for movement therewith, and a helical spring inside the second cutter for normally forcing said plungers outwardly.

1,430,374. STABILIZER. WILLIAM F. HENSEL, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 16, 1920. Serial No. 351,892. 14 Claims. (Cl. 244—29.)

6. A stabilizer for air planes having a fluid motor for operating a wing of the plane, means controlled by the inclination of the plane for controlling said motor, and automatic means for producing an intermittent operation of said motor.



1,430,375. OIL STOVE. RUDOLPH HOFFMAN, Kankakee, Ill., assignor to Sears, Roebuck and Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 12, 1919. Serial No. 276,536. 11 Claims. (Cl. 158—87.)

1. The combination of an oil burner comprising a base having a burner bowl mounted therein, a feed pipe, and means establishing communication between the burner bowl and the feed pipe, said means comprising a valve controlled fitting having an upright portion rigidly secured to the burner bowl at the forward side thereof and a substantially horizontal portion extending inwardly and rearwardly beneath the burner and detachably secured to the pipe.

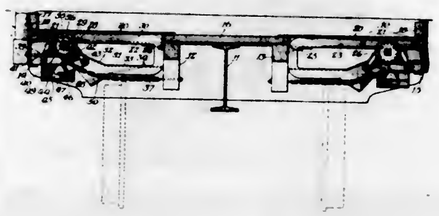
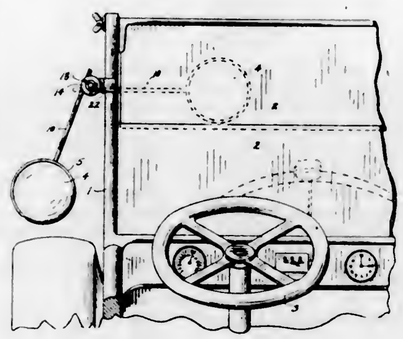
1,430,376. FORM FOR CONCRETE COLUMNS. CHARLES H. HORMANN, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Jan. 16, 1922. Serial No. 529,593. 2 Claims. (Cl. 25—118.)



1. A concrete form comprising a split section, having its ends overlapping, dove-tailed strips secured along the overlapping portions, clips for holding the sections in shape, sectional and detachable stiffening bands for the sections, means for tightening the bands on the sections and prevent lateral shifting of one form section relative to the other, and a locking mechanism comprising a wedge for fastening the ends of the sections to each other.

1,430,377. OIL GAUGE. HAROLD T. HOPS, Acampo, Calif. Filed July 20, 1921. Serial No. 486,144. 4 Claims. (Cl. 73—82.)

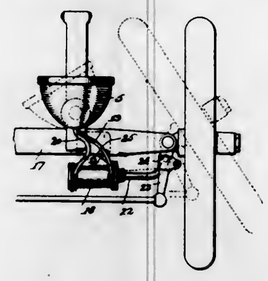


1. A gauge for liquid-reservoirs including an indicating dial, a rotatable finger co-operating therewith, a float in the liquid, a vertical stem mounted on the float and offset from the dial, a pinion fixed in connection with the finger, a rack bar meshing with the pinion, said bar and dial being substantially vertical, a horizontal arm mounted on the stem, and a connection between the arm and bar to allow of relative sliding and swivel movement therebetween.

1,430,378. CAR-DOOR-OPERATING MECHANISM. WILLIAM JOSEPH HOSCEIT, Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 10, 1917. Serial No. 190,505. 4 Claims. (Cl. 105—205.)

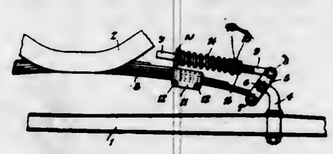
1. In a railway car, the combination of a movably mounted door, an operating shaft for supporting the door, a ratchet wheel mounted on said shaft, a member pivotally mounted on said shaft, pawls pivotally mounted on said member and cooperating with the said ratchet to operate the shaft for movement of said door, and means for holding one of said pawls out of engagement with said ratchet wheel.

1,430,379. COMBINATION MIRROR AND LIGHT SHIELD. HARVEY HUBBELL, Bridgeport, Conn. Filed June 7, 1921. Serial No. 475,667. 2 Claims. (Cl. 45—97.)



2. A device of the class described including a supporting clamp comprising spaced sections provided with means for clamping the frame of an automobile wind shield, having aligned recesses in their opposed surfaces and one of said members having a transverse opening from its recess, a support extending through said opening and provided with a ball adapted to be clamped in said recesses, a mirror, a rod for supporting said mirror, and means for securing the rod to said support constructed to support the mirror at will either at one side of the wind shield or in front thereof to provide a light shield.

1,430,380. DIRIGIBLE HEADLIGHT FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. ROBERT DONALD INNIS, Marion, Ind. Filed July 5, 1921. Serial No. 482,343. 6 Claims. (Cl. 240—62.)



1. In an apparatus of the class set forth, a rotatable headlight, a fluid-actuated means rotating the headlight, and a power-actuated means for actuating the aforesaid means from the steering gear of the vehicle, said power-actuated means embodying a cylinder pivotally mounted on the vehicle, a piston and piston-rod therefor, and means for adjustably attaching the piston-rod to the steering knuckle.

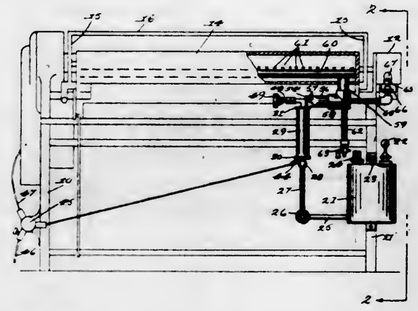
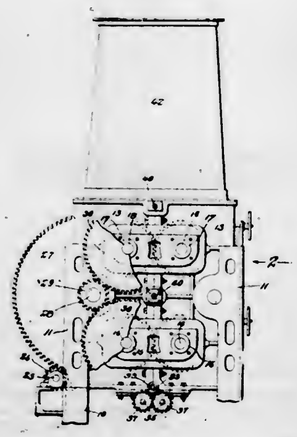
1,430,381. SPRING-EQUALIZER DEVICE FOR VEHICLES. HERBERT JOHNSON, New York, N. Y., assignor of one-half to William H. White, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Nov. 12, 1921. Serial No. 514,555. 12 Claims. (Cl. 267—17.)



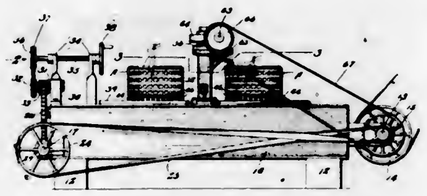
2. In a spring suspension for vehicles, the combination with a main spring interposed between the framework and an axle of the vehicle, of an abutment means on said spring, means movable by said main spring when subjected to load or shock, one of said means including an adjustable element, and resilient means interposed in its entirety between said adjustable element and the other of said means, and compressible throughout its entire length by the movement of said movable means.

1,430,382. FENCE. OTTO JOHNSON, Freeland, Mich. Filed June 15, 1921. Serial No. 477,789. 2 Claims. (Cl. 256—27.)



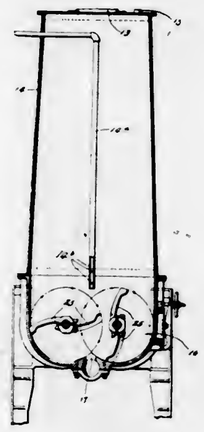
1. A fence panel having terminal upright channeled bars and upper and lower post engaging means of which the former consist of eyes, the lower post engaging means at opposite ends of the panel consisting respectively of parallel tongues and a single tongue, arranged in different horizontal planes and terminally arranged respectively in different vertical planes.

1,430,383. VAPORIZER FOR FUEL HEATERS AND BURNERS. GEORGE PAUL KITTEL, Union Hill, N. J. Filed June 8, 1921. Serial No. 475,991. 7 Claims. (Cl. 158—22.)



7. A device of the character described adapted to be attached to a laundry machine comprising a pair of smoothing rollers, a pressing medium for each of said rollers, a plurality of burners within each pressing medium, a fuel tank containing fuel under pressure, a vaporizing cylinder, a pipe connected with said cylinder for feeding the fuel to said burners under the admixture of air, valves for controlling the quantities of fuel fed to said cylinder and said burners, a means for filtering the fuel, and a means for exhausting the products of condensation.

1,430,384. FLUXER FOR FUEL-BRIQUETTE MATERIAL. GUSTAV KOMAREK, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Malcolmson Engineering and Machine Corporation, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Apr. 1, 1919. Serial No. 286,788. 7 Claims. (Cl. 259—6.)



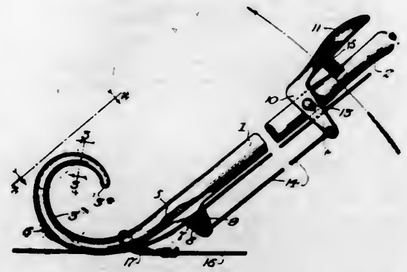
1. An apparatus of the character described comprising an unobstructed tapered chamber, widest at its lower end, means for agitating material adjacent to the lower end of said chamber, and means for controlling the discharge of the material from the bottom of said chamber,

1,430,385. MILLING MACHINE. GUSTAV KOMAREK, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Malcolmson Engineering and Machine Corporation, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed May 24, 1920. Serial No. 383,762. 18 Claims. (Cl. 90—18.)

1. In a mold ring milling machine, a multiple cutter, means for indexing the mold rings and locking them angularly, and work supporting members arranged to move simultaneously toward said multiple cutter.

1,430,386. METHOD OF TREATING FUEL FOR BRIQUETTING PURPOSES. GUSTAV KOMAREK, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Malcolmson Engineering and Machine Corporation, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Dec. 31, 1920. Serial No. 434,342. 3 Claims. (Cl. 44—10.)

3. The method of treating fuel for briquetting purposes which includes combining coal dust with a binder, forming a vertical column of the mass, applying heat to the column, and kneading the mass in the lower portion only of the column.



1,430,387. SURFACE-FINISHING IMPLEMENT. JOSEPH F. KRALL, Chicago, Ill. Filed Nov. 9, 1921. Serial No. 513,997. 16 Claims. (Cl. 144—2.)

1. A surface finishing implement comprising a portable carriage, upright guide bars hingedly secured thereto, a tool carrying head movably mounted on said guide bars, a reciprocatory tool mounted in said head, means for raising and lowering said tool carrying head, and means for operating the tool.

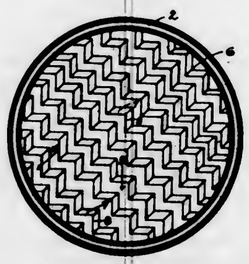
1,430,388. WIRE-STRETCHING TOOL. JOHN W. LESLIE, Evanston, Ill. Filed Oct. 25, 1920. Serial No. 419,445. 16 Claims. (Cl. 254—77.)

1. A binder stretching tool comprising a shank provided with a curvilinear end portion having a binder receiving groove extending along the outer face thereof.



1,430,389. ADJUSTABLE SUPPORT. CHARLES A. LINDBERG, Sturgis, Mich., assignor to Sturgis Steel Gocart Company, Sturgis, Mich. Filed June 24, 1921. Serial No. 480,105. 8 Claims. (Cl. 296—110.)

8. In a structure of the class described, the combination of a supporting plate, a bracket pivotally mounted on said supporting plate, a stud projecting inwardly from said supporting plate, a lever-like locking dog for said bracket member engaged on said stud and having its inner end engaged with said plate so that it is supported for swinging movement, and a spring arranged on said stud to act on said dog.

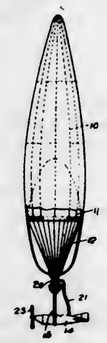
1,430,390. HEADLIGHT SCREEN. EDWIN W. LODGE, Norfolk, Va., assignor of one-fourth to Frederick D. Cock, Hampton, Va. Filed Mar. 30, 1922. Serial No. 548,052. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—48.4.)

A headlight screen, and in combination with a supporting rim and its glass or lens, of a ring positioned on the inner side of the said glass having a series of independent stripe across the diameter thereof and disposed at an angle each having bends to form steps, said steps having their horizontal and vertical portions at right angles to each other with the apices of the angles in alignment for directing rays of light downwards and at a given angle.

1,430,391. GAS HEATER. HERMAN E. LOEBE, Jersey City, N. J. Filed Oct. 3, 1921. Serial No. 505,005. 4 Claims. (Cl. 126—35.)



1. In combination with a heater a flame spreader of the class described, comprising an annular plate supported in the heater, a spacing hub extending to each side of the annular plate and supported thereby, and two dish-shaped plates, one mounted on each end of the spacing hub and both facing inward, the upper plate having grooves cut in the edge of its lower face extending radially outward.

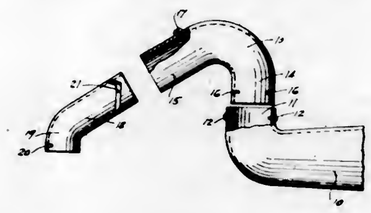
1,430,392. COLORED FIBROUS COMPOSITION AND PROCESS OF MANUFACTURE THEREOF. ALAN R. LUKENS, Wyoming, Ohio, assignor to The Richardson Company, Lockland, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 1, 1920. Serial No. 421,148. 4 Claims. (Cl. 106—31.)

1. A fibrous composition comprising a candle tar base suitably treated to prevent oxidation and give desired strength and resiliency a coloring matter, and fibre, incorporated together by the fibration process.

1,430,393. DIRIGIBLE. CARLETON JOHN LYNDE, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Quebec, Canada. Filed Mar. 5, 1921. Serial No. 449,693. 1 Claim. (Cl. 244—6.)

A dirigible, including an envelope, a suspending means secured to said envelope, a ring attached to said suspending means, a sleeve rotatably attached to said ring and communicating with the interior of said envelope, a yoke rockingly attached to said sleeve, a secondary yoke attached to said first named yoke, a propeller having its line of pull in line with said point of rocking connection of said last named yoke with the gondola, and means within said gondola for compressing fluid and introducing the same into said sleeve.

1,430,394. AUTOMATIC DISPLAY SIGN. EUGENE H. MCGEE, Chicago, Ill., assignor of one-fourth to F. L. Barchard and one-fourth to James E. McCaffery, both of Chicago, Ill. Filed Oct. 26, 1921. Serial No. 510,473. 9 Claims. (Cl. 40—31.)



1. A display sign, comprising two spaced spools, a flexible display strip extending between said spools, and arranged to be wound thereon from one to the other and vice versa, the ends of said strip being secured to said spools, separate spool rotating mechanism for each spool, each including a motor and arranged to rotate one spool at a time in a direction to wind the strip thereon, and thereby unwind it from the other spool, and control mechanism for said motors, operating in conjunction with said strip to set the motor in motion for that spool from which the strip is unwound.

1. A tone arm for sound reproducing machines comprising a body portion having a lateral, approximately right angular bend, a laterally disposed gooseneck oscillatably mounted in the free end of the tone arm body, a tubular connector having one end inserted in the gooseneck and mounted for limited oscillation therein through an angle of approximately 180°, the forward end of said connector being angularly bent to an angle of approximately 30° with relation to the axis of the connector, and a sound box mounted upon the end of the connector and having a stylus arm, the stylus arm having a longitudinally extending stylus socket and a transversely extending stylus socket.

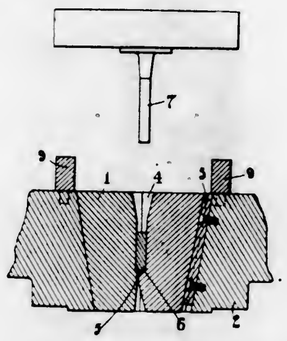
1,430,396. AMUSEMENT DEVICE. WILLIAM G. MILLER, Boston, Pa. Filed Mar. 4, 1922. Serial No. 541,139. 9 Claims. (Cl. 104—63.)

3. The combination, in an amusement device, of elevated tracks which have their rails raised at parts throughout the length thereof and which are inclined in the same direction from the said raised parts, a truck arranged for travel on the tracks, a car suspended from the truck, means engaging the car to move the same bodily to cause the truck to travel over the raised portions of the track and for imparting an impeding motion to the car and truck to cause the latter to travel over the inclined portions of the tracks, means transferring the truck from one on to the other track, and means imparting a reverse movement to the truck, and a swinging motion to the car at the interval of such transfer.

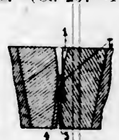
1,430,397. FURNACE-CHARGING DEVICE. WILLIAM E. MOORE, Beaver Falls, Pa. Filed Aug. 2, 1920. Serial No. 400,790. 7 Claims. (Cl. 214—18.)



1. In a furnace charging device, a receptacle mounted on wheels, a vibrator attached to one end of said receptacle, the vibrator end of said receptacle being closed and the other end of said receptacle being open, the part of said receptacle extending from the wheels to the vibrator being of greater length than the other part of said receptacle, whereby the vibrator end of said receptacle will be heavier than the opposite end and therefore prevent the chute end from swinging downward.

1,430,398. BLADING FOR TURBINES. CHARLES ALGERNON PARSONS, ALFRED QUINTIN CARNEGIE, and MATTHEW BONE, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, and STANLEY SMITH COOK, Wallsend-upon-Tyne, England; said Carnegie, said Bone, and said Cook assignors to said Parsons. Filed July 7, 1919. Serial No. 309,207. 12 Claims. (Cl. 253—77.)

1. An extruded turbine blade having a base integral therewith.



1,430,399. MANUFACTURE OF ARTICLES BY EXTRUSION. CHARLES ALGERNON PARSONS, ALFRED QUINTIN CARNEGIE, and MATTHEW BONE, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, and STANLEY SMITH COOK, Wallsend-upon-Tyne, England; said Carnegie, said Bone, and said Cook assignors to said Parsons. Original application filed July 7, 1919, Serial No. 309,207. Divided and this application filed Dec. 7, 1921. Serial No. 520,623. 11 Claims. (Cl. 207—10.)

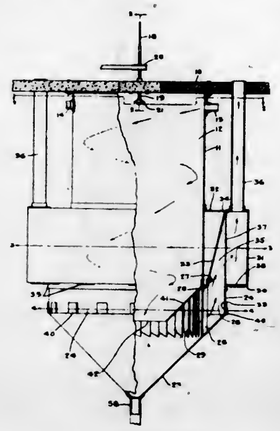
1. A process of manufacturing finished metal articles having a stem and base, according to which a metal billet is introduced into a container and at a single operation part of said billet is extruded from the said container to form the stem and another part of said billet is drop-forged to form a base integral with said stem.

3. A process of manufacturing turbine blading, according to which part only of a metal billet is extruded to form the blade and another part of said billet is formed into a base integral with said blade.

1,430,400. MANUFACTURE OF BLADING FOR TURBINES. CHARLES ALGERNON PARSONS, ALFRED QUINTIN CARNEGIE, and MATTHEW BONE, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, and STANLEY SMITH COOK, Wallsend-upon-Tyne, England; said Carnegie, said Bone, and said Cook assignors to said Parsons. Filed Apr. 14, 1920. Serial No. 373,937. Renewed Aug. 22, 1922. Serial No. 583,643. 6 Claims. (Cl. 207—17.)

1. A die of the type described having an aperture to receive the billet provided with an enlarged bottom, and an orifice through which the billet may be extruded extending from said enlarged bottom.

1,430,401. PENCIL HOLDER. ALONSO D. PERALTA, Guatemala, Guatemala. Filed Sept. 10, 1921. Serial No. 499,622. 3 Claims. (Cl. 120—18.)



3. A pencil holder including an internally and externally screw threaded casing, a pencil in the casing, a threaded sleeve on the pencil engaging the inner threads of the casing, a protecting sleeve removably encircling one end of the casing and adapted to be unscrewed to expose the pointed end of the pencil.

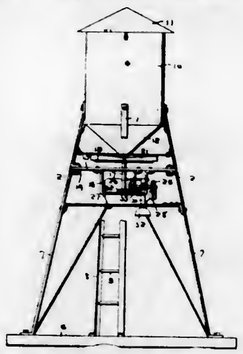
1,430,402. SUSPENSION CHAIN FOR ELECTROLIERS AND FOR LIKE ELECTRICAL PURPOSES. ERNEST JOSEPH PERRY, Birmingham, England. Filed Nov. 17, 1921. Serial No. 515,902. 1 Claim. (Cl. 247—30.)

In a chain of the class described, a sheet metal link of concavo-convex cross section, arranged with the concave side outermost, and a sheet metal link of concavo-convex cross section, engaged with the first named link and arranged with the concave side innermost, the first named link having a boss on its inner side at the point of engagement, said boss fitting in the concave side of the last named link and effecting a pivotal connection between the links.

1,430,403. PROCESS AND APPARATUS FOR ACTING UPON MILK. FREDERICK A. PLUMMER, Minneapolis, Minn., assignor of one-half to Arthur Dorland Gray, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 28, 1920. Serial No. 377,312. 11 Claims. (Cl. 127—9.)

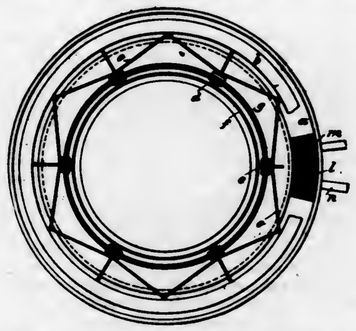
4. An apparatus for producing and collecting dried products of liquid substances which consists in a casing forming a vertical cell, a second casing forming a chamber surrounding the bottom of said cell, there being openings at a multiplicity of points around the bottom of the cell and into said chamber, means for introducing finely divided liquid at the top of the cell, means for introducing air in tangentially-oblique currents into the top of the cell whereby the air and suspended material are caused to move downwardly through the cell in a cyclone and to discharge through said openings into the second chamber, and means associated with said openings for causing the air in the second chamber to continue its cyclonic movement whereby the solids in the air are acted upon by centrifugal force and gravity and are thereby separated from the air.

1,430,404. APPARATUS FOR TREATMENT OF THE FEET. MARY A. RADFORD, Oakland, Calif. Filed Nov. 3, 1921. Serial No. 512,452. 1 Claim. (Cl. 128—293.)



In a device of the character described, a non-porous stocking in which the foot is adapted to be inserted, a shoe in which the foot of said stocking are adapted to be encased, and a heating element associated with said shoe.

1,430,405. POULTRY FEEDER. GOTTLIEB REINHARDT, Saginaw, Mich. Filed June 18, 1919. Serial No. 305,094. 1 Claim. (Cl. 116—67.)



The combination of a support provided with an offset, of a bell suspended from the bottom of the support, a rotatable shaft journaled in the support below and in proximity to said offset, an outwardly and inwardly movable clapper depending from the offset and adapted to tap the bell on the inward movement thereof, means for pivotally supporting the clapper from the offset, and a cam mounted on the shaft and on the operation of the shaft engaging the clapper for moving the same outwardly from the bell,

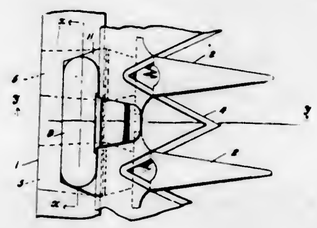
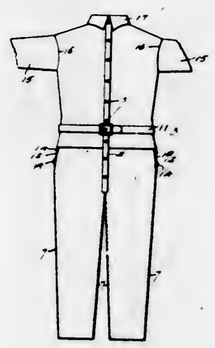
1,430,406. WIND MOTOR. CARL SCHULTHES, Berlin, and BERNHARD MORA, Lubeck, Germany. Filed Nov. 25, 1921 Serial No. 517,762. 7 Claims. (Cl. 170--26.)



1. In a wind motor in combination, a substantially cylindrical open-work structure, vanes attached to said structure, a float secured to the base of said structure and means connected with said structure for transmitting power.

1,430,407. NUMBERING FIXTURE. JOSEPH SEVERSON, Ozone Park, Long Island, N. Y. Filed June 17, 1920. Serial No. 389,680. 6 Claims. (Cl. 90—13.)



1. A numbering fixture including in combination with the tracing stylus of a pantograph, of a plurality of discs positioned adjacent said tracing stylus, said discs being movable with respect to one another.

1,430,408. HARVESTER CUTTING MECHANISM. PATRICK J. SHAW, Dixon, Calif. Filed Apr. 25, 1921. Serial No. 464,140. 2 Claims. (Cl. 56—307.)

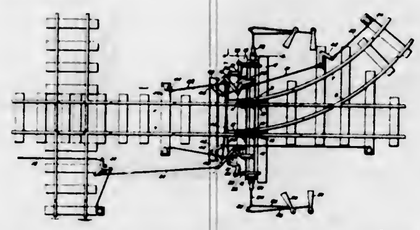
1,430,409. UNION GARMENT. WILLIAM S. SKELTON, Evansville, Ind. Filed Sept. 30, 1920. Serial No. 413,768. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—144.)

A garment having a trouser section and an upper section, said trouser section having a seat member capable of opening and overlapped by said upper section when closed, loop means on the seat member passable through the adjacent portion of the upper section, in combination with a belt separable from the section to take up the slack at the waist of the garment and insertible through said loop means exteriorly of the upper section to support the trousers and close the seat section.



1,430,410. SAFETY DEVICE. SIEGFRIED SHOLD, Mansfield, Ohio. Filed Oct. 22, 1921. Serial No. 509,554. 9 Claims. (Cl. 74—105.)

1. In a safety device for machines having co-operating pressure elements, a disk provided with a cam face mounted for rotation on the frame of the machine, a mechanism comprising a connected link mechanism provided with an arm which is adapted when actuated by the cam to oscillate to and fro in the direction of the operator between the co-operating pressure elements, said oscillating arm being adapted to be adjusted to swing to different positions relative to the die and punch and being adjustably secured to the pivoted plate to change the throw of the oscillating arm.

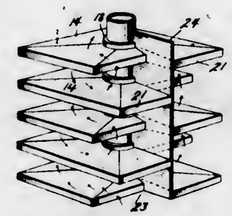
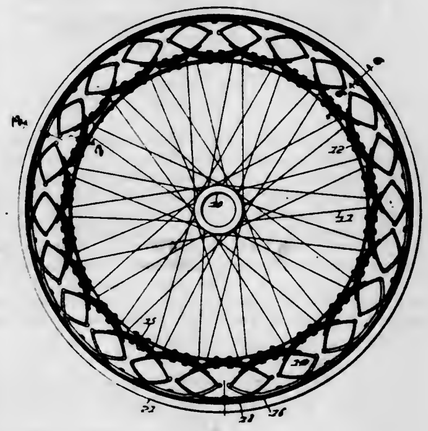
1,430,411. RAILWAY SWITCH AND SIGNAL MECHANISM. JAMES P. SKARTCHEARIS, Jamestown, N. Y. Filed May 13, 1921, Serial No. 469,281. Renewed Aug. 14, 1922. Serial No. 581,839. 9 Claims. (Cl. 246—323.)



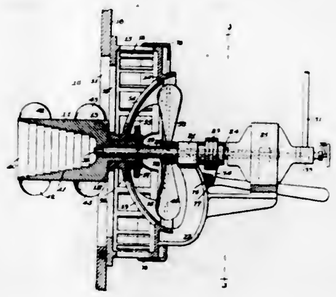
1. In a combined railway switch and signal of the class described, in combination with the switch points of a railway track, a signal and switch point operating bar slidable with the said switch points, lever operated, vertically movable members outside the switch points for locking said bar, and a trip mechanism for releasing said locking means to actuate said bar and open or close the selective switch points.

1,430,412. TRACK-SWITCH-TRIPPING MECHANISM. JAMES P. SKARTCHEARIS, Jamestown, N. Y. Filed May 13, 1921, Serial No. 469,282. Renewed Aug. 14, 1922. Serial No. 581,840. 7 Claims. (Cl. 246—361.)



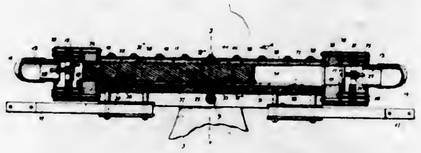
2. A trip operating mechanism of the class described, in combination with a railway car, comprising a horizontally movable trip operating bar supported for movement to opposite sides of a track, and pneumatic means for actuating said bar to the left or right to its engaging operative position.

1,430,413. HEATER. HARVEY N. SMITH, Allentown, and GRANVILLE A. WARTMAN, Bethlehem, Pa. Filed Mar. 22, 1920. Serial No. 367,986. 7 Claims. (Cl. 122—218.)



2. A water heater comprising a combustion chamber, a water jacket surrounding said combustion chamber, means for introducing water into said water jacket, a plurality of superimposed heating units arranged in spaced relation and having offset portions arranged in staggered relation, and a vertical baffle plate connecting said offset portions, whereby the products of combustion escaping from the combustion chamber are directed into contact with the entire exposed surface of each successive heating unit.

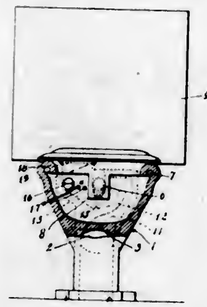
1,430,414. SPRING WHEEL. ENRIQUE BRANDAO SOBA, Montevideo, Uruguay. Filed Apr. 4, 1921, Serial No. 458,202. Renewed Aug. 14, 1922. Serial No. 581,841. 6 Claims. (Cl. 152—8.)



6. In a spring wheel, an inner rim, a plurality of circular series of resilient elements arranged about the inner rim, a circular member of resilient material arranged about each circular series of resilient elements, transverse connecting members extending across the outer portions of the circular members, and crossed members connected with the extremities of the transverse members.

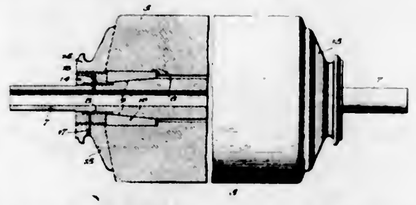
1,430,415. HYDROCARBON BURNER. DAVID MCBAIN SYME, Newport, R. I., assignor to Hydro-Carbon Burner Manufacturing Company, Newport, R. I., a Corporation of Rhode Island. Filed Mar. 1, 1921. Serial No. 448,889. 11 Claims. (Cl. 158—77.)

1. In a hydrocarbon burner, an atomizer comprising a cup having a cylindrical periphery and interior means for atomizing and spreading the liquid fuel in front thereof, and propeller blades extending from the periphery for producing a current of air and projecting the same forward straight into the spread and atomized liquid fuel at an angle thereto.



1,430,416. PUMPING MECHANISM. JAMES F. THOMAS, Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Filed Oct. 27, 1921. Serial No. 510,917. 9 Claims. (Cl. 103—171.)

1. In a mechanism of the class specified, a rocking cylinder having interior plastic walls and provided with intake and discharge connections at opposite ends, the intake and discharge connections being provided with reversely opening valves, a piston freely slidable in the cylinder and operable by gravitating movement thereof alternately towards opposite ends of the cylinder, the cylinder and piston being angular in contour and having a snug relative fit, a single pipe connection for each inlet and outlet at opposite ends of the cylinder, and means for rocking the cylinder, piston and connections as a unit.



1,430,417. TOILET BOWL. LEWIS D. TUCKER, Gloucester, Mass. Filed July 26, 1920. Serial No. 398,868. 1 Claim. (Cl. 4—22.)

A bowl having an outlet and having a conductor pipe extending transversely through the wall of the bowl adjacent the upper end thereof for supplying water to the bowl, the bowl having in its walls a vertically disposed overflow passage having its lower end communicating with the outlet of the bowl and having its upper end portion provided with arms extending upon opposite sides of the conductor pipe, one arm having a side opening forming an inlet communicating with the interior of the bowl, and a baffle plate positioned in the upper portion of the overflow passage at the lower end of the arm thereof and extending beneath and partially about the water supply pipe of the bowl to provide a water seal sink, the water supply pipe of the bowl having an opening for feeding water to the water seal sink.

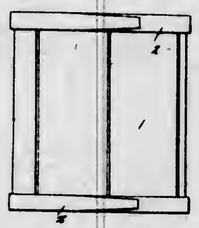
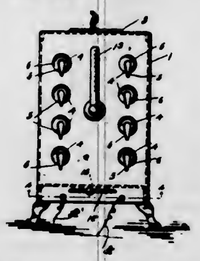
1,430,418. STONE PRESS ROLL. JOHN WARREN VEDDER, Worcester, Mass. Filed Aug. 30, 1921. Serial No. 496,820. 8 Claims. (Cl. 92—49.)



1. In a roll, the combination of a stone body having a central bore, a metal shaft extending through said bore and projecting at both ends of the stone body to constitute bearings on the roll for engagement with supporting bearings, and means securing said stone body upon said shaft said means including at one or both ends of the roll a bushing or sleeve on the shaft fitting in the end of the bore of the stone body member and having an exterior surface adapted to tightly engage the opposing surface of said bore and said bushing having an interior surface adapted to closely fit the opposing surface of the shaft member, the opposing surfaces of said bushing and of one of said members being correspondingly tapered and said bushing being movable longitudinally to the shaft without rotary movement relative to the stone body in bringing the bushing to its position between the shaft and stone body, and means engaging the shaft and adapted to be brought into engagement with the end of the bushing without engaging the stone body to secure the bushing in place.

1,430,419. BARREL OR DRUM CONSTRUCTION. JOSEPH L. WALKER, Baton Rouge, La., assignor to K-D Barrel and Hamper Co., Baton Rouge, La. Filed June 11, 1921. Serial No. 476,855. 4 Claims. (Cl. 217—96.)

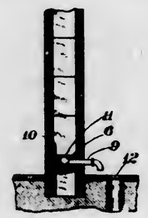


1. A container including strips of veneer each having its outer face beveled along opposed longitudinal edges, said levels being concaved, the concaved bevel along one edge of each strip lapping and contacting with the inner face of the next adjoining strip.

1,430,420. VENEER DRUM OR THE LIKE. JOSEPH L. WALKER, Baton Rouge, La., assignor to K-D Barrel and Hamper Co., Baton Rouge, La. Filed July 11, 1921. Serial No. 476,856. 1 Claim. (Cl. 217—89.)

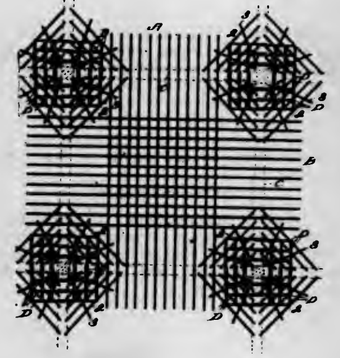
The combination with a container, of means for fastening a head thereto, said means comprising a single strip of bendable metal having a recess in one end forming spaced prongs, said prongs being extended at right angles from the strip for insertion into the wall of the container, an offset intermediate portion formed by the strip and constituting a head supporting shoulder and an inclined brace for the shoulder, one end of the strip being bendable onto the supported head to hold it on the shoulder, and fastening means extending through the strip between the prongs and the brace and into the wall of the container, said prongs constituting means for holding the wall against splitting by the fastening means, and a fastening device insertible through the bendable end of the strip for fastening it to the supported head.

1,430,421. STERILIZER. ALLEN J. WALTER, Mansfield, Ohio. Filed Sept. 15, 1920. Serial No. 410,450. 4 Claims. (Cl. 219—35.)



1. In a sterilizer a container, means to heat the interior of the container, and tubular receptacles communicating with openings in a wall of the container.

1,430,422. PAIR OF SUSPENDERS. JOHN T. WATTS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed May 18, 1921. Serial No. 470,554. 3 Claims. (Cl. 241—28.)

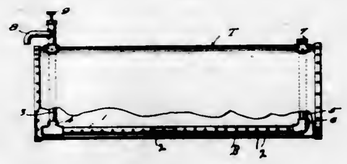


1. A pair of suspenders comprising a pair of shoulder straps; attaching means connected to the front ends of said straps; upper guides secured to the back end of said straps; a looped cord slidably extending through said guides; a pivot member secured to each leg of said cord; a loop guide on each pivot member through which the loop in the cord slidably extends; slip bands on said cord between said loop guides; an adjustable tie strap connecting the legs of the cord together; and a buttonhole tip on each end of said cord.

1,430,423. FOOTING FOR CELLAR WALLS. CHARLES F. WEICHOLD, Worthington, Ohio. Filed Mar. 20, 1922. Serial No. 544,993. 4 Claims. (Cl. 72—10.)

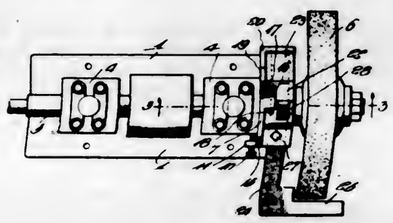
1. A footing for a wall having a substantially horizontally extending water collecting channel in its top and an outlet for the collected water.

1,430,424. CONCRETE FLOOR CONSTRUCTION. HEWITT L. WELLS, Washington, D. C., assignor to T-Beam Engineering Company, Washington, D. C., a Corporation of the District of Columbia. Filed Dec. 22, 1921. Serial No. 524,052. 10 Claims. (Cl. 72—15.)



1. A concrete floor including supporting columns, beams spanning the space between such columns, and a concrete slab having a plurality of spaced apart reinforcing steel bars arranged in two series at right angles to each other and supported by said beams, in combination with reinforcing elements at the bottom of the slab in the space adjacent said column defined by beams or other supporting means between columns lying at right angles to each other.

1,430,425. WATER DRAIN FOR GASOLINE TANKS. JOSEPH WIDME, Twin Valley, Minn. Filed Mar. 1, 1920. Serial No. 362,499. 1 Claim. (Cl. 210—51.)



The combination with an oil storage tank, of a perforated pipe, said perforations increasing from small at one end of pipe to large at the other; an upstanding discharge pipe connected at first mentioned end of pipe, a plunger mounted in said discharge pipe to create a suction, an upstanding air inlet pipe connected at opposite end of longitudinal perforated pipe, both of said upstanding pipes extending above the tank, and a cap having an aperture mounted on end of said air inlet pipe.

1,430,426. WORK SUPPORT FOR GRINDING MACHINES. MARCO GIOVANNI ZONGARO, Portland, Oreg. Filed Sept. 19, 1921. Serial No. 501,680. 6 Claims. (Cl. 51—238.)

1. A work support comprising an arm adapted to pivot about the arbor of a grinding wheel, said arm having a

1,430,428. HYDROCARBON-OIL BURNER. GEORGE F. ALLEN, Oronogo, Mo. Filed Mar. 30, 1920. Serial No. 369,845. 1 Claim. (Cl. 158—75.)

A hydrocarbon burner including a casing having a vlave seat, means of fuel supply leading to said casing, a valve in said casing cooperating with said seat to control the supply of fuel therethrough, a fuel supply pipe leading to said casing, a tip in the outlet end of said pipe, a needle extending from said valve and cooperating with the tip as a valve therefor, a jacket about said pipe in communication with a source of fluid supply, a head engaging said pipe and said jacket, a nozzle for said jacket having a constricted end disposed in advance of said pipe and jacket, a sleeve disposed in said constricted portion, and a burner nipple extending from said sleeve.

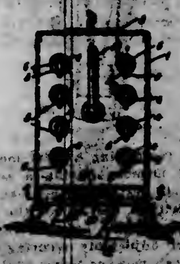
ing members mounted adjacent said foot rest, selective means to reciprocate one of the polishing members in contact with the shoe and means to rotate the polishing set upon cessation of the reciprocatory motion thereby to bring the other polishing members into successive operating position.

1,430,431. BUILDING BLOCK. MARTIN L. BINKLEY, Lima, Ohio. Filed Sept. 7, 1918. Serial No. 253,063. 1 Claim. (Cl. 72—38.)



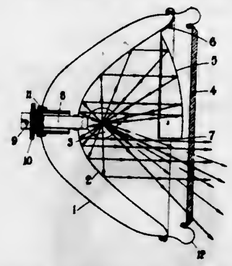
In combination, a plurality of building blocks, one end of each block being provided with a dovetailed tongue, the opposite end of said block having a dovetailed groove corresponding to and receiving the dovetailed tongue of an adjacent block, the bottom wall of the groove and the face wall of the tongue having oppositely curved longitudinally extending concavities, which register and form a space for the reception of a binding agent, which constitutes means to spread the blocks and force the undercut walls of the dovetailed tongue and groove into binding contact, the concavities being of less width than the width of the tongue and groove, whereby the tongue and groove may tightly interengage, the adjacent corner end faces of the blocks adjacent their outer faces having correspondingly shaped vertically extending rabbets for mating relation and receiving a binding agent for additionally holding the blocks together.

1,430,432. CONICAL OR CYLINDER GRINDING MILL.

angles from the strip for insertion into the wall of the container, an offset intermediate portion formed by the strip and constituting a head supporting shoulder and an inclined brace for the shoulder, one end of the strip being bendable onto the supported head to hold it on the shoulder, and fastening means extending through the strip between the prongs and the hinge and into the wall of the container, said prongs constituting means for holding the wall against splitting by the fastening means, and a fastening device insertible through the bendable end of the strip for fastening it to the supported head.

1,430,421. STERILIZER. ALVIN J. WALTER, Mansfield, Ohio. Filed Sept. [illegible] 1920. Serial No. 410,450. 4 Claims. (Cl. 219—[illegible])

1. In a sterilizer a container, means to heat the interior of the [illegible] and tubular receptacles communicating with [illegible] in a wall of the container.



1,430,422. PAIR OF [illegible]. JOHN T. WALSH, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed May 13, 1921. Serial No. 470,554. 2 Claims. (Cl. [illegible])

1. A pair of [illegible] straps; [illegible]

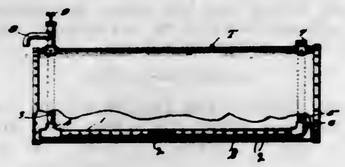
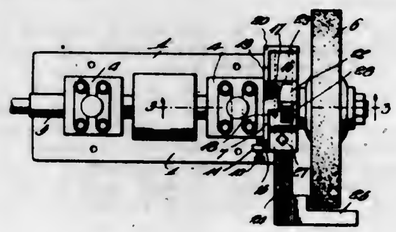
1. A footing for a wall having a substantially horizontally extending water collecting channel in its top and an outlet for the collected water.

1,430,424. CONCRETE FLOOR CONSTRUCTION. HEWITT L. WELLS, Washington, D. C., assignor to T-Beam Engineering Company, Washington, D. C., a Corporation of the District of Columbia. Filed Dec. 22, 1921. Serial No. 534,062. 10 Claims. (Cl. 72—15.)



1. A concrete floor [illegible] supporting columns, beams spanning the space between such columns, and a concrete slab having a plurality of spaced apart reinforcing steel bars arranged in two angles at right angles to each other and supported by said beams, in combination with reinforcing elements at the bottom of the slab in the space adjacent said column defined by beams or other supporting means between columns lying at right angles to each other.

1,430,[illegible]. WATER [illegible] FOR GASOLINE TANKS. [illegible] Wilde, Twin Valley, Minn. Filed Mar. 1, 1920. Serial No. 362,498. 1 Claim. (Cl. 210—51.)



[illegible] combustible with an oil storage tank; [illegible] pipe, said pipe [illegible] extending from said

one end of pipe to large at the other; an upstanding discharge pipe connected at first mentioned end of pipe, a plunger mounted in said discharge pipe to create a suction, an upstanding air inlet pipe connected at opposite end of longitudinal perforated pipe, both of said upstanding pipes extending above the tank, and a cap having an aperture mounted on end of said air inlet pipe.

1,430,426. WORK SUPPORT FOR GRINDING MACHINES. MARCO GIOVANNI ZONGARO, Portland, Oreg. Filed Sept. 19, 1921. Serial No. 501,680. 6 Claims. (Cl. 51—238.)

1. A work support comprising an arm adapted to pivot about the arbor of a grinding wheel, said arm having a work rest, means for pivotally mounting said arm at one side of the wheel, a handle connected with said arm for swinging it downwardly to operatively position the work support or upwardly to move said work support to an inactive position, means for holding said arm, and hand operated means on said handle for controlling said holding means.

1,430,427. VALVE MECHANISM. CARLTON H. ALLEN, Millinocket, Me., assignor of one-half to Great Northern Paper Company, Millinocket, Me., a Corporation of Maine. Filed May 28, 1920. Serial No. 384,943. 15 Claims. (Cl. 92—46.)

1. A valve mechanism of the character described comprising a valve element having an annular port therein, an annular element for closing said port more or l... and means for relatively moving said elements to v... the flow of fluid through said port.

1,430,434. HAIRPIN. WILLIAM H. BURNS, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 23, 1919. Serial No. 306,095. 4 Claims. (Cl. 132—50.)

4. A hairpin comprising an arrow-head shaped loop having rounded corners and constricted at its base to provide a comparatively narrow throat, arms extending outwardly from opposite sides of the throat and converging throughout a length of from two to three times the length of the loop, the arms terminating in tips first flaring outwardly and then converging throughout a length substantially equal to the length of the loop and defining an area approximately equal thereto.

1,430,435. SAFETY BOTTLE. FRANCISCO CLARK, Durango, Mexico. Filed Sept. 16, 1921. Serial No. 501,105. 6 Claims. (Cl. 215—32.)

4. A container of the class described having a cap formed with a depending annular flange to extend about the upper portion of a bottle neck, the said flange and the bottle neck having opposed channels, a split ring accommodated in said channels, and a glass disk on top of the bottle neck beneath the cap.

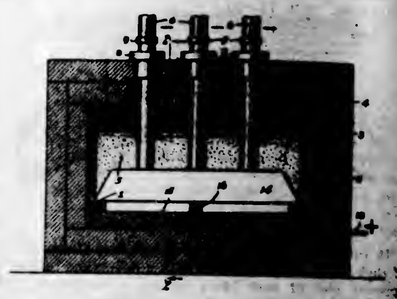
1,430,436. AUTOMOBILE TIRE. MARTIN S. CORBETT, Glassboro, N. J. Filed July 2, 1921. Serial No. 482,208. 1 Claim. (Cl. 152—18.)

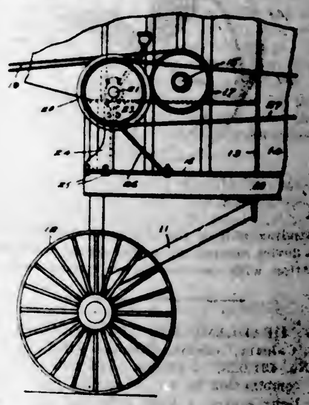


The combination with a rubber tire casing, of a plurality of coil springs embedded in the casing transversely thereof and immediately adjacent the outer surface of the tire, a plurality of series of coil springs embedded in the tire between the first coil springs and the inner surface of the tire casing, one series adjacent the inner surface of the tire casing, the other series immediately adjacent the transverse springs and the inner series, said series of coil springs extending circumferentially of the tire and at right angles to the transverse springs, the intermediate circumferentially arranged springs being in staggered relation, whereby the convolutions of the inner series register with the spaces between the outer series of said circumferentially arranged springs, thereby preventing the penetration of a sharp object and the puncturing of the inner tube, the transverse and intermediate circumferential springs terminating a short distance from the rim engaging flanges of the tire casing, thereby leaving the flanges to be freely flexible, whereby they may be easily and quickly engaged and disengaged on and from the rim.

1,430,437. TIME INDICATOR. CHARLES M. CROOK, Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 4, 1919. Serial No. 321,627. 22 Claims. (Cl. 234—43.)

5. The combination with a rotatable indicating wheel having two sets of indicia thereon, of means for moving said wheel to bring said indicia to an indicating position and means for automatically shifting said wheel to change the sets of indicia without interfering with the progressive movement of the wheel.

1,430,438. ELECTRIC FORGING AND HEAT-TREATING FURNACE. FREDERICK G. DAWSON, Detroit, Mich. Filed Jan. 11, 1921. Serial No. 436,617. 3 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.)



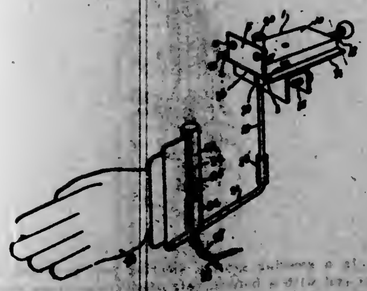
1. An electric furnace comprising a heating chamber, a common electrode within said heating chamber, a plurality of other electrodes extending into the chamber and bearing upon a surface of the common electrode, the other electrodes bearing on the common electrode by reason of their weight, and means for adjusting the pressure between the common electrode and the other electrodes.

1,430,439. COLLAPSIBLE CORE FOR HOLLOW CONCRETE WALLS. EDWIN JAMES EDDY, Otahuhu, Auckland, New Zealand. Filed Aug. 2, 1921. Serial No. 489,225. 5 Claims. (Cl. 25—131.)

5. A collapsible core for hollow concrete walls comprising separate sides, end pieces carried by each side mounted to swing thereon, distance plates attached to each side, and retaining means carried by the end pieces of the other side adapted to engage said distance plates.

1,430,440. DRIVING ATTACHMENT FOR THRASHERS. CHARLES M. ELLIOTT, Minier, Kans. Filed Mar. 21, 1921. Serial No. 455,287. 6 Claims. (Cl. 74—21.)

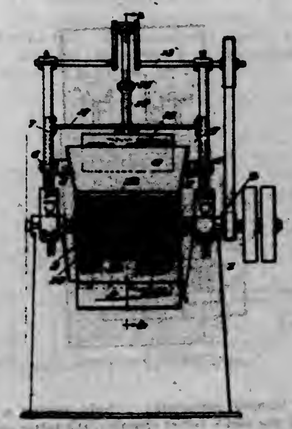
1. In a thrasher, the combination with [illegible] pulley and driving belt of a power pulley [illegible]



flecting relation with the return run of the driving belt adjacent to the cylinder pulley to increase the bearing contact of the belt with the cylinder pulley, and a blower pulley carried by the shaft of said power pulley for actuating the blower driving belt.

1,430,441. SCRAPER ATTACHMENT FOR VARIOUS BRUSHES. CANUTE E. PEDERSEN and CARL W. FORSBERG, Patton, Pa. Filed Mar. 6, 1922. Serial No. 541,556. 3 Claims. (Cl. 15—111.)

1. In a scraper attachment, a folded strip of metal adapted to be mounted on a body, means for spacing the plies of the strip, a scraping blade pivoted between the plies, one end of one of the plies having a notch, and a roll extending longitudinally along the back edge of the blade and having a projecting portion to engage the shouldered end of the notch to limit the blade in its open position.



1,430,442. AUTOMOBILE SIGNALING DEVICE. WILLIAM EDWARD FRANCIS GIBSON, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, assignor of one-half to Andrew Johnston, Vancouver, Canada. Filed Mar. 11, 1922. Serial No. 542,982. 6 Claims. (Cl. 116—47.)

1. An automobile signaling device comprising a pivoted rod provided on its upper end with a pinion and [illegible] right angles at its [illegible] dicating member, a [illegible] pinion having [illegible] plate carrying said [illegible] clamp member [illegible]

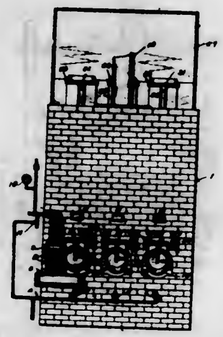
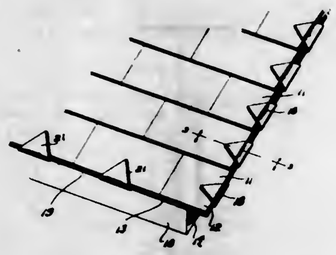
on one side thereof, of a hopper arranged above the brush and having a throat over which said brush extends, a feeder plate movable within said hopper above said throat, and means for reciprocating said feeder plate.



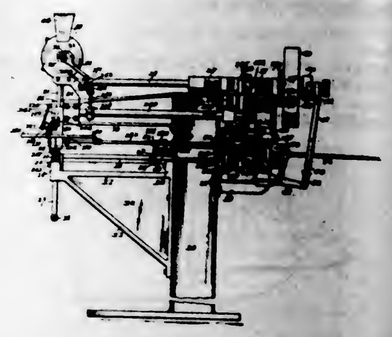
1,430,444. SPRING WHEEL. HENRY GREENOUGH, New Brighton, Pa. Filed Feb. 10, 1921. Serial No. 443,629. 8 Claims. (Cl. 152—33.)



1. A [illegible] wheel [illegible] hub and [illegible] spokes [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

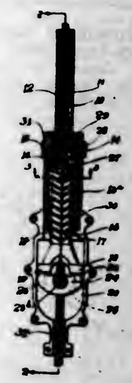
1,430,445. ORE-TREATING FURNACE. CLAYMON C. GRIMES, Idria, Calif. Filed Mar. 26, 1919. Serial No. 285,229. 2 Claims. (Cl. 266—19.)

1. A furnace comprising a body having a vertically disposed flue and a retort chamber, the latter communicating at its lower end with the flue at an intermediate point and inclining upwardly and laterally therefrom, a retort pipe within the retort chamber and extending across the said flue, and a perforated fume collecting pipe located within the upper portion of the retort pipe.



1,430,446. ROOF-EDGING DEVICE. FRANCIS W. HENNESSY, Providence, R. I. Filed Feb. 21, 1922. Serial No. 538,377. 1 Claim. (Cl. 108—26.)

In combination with a flexible-shingle covering for a roof, of a roof edging comprising a strip of sheet metal having a portion extending over the roof under the shingles then folded down and doubled back upon itself to lie against and be secured to the edge of the roof-boards, then extending outwardly laterally to support the overhanging edge portion of the shingles and provided on the edge with spaced-apart bendable fingers to be folded over the outer edge of each top course of the shingles.



1,430,447. TRUNK-RIVETING MACHINE. THOMAS M. HOVAN and HARRY R. MCCONNELL, Richmond, Va., assignors to Seward Trunk and Bag Company, Petersburg, Va., a Corporation of Virginia. Filed July 14, 1920. Serial No. 396,110. 43 Claims. (Cl. 218—3.)

20. A riveting mechanism of the character described including a supporting column having an outwardly projecting bracket on one face, a work supporting anvil mounted upon said bracket and having oppositely inclined faces, a supporting rod extending rearward from the work supporting anvil to the column, and container supporting means slidably mounted upon said rod, the anvil being provided with downwardly divergent arms carrying rollers at their lower ends.

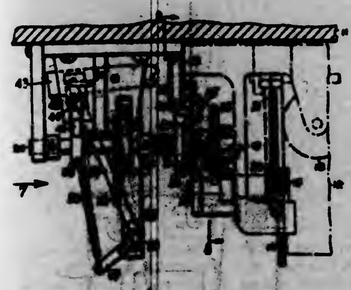
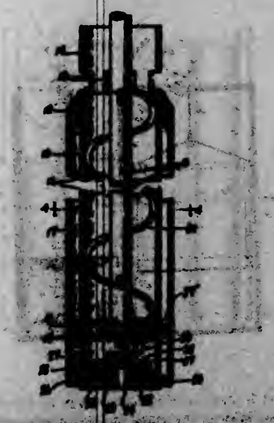
1,430,448. STEERING GEAR. JAMES A. HOUPE, Dyer, Tenn. Filed Apr. 18, 1922. Serial No. 554,629. 6 Claims. (Cl. 74—79.)



1. In a steering gear, a steering post provided in its lower end with a bore, a pair of sleeve sections mounted within the bore and each provided at its lower end with a tappet face, means connecting the steering post and sections whereby rotation of the steering post causes longitudinal movement of the sections in opposite directions, and a shaft having portions engaged by the tappet faces of said sections.

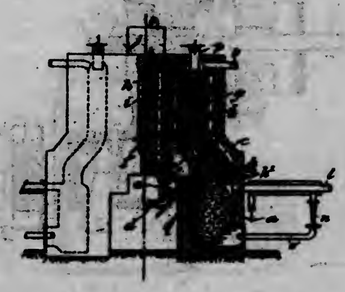
1,430,449. METHOD OF PREPARING ALUMINUM-CHLORIDE CRYSTALS. HENRY HOWARD, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Grasselli Chemical Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 6, 1922. Serial No. 541,573. 6 Claims. (Cl. 23—13.)



1. The method of preparing crystals of aluminum chloride which comprises introducing hydrochloric acid gas into a concentrated solution of aluminum chloride, and freeing the precipitated crystals from adhering acid by washing with basic aluminum chloride solution.

1,430,450. REPLAYING DEVICE FOR TALKING MACHINES. RUSSELL E. HOWARD, Windham, Vt. Filed July 22, 1920. Serial No. 398,094. 20 Claims. (Cl. 274—15.)

1. In a talking machine, the combination with an operating motor and a tone arm, of an element operated by the motor, yielding means for constantly tending to hold said element in condition for being operated by the motor, positive means for disconnecting said element from the motor, means operated by the motion of the tone arm for rendering said disconnecting means inoperative, and means operated by said element for moving the tone arm to a position to repeat.



1,430,451. CONCRETE-CASING-MAKING MACHINE. CHARLES H. LAZARUS, Valentine, Tex. Filed Dec. 6, 1920. Serial No. 428,712. 7 Claims. (Cl. 25—128.)

7. A device of the character described comprising a barrel, a cylinder [illegible] mounted within the barrel, gear operated means connecting the cylinder, a rotating head rotatably mounted on the barrel and the cylinder and barrel and [illegible] tatably mounted [illegible] end of said [illegible] lower end of said [illegible] tension adapted [illegible] per end of said [illegible] engaged [illegible] tatably [illegible] driving said gear in either direction, and locking means associated with said gear and said member whereby to lock the tube for rotation as one.

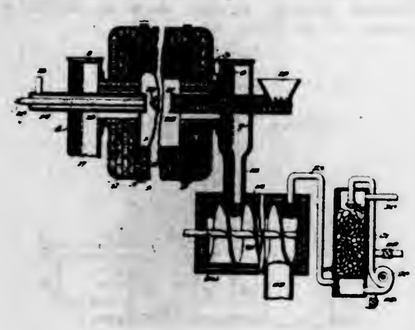
1,430,452. COMBINED GAS GENERATOR AND RETORT APPARATUS. GEORGE PEARCE LEWIS, London, England. Filed Feb. 13, 1922. Serial No. 536,307. 8 Claims. (Cl. 48—122.)

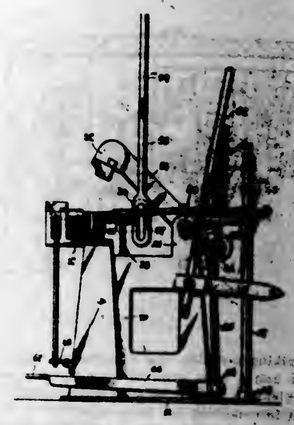


1. Apparatus for distilling and purifying solid carbonaceous matter, said apparatus comprising in combination a chamber, the lower portion of which forms a generator and the upper portion a retort, the axis of the generator being eccentric to the axis of the retort, means for admitting air and steam to the generator, a combustion chamber situated close to the lower portion of the retort, means for the admission of a moisture saturated blast to the generator and means for heating said blast by the producer gases generated in and withdrawn from the generator.

1,430,453. COMBINED VERTICAL RETORT AND GAS-GENERATOR APPARATUS. GEORGE PEARCE LEWIS, London, England. Filed Feb. 13, 1922. Serial No. 536,308. 5 Claims. (Cl. 48—122.)

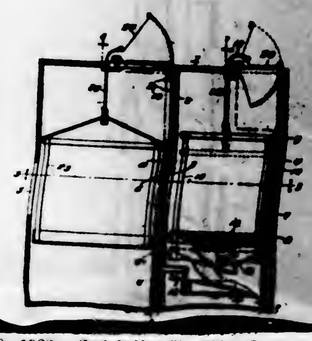
8. Apparatus for distilling and purifying solid carbonaceous matter, said apparatus comprising in combination a chamber, the lower portion of which forms a generator and the upper portion a retort, a [illegible] chamber, [illegible] a [illegible] of [illegible] between said retort and said generator, [illegible] means for [illegible] with [illegible] and [illegible] said [illegible] said [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] said [illegible] the [illegible]

1,430,454. CHLORIDIZING PROCESS AND APPARATUS. Frank S. Low, Niagara Falls, N. Y., assignor to Niagara Alkali Company, Niagara Falls, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 27, 1920. Serial No. 433,470. 6 Claims. (Cl. 75—12.)



1. In the chloridising of materials with the aid of heat, the process which comprises burning hydrogen and chlorin together in proximity to the material to be chloridized.

1,430,455. COLLAPSIBLE FRUIT BOX. Roy Eugene Lowry, Huntington, Ind. Filed May 23, 1921. Serial No. 471,665. 1 Claim. (Cl. 229—23.)



A knock-down box formed of two foldable blanks provided with weakened folding lines, said blanks being connected together to form, respectively, the bottom and sides of the box, the blank for the sides being provided with a plurality of lips bent upwards from the bottom thereof, and the bottom blank being provided with swinging link clamping members, having engageable [illegible] said members to shift the same into entire position [illegible] means for simultaneously actuating the said [illegible] ing means for holding the levers in active position.

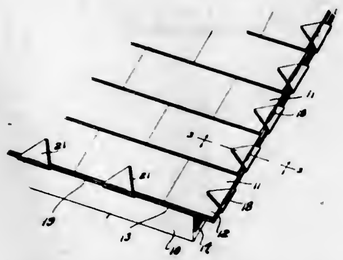
1,430,457. TRAP NEST. William H. [illegible] more, Ill., assignor of forty-nine per cent to [illegible] Ronin and Guy W. Morgan, Sycamore, Ill.; [illegible] 15, 1922. Serial No. 552,992. 3 Claims. (Cl. 119—[illegible])

Tenn. Filed Apr. 18, 1922. Serial No. 554,620. 8 Claims. (Cl. 74—79.)



1. In a steering gear, a steering post provided in its lower end with a bore, a pair of sleeve sections mounted within the bore and each provided at its lower end with a tappet face, means connecting the steering post and sections whereby rotation of the steering post causes longitudinal movement of the sections in opposite directions, and a shaft having portions engaged by the tappet faces of said sections.

1,430,449. METHOD OF PREPARING ALUMINUM-CHLORIDE CRYSTALS. Henry Howard, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Grasselli Chemical Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 6, 1922. Serial No. 541,573. 6 Claims. (Cl. 23—13.)

1. The method of preparing crystals of aluminum chloride which comprises introducing hydrochloric acid gas into a concentrated solution of aluminum chloride, and freeing the precipitated crystals from adhering acid by washing with basic aluminum chloride solution.

said flue, and a perforated fume collecting pipe located within the upper portion of the retort pipe.

1,430,446. ROOF-EDGING DEVICE. Francis W. Hennessy, Providence, R. I. Filed Feb. 21, 1922. Serial No. 538,377. 1 Claim. (Cl. 108—26.)

In combination with a flexible-shingle covering for a roof, of a roof edging comprising a strip of sheet metal having a portion extending over the roof under the shingles then folded down and doubled back upon itself to lie against and be secured to the edge of the roof-boards, then extending outwardly laterally to support the overhanging edge portion of the shingles and provided on the edge with spaced-apart bendable fingers to be folded over the outer edge of each top course of the shingles.

[illegible]47. TRUNK-RIVETING MACHINE. Thomas M. [illegible] and Harry R. McConnell, Richmond, Va., as[illegible]to Seward Trunk and Bag Company, Peters[illegible], a Corporation of Virginia. Filed July 14, [illegible]rial No. 396,110. 43 Claims. (Cl. 218—8.)

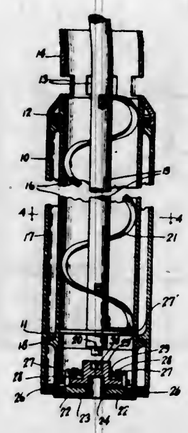
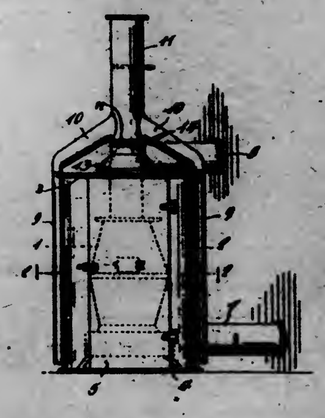
1,430,458. GREASE-CUP PLUG. [illegible] Stanley B. Mellason, [illegible], Wakefield, Mass., assignors of one-third to Frank F. Coggin, Somerville, Mass., and one-third to R. P. Whitcher, Melrose, Mass. Filed Mar. 25, 1922. Serial No. 546,600. 5 Claims. (Cl. 184—46.)



4. A grease-cup plug [illegible]ternally threaded and provided with a cavity which is open at the outer end, and with a lateral guiding orifice [illegible] a portion of the screw thread, a locking-dog [illegible] in said orifice, and projecting into the cavity, a plunger movable in said cavity, a spring exerting an outward pressure on the plunger, the plunger being provided with an inclined bearing face, whereby the dog is projected to a locking position, when the plunger is moved outward by the spring, the dog being releasable from its locking position by an inward movement of the plunger, the plunger being provided with a laterally projecting pin, and the plug with a pin-receiving orifice formed to cooperate with the pin in imparting rotary movement from the plunger to the plug, the plunger being formed at its outer end to be engaged by a tool.

1,430,459. COLLAPSIBLE JACKET FOR FOUL-AIR REMOVERS. John [illegible]Nulty, Gulfport, Miss. Filed Aug. 31, 1921. Serial No. 497,204. 7 Claims. (Cl. 126—67.)



[illegible] by said element for moving the tone arm to a position to repeat.

1,430,451. CONCRETE-CASING-MAKING MACHINE. Charles H. Larriter, Valentine, Tex. Filed Dec. 6, 1920. Serial No. 428,712. 7 Claims. (Cl. 25—128.)

7. A device of the character described comprising a barrel, a cylinder rotatably mounted within the barrel, gear operated means for rotating the cylinder, a cutter head rotatably mounted at the lower end of the cylinder and barrel and formed with an angular socket, a shaft rotatably mounted within the cylinder, a disk at the lower end of said shaft forming a closure for the cylinder, the lower end of said shaft being formed with an angular extension adapted for engagement within said socket, the upper end of said shaft being threaded, a member threadedly engaged upon the upper end of said shaft, a ring gear rotatably mounted with respect to said member, means for interior of said casing beneath the heating element, and means for conveying the foul air, comprising a pipe disposed in spaced relation above said casing, conduits in connection with said pipe, said conduits being carried on the exterior sides of the casing and extending thereabove to form supports for said foul air pipe, the top of said casing being open to permit of the heated air in the interior of the said casing circulating about said foul air pipe, whereby a circulation of foul air is set up within said conduits and pipe.

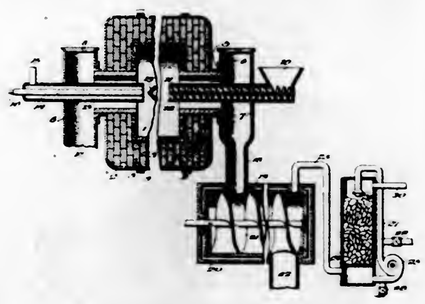
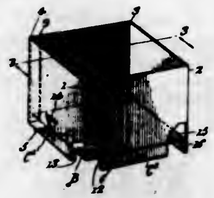
1,430,461. VALVE ATTACHMENT FOR PNEUMATIC TIRES. Armand Jules Michelin, Clermont-Ferrand, France. Filed Aug. 17, 1921. Serial No. 493,077. 1 Claim. (Cl. 152—12.)

In a valve for pneumatic tires, the combination with a hollow valve casing provided with a tapered valve seat therein, and a pointed valve seat at the outer end thereof, of a valve stem provided with a pointed conical valve adapted to fit on said valve seat, said valve stem being being provided with an [illegible] passageway and leading through [illegible] expanded by an annular groove, [illegible] passage communicating with [illegible]



1,430,453. COMBINED VERTICAL RETORT AND GAS-GENERATOR APPARATUS. George Pearce Lewis, London, England. Filed Feb. 13, 1922. Serial No. 536,308. 5 Claims. (Cl. 48—123.)

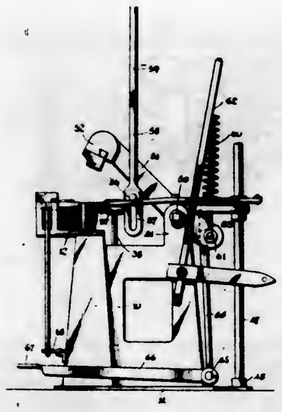
3. Apparatus for distilling and gasifying solid carbonaceous matter, said apparatus comprising in combination a vertical generator and a plurality of vertical retorts, a funnel shaped chamber between said retorts and said generator and means for regulating and facilitating the passage of said solid carbonaceous matter from each retort to the generator.



matter, said apparatus comprising in combination a chamber, the lower portion of which forms a generator and the upper portion a retort, the axis of the generator being eccentric to the axis of the retort, means for admitting air and steam to the generator, a combustion chamber situated close to the lower portion of the retort, means for the admission of a moisture saturated blast to the generator and means for heating said blast by the producer gases generated in and withdrawn from the generator.

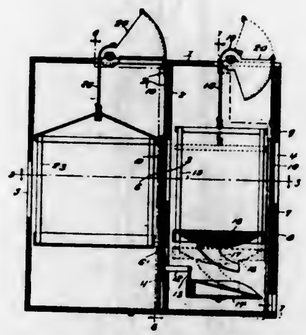
1,430,454. CHLORIDIZING PROCESS AND APPARATUS. FRANK S. LOW, Niagara Falls, N. Y., assignor to Niagara Alkali Company, Niagara Falls, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 27, 1920. Serial No. 433,470. 6 Claims. (Cl. 75—12.)

1. In the chloridizing of materials with the aid of heat, the process which comprises burning hydrogen and chlorin together in proximity to the material to be chloridized.



1,430,455. COLLAPSIBLE FRUIT BOX. ROY EUGENE LOWEY, Huntington, Ind. Filed May 23, 1921. Serial No. 471,665. 1 Claim. (Cl. 229—23.)

A knock-down box formed of two foldable blanks provided with weakened folding lines, said blanks being connected together to form, respectively, the bottom and sides of the box, the blank for the sides being provided with a plurality of lips bent upwards from the bottom thereof, and the bottom blank being provided with a lip secured inside of one of the lips of the side blank, and the said side blank being provided opposite said bottom lip with a tongue made integral therewith and adapted to be pressed inwards to form a latch for the bottom of the box.



1,430,456. CHAIN-MAKING MACHINE. EDWARD J. LYTER, Lebanon, Pa. Filed May 11, 1921. Serial No. 468,531. 7 Claims. (Cl. 59—22.)

1. In a link welding machine, a link forming die adapted to receive a partially formed U-shaped link, means for bending the free ends of the link into overlapping relation, means for hammering the overlapped ends of the link, and means working from opposite sides of the said die and engaging the rounded end of the link for securely holding the same on the forming die during the bending and welding thereof, said last named means including angular swinging link clamping members, levers engageable with said members to shift the same into active position, and means for simultaneously actuating the said levers including means for holding the levers in active position.

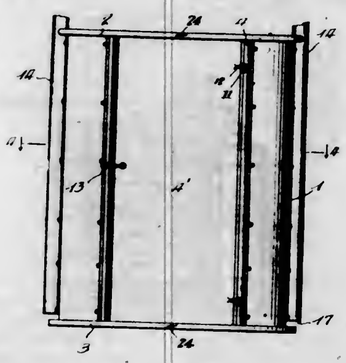
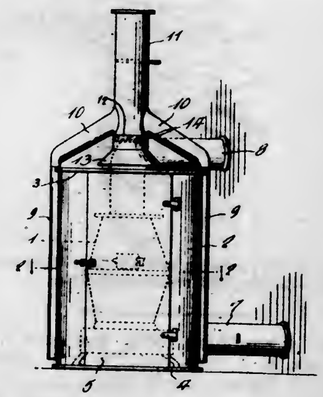
1,430,457. TRAP NEST. WILLIAM N. MCLAGAN, Sycamore, Ill., assignor of forty-nine per cent to Thomas J. Ronin and Guy W. Morgan, Sycamore, Ill. Filed Apr. 15, 1922. Serial No. 552,992. 3 Claims. (Cl. 119—47.)



1. A trap nest of the class described comprising a housing, a partition dividing the same into two compartments, a frame in each compartment, said partition having an opening therein and the housing having an entrance opening leading into the nest compartment and an exit opening leading from the second compartment, a door for closing the entrance opening, a door for closing the opening in the partition, movable frames in said compartments, those in the first compartment being made to support a nest, means for connecting the frames with the doors, said doors being heavier than the frames so that they are normally in open position with the frames in raised position, means for normally holding the door on the partition closed and means for moving such means into inactive position when an egg is deposited in the nest by the hen.

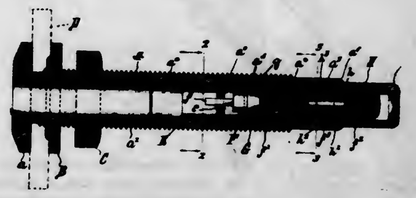
1,430,458. GREASE-CUP PLUG. MILTON P. MCLAUGHLIN, Wakefield, Mass., assignor of one-third to Frank F. Coggin, Somerville, Mass., and one-third to R. P. Whitcher, Melrose, Mass. Filed Mar. 25, 1922. Serial No. 546,600. 5 Claims. (Cl. 184—48.)

4. A grease-cup plug externally threaded and provided with a cavity which is open at the outer end, and with a lateral guiding orifice intersecting a portion of the screw thread, a locking-dog movable in said orifice, and projecting into the cavity, a plunger movable in said cavity, a spring exerting an outward pressure on the plunger, the plunger being provided with an inclined bearing face, whereby the dog is projected to a locking position, when the plunger is moved outward by the spring, the dog being releasable from its locking position by an inward movement of the plunger, the plunger being provided with a laterally projecting pin, and the plug with a pin-receiving orifice formed to cooperate with the pin in imparting rotary movement from the plunger to the plug, the plunger being formed at its outer end to be engaged by a tool.



1,430,459. COLLAPSIBLE JACKET FOR FOUL-AIR REMOVERS. JOHN MCNULTY, Gulfport, Miss. Filed Aug. 31, 1921. Serial No. 497,204. 7 Claims. (Cl. 126—67.)

1. In a device of the character described, a frame comprising a base ring, vertical supporting members secured on said base ring in circumferential spaced relation, and an upper retaining ring secured on said vertical supporting members, casing sections mounted on said supporting members, and means whereby said casing sections may be opened without removing any of said sections from the frame.



1,430,460. FOUL-AIR REMOVER. JOHN MCNULTY, Gulfport, Miss. Filed Aug. 31, 1921. Serial No. 497,205. 5 Claims. (Cl. 126—67.)

1. A device of the character described, comprising a casing adapted to surround and enclose, in spaced relation, a heating element, means for supplying fresh air to the interior of said casing beneath the heating element, and means for conveying the foul air, comprising a pipe disposed in spaced relation above said casing, conduits in connection with said pipe, said conduits being carried on the exterior sides of the casing and extending thereabove to form supports for said foul air pipe, the top of said casing being open to permit of the heated air in the interior of the said casing circulating about said foul air pipe, whereby a circulation of foul air is set up within said conduits and pipe.

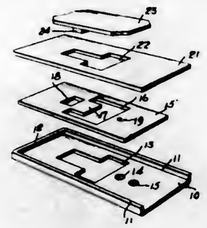
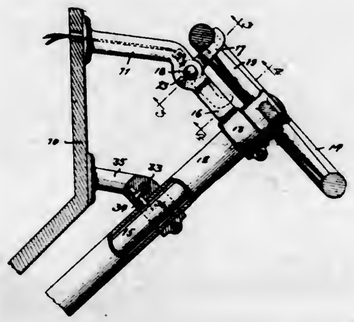
1,430,461. VALVE ATTACHMENT FOR PNEUMATIC TIRES. ANDRÉ JULES MICHELIN, Clermont-Ferrand, France. Filed Aug. 17, 1921. Serial No. 493,077. 1 Claim. (Cl. 152—12.)



In a valve for pneumatic tires, the combination with a hollow valve casing provided with a tapered valve seat therein, and a second valve seat at the outer end thereof, of a valve stem provided with a yielding conical valve adapted to fit on said valve seat, said valve stem being being provided with an outwardly projecting end having screw threads thereon separated by an annular groove, and a metal valve provided with a thin tubular shank having internal screw threads and adapted to screw over said screw threads on the valve stem and to seat against the outer face of said casing, said shank being dented inwards into said annular groove, whereby said shank and said metal valve are prevented from accidental removal from said valve stem, but are permitted limited longitudinal and rotary movement thereon, with means for holding said valve stem against turning in said valve casing as said metal valve is screwed into engagement.

1,430,462. SEPARABLE FASTENER. EDMUND R. NEBELING, New York, N. Y. Filed Nov. 10, 1921. Serial No. 514,285. 8 Claims. (Cl. 24—211.)



1. In a separable fastener, a base member, a sliding plate mounted in the base member, a closing plate, and an operating member slidably mounted on the closing plate and rigidly secured to the sliding plate whereby upon movement of the operating member the sliding plate will be moved to locking and unlocking position.

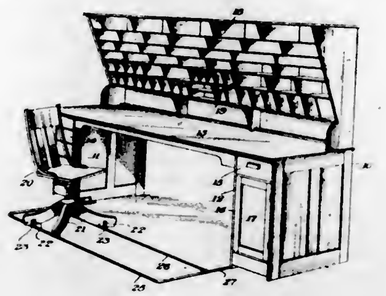
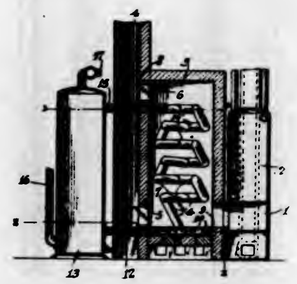
1,430,463. AUTOMOBILE LOCK. RICHARD T. NEWTON, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 22, 1917. Serial No. 156,682. 7 Claims. (Cl. 70—127.)



6. A steering gear lock for automobiles comprising a member clampable to the steering post, and a locking member pivoted on said clampable member and movable into and out of locking engagement with the steering wheel member, together with a key-operated lock having a bolt engaging the pivoted end of the locking member for holding said locking member in steering-wheel engaging position.

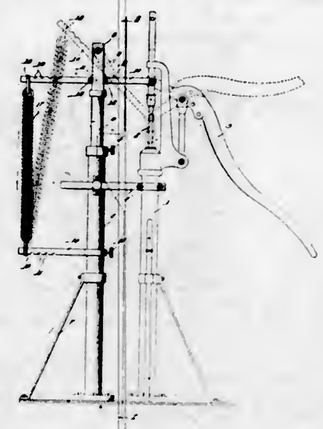
1,430,464. BUMPER ATTACHMENT MEANS. RICHARD T. NEWTON, New York, N. Y. Filed July 8, 1920. Serial No. 394,616. 13 Claims. (Cl. 293—55.)



5. In bumper attaching means, a bumper supporting arm extending in adjusted position alongside a chassis side bar, a bolt for securing said arm to the latter, and an associated member engaged by the bolt and bearing against the outer face of said arm and extending transversely beneath the chassis side bar.

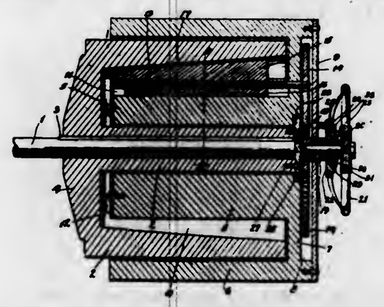
1,430,465. DESK. JOSEPH F. NIEMUTH, Ramsay, Mich. Filed Nov. 28, 1921. Serial No. 518,274. 3 Claims. (Cl. 45—90.)

1. An attachment for a desk comprising a pair of horizontally spaced parallel track rails having a wheeled chair thereon, a pair of sockets removably secured to the inner sides of the pedestals of said desk and provided with threaded openings, parallel arms connected the opposite ends of said rails and engaging said sockets, set screws located in the openings in said sockets and engaging said arms.



1,430,466. WATER HEATER. NILS NILSON, Salt Lake City, Utah. Filed Mar. 23, 1921. Serial No. 454,706. 4 Claims. (Cl. 122—20.)

1. In a water heater, the combination with a main boiler, of an auxiliary boiler comprising a tank, a pipe opening into said tank, and provided with convolutions, a manifold having a zig-zag passage connected to said pipe and communicating with said tank, and a chamber, of which said manifold forms the bottom, said chamber enclosing said pipe and being arranged to receive the flue gases from said main boiler.



1,430,467. PUMP-ROD COUNTERBALANCE. JOHN H. PECK, Miami, Okla. Filed Jan. 14, 1922. Serial No. 529,245. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—71.)

An attachment for a pump comprising a telescopic upright, means for adjustably connecting the parts of the upright together, links depending from the upper end of the upright, a lever pivoted intermediate its ends to the lower ends of said links, means for connecting one end of the lever with the plunger rod of the pump, an arm on the upright, a spring and means for adjustably connecting the ends of the spring with the lever and the arm.

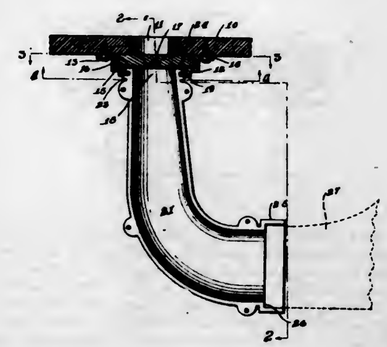
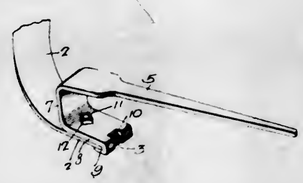
1,430,468. CLUTCH. JOSEPH L. PETERSON, Wellsburg, W. Va. Filed Feb. 16, 1921. Serial No. 445,342. 3 Claims. (Cl. 192—35.)



1. The combination of a driving shaft, a clutch sleeve carried by said shaft and having an open end, a pulley fitted loosely about the shaft and having a hub member fitted within the sleeve, threaded rods arranged longitudinally of said hub member, clutch shoes mounted directly upon and engaged by said threaded rods and movable thereby longitudinally of the hub to bind against or be released from the clutch sleeve, and means carried by the pulley for rotating said threaded rods.

1,430,469. TALKING MACHINE. ARTHUR W. RIVETT, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Apr. 18, 1921. Serial No. 462,259. 2 Claims. (Cl. 274—2.)



1. In a talking machine having its sounding board formed with a hole, a boxing secured upon the underside of the sounding board at said hole and including longitudinally extending guides adapted to slidably support an adjusting block movable to cover and uncover said opening, said boxing being formed below said hole with a circular opening surrounded by an inwardly extending flange having slots at opposite sides, and a depending curvede throat member having its upper end formed with a flange engageable against the underside of said first named flange and being formed at its upper end with a pair of oppositely disposed lugs insertible through said recesses whereby to lock the throat in association with the boxing when the throat is subsequently partially rotated.

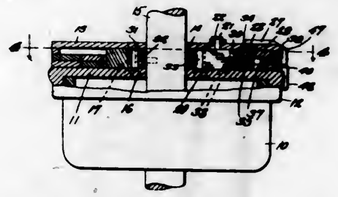
1,430,470. SICKLE. GEORGE L. ROGERS, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Henry Disston & Sons, Incorporated, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed June 23, 1921. Serial No. 479,835. 2 Claims. (Cl. 30—9.)



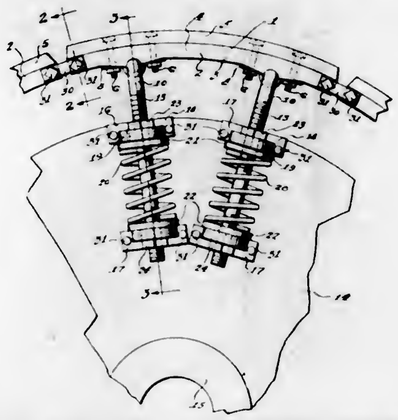
1. The combination in a sickle, of a blade; a U-shaped tang section; means for attaching one arm of the section to the blade; and a tang formed as an extension of the other arm.

1,430,471. PULL BELT FOR STALLED AUTOMOBILES. JOHN SIMON, Gardena, Calif. Filed Mar. 24, 1921. Serial No. 455,297. 1 Claim. (Cl. 180—7.)

A pull belt for stalled automobiles comprising parallel cables, both ends of both of said cables being doubled, a series of transversely disposed metal plates having their ends secured to the doubled ends of both cables, a series of transversely disposed metal plates secured to the cables between their doubled ends, rings carried by the doubled ends of one of said cables and hooks carried by the doubled ends of the other cable.

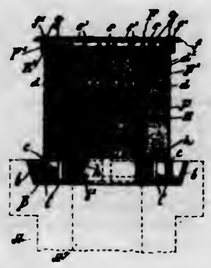
1,430,472. LOCK FOR AUTOMOBILES. FRED STAGGS and MARION REYNOLDS, Shamrock, Tex. Filed Jan. 23, 1920. Serial No. 353,630. 5 Claims. (Cl. 70—53.)

1. In a permutation lock, a member adapted to be attached to a steering shaft of an automobile and having notches therein, a member stationary with relation to the first-mentioned member, a bolt slidable with relation to the members and held against rotary movement by the second-mentioned member and adapted to enter the recesses in the first-mentioned member, permutation rings rotatable about the second-mentioned member and having recesses adapted to aline to provide a clearance for the bolt, rings embracing the first-mentioned rings, means for communicating motion of the second-mentioned rings to the first-mentioned rings, manipulated devices on the second-mentioned rings whereby they are moved, and indicators for denoting the degree of movement of the said rings.



1,430,473. ELECTROMAGNETIC WELL-DRILLING MACHINE. FOREST R. STOLL, Carey, Ohio. Filed July 25, 1921. Serial No. 487,511. 5 Claims. (Cl. 255—4.)

1. The combination in a drilling machine, of a casing, a solenoid in the upper portion thereof, means to supply electric current to the solenoid, a hoisting bail on the casing, shoes hingedly connected to said bail, an armature rod complementary to the solenoid and means operable by said rod to expand and contract said shoes.



1,430,474. RESILIENT WHEEL. JOHN L. STOLTS, Sumner, Ill. Filed Oct. 15, 1921. Serial No. 507,878. 4 Claims. (Cl. 152—36.)

4. In a resilient wheel, a tire structure composed of a plurality of sections, connecting plates pivotally connecting the ends of said sections together, a hub structure including a disc, a pair of U shaped bolts connected to each of said tire sections and having legs positioned upon the opposite sides of said disc, springs about said legs, and means establishing connection between said legs and said disc to permit yieldable shock absorbing connection of the tire and hub structures.

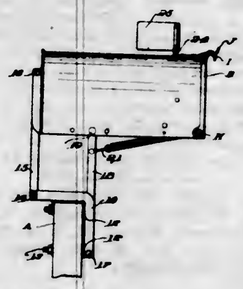
1,430,475. SPARK ARRESTER. WILLIAM LAFAYETT TARVIN, Rome, Ga. Filed Dec. 31, 1921. Serial No. 526,433. 2 Claims. (Cl. 183—8.)



1. A spark arrester adapted for use with fixed chimneys or smokestacks, comprising a pan provided with a central opening adapted to register with the flue, with an annular flange surrounding said opening, said flange and said outer walls forming a trough to receive the larger solid particles passing up the flue, and also to receive water from rain or snow, an inner cylindrical screen open at both ends and having its lower end slipped over and engaging said annular flange, legs projecting upwardly from the bottom of said pan and arranged concentric with but spaced away from said annular flange, an outer cylindrical screen having its lower end secured to said legs, and a cap closing the upper end of said outer screen, substantially as described.

1,430,476. MAIL-BOX BRACKET AND SIGNAL. HARRY E. TASKELL, Wellington, Kans. Filed Aug. 22, 1921. Serial No. 494,222. 6 Claims. (Cl. 232—40.)

1. In combination with a mail box and a supporting post, a bracket for supporting the box comprising a rigid bracket member secured upon the post, a plurality of bars pivotally connected with said rigid bracket and pivotally connected with a mail box, and springs connected with certain of said arms and with the box whereby to hold the parts in either selected position.

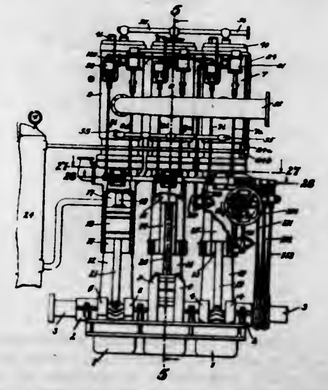
1,430,477. TANNING PREPARATION. JOHN K. TULLIS, New York, N. Y., assignor to Fulcra Tan Company, Irvington, N. J., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 25, 1920. Serial No. 368,728. 3 Claims. (Cl. 149—4.)

2. As a new tanning material a solution of commercial quebracho extract in acidulated light liquor from sulfite digestors used in making paper pulp, the acidulation being with a sulfonic acid.

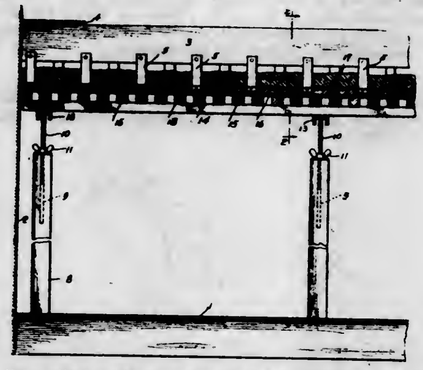
1,430,478. PHOTOGRAPHIC CAMERA. THOMAS WALLACE, New York, N. Y. Original application filed July 5, 1918, Serial No. 243,272. Divided and this application filed Oct. 9, 1920. Serial No. 415,821. 5 Claims. (Cl. 95—34.)



1. A film holder, comprising top and bottom members and a front connecting plate forming a support for a portion of the film when in exposure position and a detachable member forming a wall for said film holder extending from a point adjacent one side of said plate to a point adjacent the other side thereof.

1,430,479. TANNING PROCESS. FRANK WAYLAND, Salem, Mass. Filed Nov. 22, 1920. Serial No. 425,627. 10 Claims. (Cl. 149—4.)

1. That process of preparing leather which comprises as steps, separating the grain from the nerve layer of a raw hide, and maintaining such grain in taut condition while subjecting it to the action of a tanning reagent for converting it into leather.



1,430,480. INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINE. WILLIAM B. SMITH WHALEY, New York, N. Y., assignor to American Whaley Engine Company, Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Jan. 9, 1917, Serial No. 141,401. Renewed Apr. 11, 1922. Serial No. 551,473. 43 Claims. (Cl. 123—26.)

1. In an engine of the character described, the combination of a two-cycle valveless type of cylinder provided with a pre-compression chamber; and means connecting the latter with the combustion chamber of said cylinder; a piston; a pitman; a crank-shaft; a mixing valve communicating with the inlet port of said pre-compression chamber adapted to proportion the fuel mixture entering said pre-compression chamber; a steam engine valve gear; a compressed air-admitting valve operated by said valve gear; an igniter operated by said valve gear; a compressed air supply coupled with said air-admitting-valve; and means for operating and controlling said valve gear.

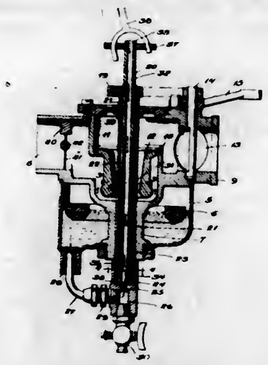
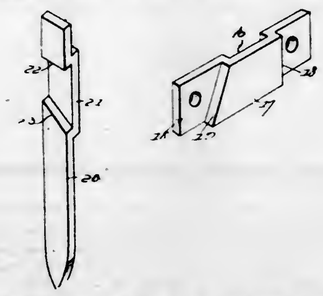
1,430,481. CEILING. MARQUIS WIRPCKE, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed May 23, 1921. Serial No. 471,712. 1 Claim. (Cl. 72—71.)



In a ceiling of the class described, a plurality of hangers each consisting of a strip of metal, means connecting said hangers to a support, a reticulate suspended from said hangers, said reticulate consisting of a plurality of wires each extending parallel to the other and through a series of said hangers, and a plurality of wires extending across and secured to said first mentioned wires, a plastic body embedding said reticulate, and an ornamental finish on the under surface of said plastic body.

1,430,482. CARBURETOR. DAVID L. WINTERS, Edgewater, Md. Filed Oct. 15, 1919. Serial No. 330,797. 4 Claims. (Cl. 261—121.)



1. In a carburetor, in combination, a fuel inlet and control valve therefor, a throttle valve, means to simultaneously actuate said valves to maintain the relative proportions of fuel and air, and means comprising constantly open ports of fixed area greater than said fuel inlet to maintain a relatively fixed fuel flow head by means of a fixed gravity head, whereby to supply a richer or leaner mixture in proportion to variations in the air flow head as effected by variations in the load on the engine.

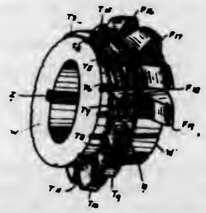
4. In a carburetor, in combination, a fuel inlet and a control valve therefor, a throttle valve, means to simultaneously actuate said valves to maintain the relative proportions of fuel and air, a fuel reservoir, means to maintain fuel in said reservoir above the level of said fuel valve, an air passage, a tube extending from said fuel control valve to said passage, constantly open ports from said tube into said passage, an air tube extending within and concentric with said first named tube, constantly open ports in said air tube adjacent said fuel control valve, said last named ports being of greater area than said first named ports and said first named ports being of greater area than said fuel inlet whereby a fixed gravity head for flow of fuel through said control valve will be maintained, whereby to supply a richer or leaner mixture in proportion to variations in the air flow head as effected by variations in the load on the engine.

1,430,483. HARROW. DON S. WOLVERTON, Doland, S. Dak. Filed Oct. 19, 1920. Serial No. 418,046. 3 Claims. (Cl. 55—153.)



1. A harrow having a tooth bar provided with a tooth socket having respectively vertical and obliquely disposed end walls, and a tooth having an offset shank fitted in said socket and provided with upper and lower shoulders for engagement respectively with the corresponding edges of the bar.

1,430,484. COATING COMPOSITION AND PROCESS. LYNDON D. WOOD, Bala, Pa. Filed July 1, 1922. Serial No. 572,324. 2 Claims. (Cl. 134—1.)

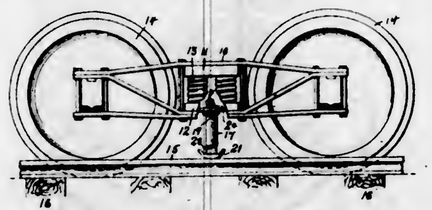
1. A sensitive compound for use in the reproduction of sound waves which have been photographically recorded comprising 20 parts of platinum-barium-cyanide of potassium crystals, 10 parts of tungstate of soda, 70 parts of selenium crystals, 34 parts of salt, 33 parts of sulphur, 33 parts of phosphorus.

2. The process of producing a sensitive compound for use in the reproduction of sound waves which have been photographically recorded, consisting in reducing to a molten mass a mixture of platinum-barium-cyanide of potassium crystals, tungstate of soda and selenium crystals and to this molten mass adding a mixture of salt, sulphur and phosphorus and keeping the whole in a molten condition for a continued period of approximately 30 minutes or until a flame color indicating the flame of both barium and potassium rises from the mass and then crystallising the mass by suddenly immersing it into a receptacle of water at a temperature of approximately 40° Fahrenheit.

1,430,485. HOB AND METHOD OF MAKING IT. WILLIAM F. ZIMMERMANN, Newark, N. J., assignor to Gould & Eberhardt, Newark, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Jan. 28, 1921. Serial No. 440,782. 15 Claims. (Cl. 29—103.)

3. A worm-cutting hob having a full-sized finishing-tooth and a plurality of under-sized roughing-teeth; said hob having an end-shoulder located a definite distance from the plane transverse to the axis of the hob and passing centrally through the peripheral portion of the cutting-edge of said finishing-tooth; whereby the operative position of said hob may be positively, accurately and invariably fixed with relation to the blank to be tooled.

4. The method of making a hob which consists in cutting a peripheral groove of uniform contour to form a non-tapering thread; then progressively removing a portion of a side face of said thread to give it a taper; then at intervals notching said tapered thread and removing portions of its periphery so as to form a series of cutting-edges, the peripheral portions of which lie at progressively different distances from the axis of the hob.



1,430,486. FAN. ELWOOD B. AYRES, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Proctor & Schwartz, Incorporated, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 26, 1921. Serial No. 503,165. 2 Claims. (Cl. 170—173.)

1. The combination in a fan, of a hub; a series of blades, the hub having two series of radiating surfaces, one series alternating with the other, and one arranged at an angle to the other; and means for securing the blades to either of said sets of surfaces.

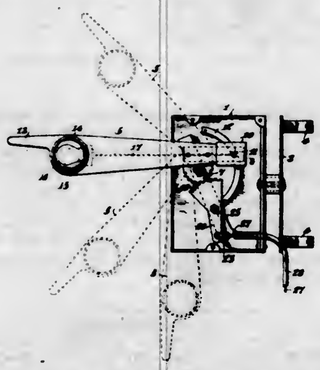
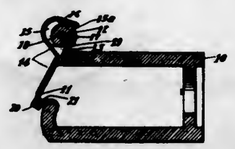
1,430,487. CAR BRAKE. FRED P. BEVERLY and COMER CALDWELL, Kaufman, Tex. Filed Nov. 17, 1920. Serial No. 424,710. 2 Claims. (Cl. 246—171.)



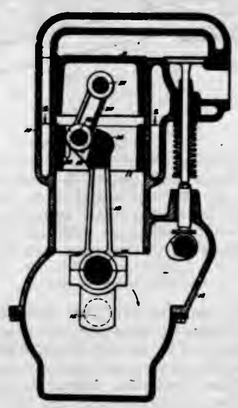
1. An attachment for car trucks comprising a valve associated with the air brake mechanism, relatively weak yieldable means for holding the valve closed, and relatively strong yieldable means operating to supplement the holding means of the valve, said stronger holding means adapted to be actuated by the displacement of said truck.

1,430,488. GUARD FOR GRATES. WILLIAM SANFORD BOARD, Plymouth, W. Va. Filed Feb. 1, 1922. Serial No. 533,406. 6 Claims. (Cl. 126—202.)



5. A guard for grates comprising a substantially U-shaped frame having a horizontal web portion and depending arms, one of said arms being offset adjacent to its extremity to provide a journal, and a clevis having portions adapted to embrace a bar of the grate and being apertured to receive the journal portion of the said arm of the frame.

1,430,489. SIGNAL MACHINE. GEORGE B. BREWER, San Pedro, Calif. Filed Mar. 23, 1921. Serial No. 454,940. 2 Claims. (Cl. 116—54.)

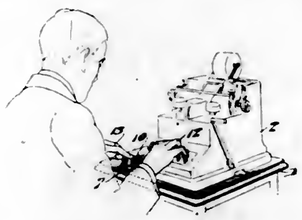


1. A casing adapted to be attached to a motor vehicle, a signal indicating arm pivotally mounted within the casing, with one end extending beyond the casing, a balancing weight carried by the inner end of said arm, a toothed segment carried by said arm, a toothed quadrant pivotally mounted in said casing and meshing with said segment, an operating element connected to the lower end of said toothed quadrant, and an actuating lever for operating said element whereby the indicating arm may be moved to various signalling positions.

1,430,490. OIL BOX. WILLIAM HENRY BURNS, Carbondale, Ill. Filed May 17, 1920. Serial No. 381,961. 1 Claim. (Cl. 64—23.)

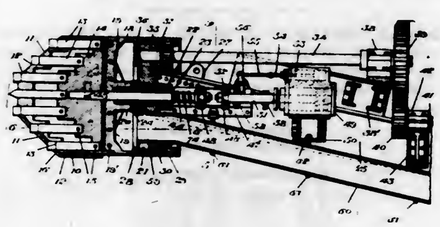
The combination with a journal box and a lid hingedly secured thereto, of an apertured lug carried by the box and receiving a hinged pin to connect the lid to the box, an extension formed on the lid and receiving the apertured lug, a lip provided along the edge of the extension, a shoulder formed on the lug for engagement by the extension to hold the lid in open position, a lug extending from the edge of the box beneath the entrance opening and a lip extending from the lower edge of the lid for engagement beneath the last mentioned lug to hold the lid in closed position.

1,430,491. MEANS TO PREVENT DEAD CENTERS IN ENGINES. JOSEPH CALCATERRA, New York, and OTTO J. BERNARDONI, Corona, N. Y. Filed Mar. 8, 1922. Serial No. 542,128. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—20.)



1. In an engine, a piston, a connecting rod of bellcrank form adapted at one end for connection with a crank shaft, a connection between the piston and the bellcrank arm of the connecting rod, a sleeve in tandem with the piston and forming part of the same cylindric surface with the piston, and a pivotal connection between the sleeve and the connecting rod at the junction of the main and bellcrank arms of said connecting rod.

1,430,492. MOISTENING DEVICE. ROBERT DYAS CAYCE, Nashville, Tenn. Filed Apr. 11, 1921. Serial No. 460,294. 1 Claim. (Cl. 91—51.)



In a device of the character described, the combination with a table for the machine and provided with a properly disposed opening, having a surrounding channel with a kerf at each end, of a trough having a surrounding rim fitting the channel around the opening of the table and flush with the surface of said table, and having at each end an offset forming a recess to fit in the kerfs of the channel around the opening of the table, and a moistening roller arranged in said trough with its journals bearing in the recesses of the rim of the trough and its surface projecting slightly above the table.

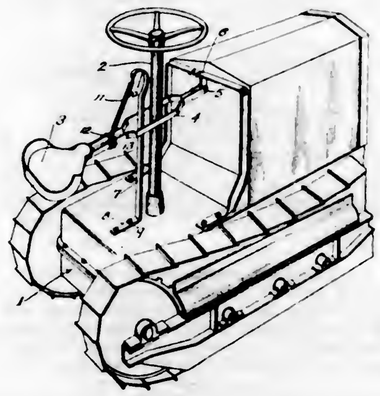
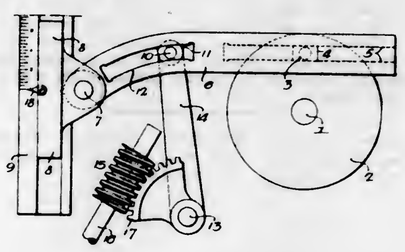
1,430,493. ROCK-CUTTING MACHINE. JOHN W. COOK, Miami, Fla. Filed Dec. 13, 1920. Serial No. 430,329. 11 Claims. (Cl. 262—5.)



1. A cutting machine comprising a hollow cutter head, bits working within and porjecting from said cutter head, a holder for the bits mounted for reciprocation within the cutter head, said cutter head being closed to exclude foreign mater, means for mounting said head for rotation, and means for reciprocating said holder.

1,430,494. OPTICAL PROJECTION APPARATUS APPLICABLE PARTICULARLY TO OPTICAL PROJECTION LANTERNS, CINEMATOGRAPH PROJECTORS, AND THE LIKE. PERCY EDWARD CORRELL, Sydney, New South Wales, Australia. Filed Jan. 6, 1922. Serial No. 527,484. 7 Claims. (Cl. 88—24.)



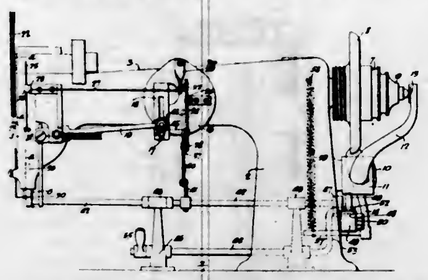
1. In an apparatus of the character described, a paraboloid reflector, a light located about the focus of the reflector, a converging lens in front of the reflector, said lens having one face granulated or stippled to produce slight diffusion.

1,430,495. DUAL SPRING SUSPENSION. SAMUEL J. COUGHRAN, Buena Park, Calif. Filed Aug. 25, 1920. Serial No. 405,945. 1 Claim. (Cl. 155—51.)

The combination with a horizontally disposed pivotally mounted seat supporting bar formed in two parts, of a resilient upright member positioned between the parts of said seat supporting bar, the lower end of which resilient upright member is fixed on a suitable support, a retractile spring arranged between the upper end of said resilient member and said seat supporting bar.

1,430,496. MECHANICAL MOVEMENT. ADOLPH L. DE LEEUW, Plainfield, N. J. Filed Sept. 25, 1920. Serial No. 412,786. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—14.)

1. The combination of a yoke having a curved slot; a power shaft; a crank pin on the power shaft engaging the yoke; a slide pivoted to the yoke; a guide for the slide; a fulcrum pin; a block on said pin adjustable in the slot of the yoke; a swinging arm of a length substantially equal to that of the radius of curvature of the slot and operative on the block; with means for swinging said arm to adjust the position of the block, and with it the fulcrum pin, towards or from the power shaft to vary the stroke of the slide.



1,430,497. TOOL. WALDEMAR ENGBERG, Anchorage, Territory of Alaska. Filed July 16, 1921. Serial No. 485,217. 3 Claims. (Cl. 254—25.)

1. A tool of the character described comprising a handle, one extremity of the handle being offset and bifurcated, teeth formed on the wall of one of the separated portions defined by said bifurcation, and the confronting wall of the other separated portion defined by said bifurcation being inclined for the purpose specified.

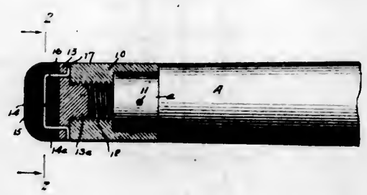
1,430,498. STOP MOTION FOR SEWING MACHINES. CHARLES J. FRANKLIN, Camden, N. J., assignor to Camden Curtain & Embroidery Company, Camden, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 29, 1920. Serial No. 433,809. 3 Claims. (Cl. 112—219.)



1. The combination in a stop motion for a sewing machine of a clutch; a hub having a clutch arm and a brake arm; needle mechanism; tension mechanism; a rock shaft; an arm thereon having an eye through which the thread passes to the needle from the tension mechanism; a shaft for actuating the needle mechanism; a finger on the last named shaft; an arm and means connecting the arm with the rock shaft so that when the thread breaks the arm will be in position to be actuated by said finger, and means for applying the brake and releasing the clutch actuated by the longitudinal movement of the said arm.

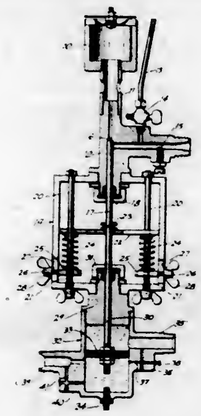
1,430,499. VISOR FOR AUTOMOBILES. JOHN B. GATS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Aaron M. Searles, Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 17, 1921. Serial No. 445,700. 3 Claims. (Cl. 296—95.)

1. A visor for an automobile comprising a rectangular frame made of wire; a fabric stretched between the frame members and extending around them; two corner clamps at each corner of the frame, each clamp having angularly related curved parts, each part curved less than one-half circle, and a flat part, said clamps overlying the wire and fabric at each corner and connected together through the flat parts and means attached to the flat parts at two corners to hinge the device to an automobile.

1,430,500. CUE-TIP FASTENER. HENRY JOSEPH GRENIER, Fairfield, Conn. Filed Aug. 9, 1921. Serial No. 490,929. 4 Claims. (Cl. 46—9.)

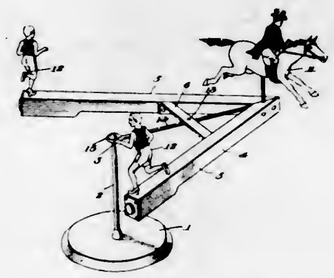
1. An attachment for cues comprising a ferrule having means to secure it to a cue end, an element detachably secured to the front end of said ferrule, a tip on said element, and a fastener embedded in said tip, said fastener for a portion thereof lying transversely in the tip and having parts at the ends of the first portion extending rearwardly to the rear of the tip and through said element, the terminals of said fastener extending laterally outward at the rear side of said element and being clamped by said element and against the ferrule.

1,430,501. CAR BRAKE. WILLIAM H. GROW, Grafton, W. Va. Filed Oct. 6, 1921. Serial No. 505,852. 3 Claims. (Cl. 188—229.)



2. In a brake, a compression member comprising a channel iron, heads having sockets of the configuration of the channel iron to which they are applied and shoe engaging surfaces of like contour above and below the sockets on each side of the said sockets, apertured ears at each end of the head, a reversible strut having a slot therein, means for securing either end of the strut to the compression member, a tension rod engaging the end of the strut remote from the compression member, said tension rod extending through the heads when the heads are on the compression member, and means on the tension rod for holding the parts in assembled relation to each other.

1,430,502. AUTOMATIC GAS VALVE. WILLIAM HANSON, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Feb. 21, 1921. Serial No. 446,888. 3 Claims. (Cl. 236—25.)



1. In combination, a gas burner, a valve for controlling the flow of fuel to the burner, a cylinder provided with inlet and discharge ports, a piston within the cylinder, a member operatively connecting the piston and valve, a cross member secured to the first member, rotatable members slidably receiving the second member, and means for urging the second member in one direction so as to normally close the valve and position said piston between said ports.

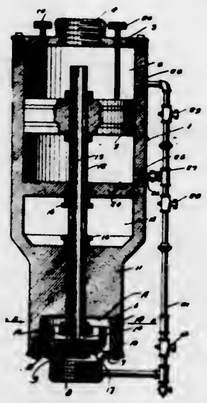
1,430,503. TOY. HARVEY R. HAYWARD, Akron, Ohio. Filed May 7, 1921. Serial No. 467,633. 2 Claims. (Cl. 46—40.)

1. A toy as herein described, including a substantially V-shaped frame having figures at the apex and on the ends thereof and having a rod centrally arranged therein, terminating in a widened portion having a cup-shaped depression, brace means between the arms of the frame and the said rod, a fulcrum member having a pointed end received in the cup-shaped depression of the rod, and weighted means in the outer ends of the arms of the frame adjustable exteriorly thereof.



1,430,504. PLOWSTOCK. WILLIAM S. HIETT, Temple, Ga., assignor of one-fourth to Carrie Hutcheson, one-fourth to Willard D. Hutcheson, and one-fourth to Joseph F. Hutcheson, all of Temple, Ga. Filed May 20, 1921. Serial No. 471,054. 3 Claims. (Cl. 97—26.)

2. In combination, a plow beam, reinforcing elements secured to the opposite sides of the plow beam and having the corresponding extremities offset inwardly and depending from said beam, a plow carrier comprising spaced members having their upper ends adjustably secured to the opposite sides of the plow beam, said members being arranged at the opposite sides of said extremities of the reinforcing elements and secured thereto, a two-part clamp embracing the upper end and lower edges of the said members at a point rearwardly of the reinforcing elements, an adjustable connection between the respective parts of the clamp, and a depth gauge adjustably mounted upon the lowermost part of said clamp for the purpose specified.

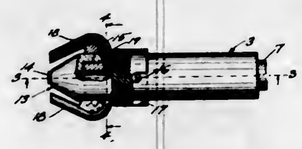
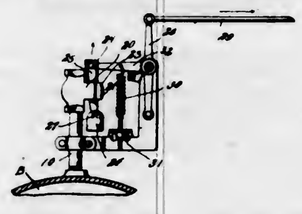
1,430,505. GOVERNOR VALVE FOR STEAM ENGINES. ALVA K. HINCHMAN, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor of one-half to Charles H. Quimby, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Sept. 18, 1920. Serial No. 411,127. 3 Claims. (Cl. 50—34.)



1. A governor valve comprising a casing having a low pressure chamber provided with an outlet port and a chamber having an inlet port, a valve seat formed in the inlet port, a piston in said low pressure chamber, a hollow piston stem secured to the piston and extending into the second chamber, and a valve in said second chamber and secured to the stem and adapted to engage the valve seat when in one position and having a passage in communication with the hollow stem to permit fluid to pass into the lowpressure chamber from the inlet port when said valve is disengaged from the seat.

1,430,506. NOZZLE FOR AIR BRUSHES. BIRCHARD E. HOLTON, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Apr. 29, 1920. Serial No. 377,660. 1 Claim. (Cl. 91—45.)



A nozzle of the character described comprising a casing, a threaded and shouldered extension formed on the casing, said casing and extension being formed with a conduit and diametrically disposed ports formed in the extension and communicating with the conduit, a cap threadedly mounted on the extension and abutting said shoulder, the inner end of said cap being formed with a recess, a discharge nipple within the cap and in axial alinement with said conduit, divergently arranged nipples sustained on the cap and adapted to communicate with said ports when the cap is in a predetermined position, and a pin mounted in the casing and engaging within said recess for defining the rotational movement of the cap in either direction.

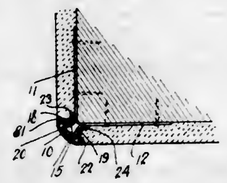
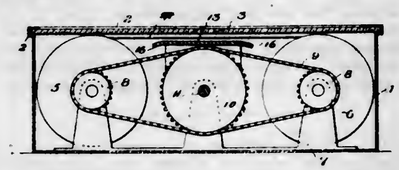
1,430,507. BLEEDING VALVE. LOUIS A. HORNBURG, Omaha, Nebr. Filed Aug. 30, 1921. Serial No. 496,992. 5 Claims. (Cl. 303—80.)



1. A bleed valve comprising in combination with the auxiliary reservoir of an air brake system, a casing having one end connected with the bleed port of the reservoir and having its other end communicating with the atmosphere, said casing being formed with a lateral nipple, a partition within the casing provided with a hole surrounded by a valve seat, the hole establishing communication between the bleed port and the atmosphere, a valve slidable through the lateral nipple and normally closing said seat, a weight controlled wedge member engaging against said valve for holding the same closed, and means for moving said member.

4. A bleed valve comprising the combination with the auxiliary reservoir of a railway air brake system, of a casing communicating at one end with the bleed port of the reservoir and communicating at its opposite end with the atmosphere, said casing being provided in one side with a laterally extending nipple and being provided internally with a partition having a hole provided with a valve seat surrounding the same, a valve slidable through said lateral nipple and normally closing said seat, a vertically movable wedge shaped member engaging the outer end of said valve whereby to normally hold the same closed, and manual means located at the sides of a car and connected with said wedge member whereby to elevate the same for permitting pressure against said valve to open the latter, said means comprising a bar, push or pull rods connected with the ends thereof and an arm on said bar having a lost motion connection with said wedge member.



1,430,508. CORNER BEAD. JOHN JOHNSON, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 25, 1920. Serial No. 419,414. 1 Claim. (Cl. 72—121.)

In a device of the class described, an element including a plurality of legs, a head, and outwardly turned resilient devices upset from the lower portion of the head, and a bead including a central portion, inwardly turned flanges and deflected edge portions, the flanges of the bead being directly engaged on their inner sides by the under portion of the head and by the devices upset from the head, and the bead being locked to the head by the engaging devices.

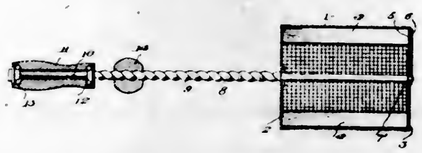
1,430,509. DISPLAYING DEVICE. MERTON JONES, Chicago, Ill. Filed July 13, 1920. Serial No. 395,845. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—95.)

In combination a casing having a transparent top, rollers for supporting a strip for travelling directly under said top, a platform, thumb screws connected to the platform and mounted in inclined slots in the casing whereby the platform may be slid into engagement with the under surface of the strip and clamped in such position.

1,430,510. AUTOMATIC SWITCH. JOHN KENNER, Herrin, Ill. Filed Dec. 30, 1921. Serial No. 525,885. 2 Claims. (Cl. 246—323.)



1. In a railway switch operating mechanism, the combination with a main track and a siding, of levers arranged at the opposed sides of the track, and fulcrumed at points in their length, contact members carried by each lever adjacent its ends, equalizing members operatively connected with the aforementioned levers and with the switch elements, car carried means operable to selectively actuate either of the first mentioned levers, whereby the switch can be opened and closed at predetermined intervals to either the main track or said siding, the means arranged along the tracks for automatically returning the car carried means to normal position.

A corn popper of the character described comprising a reticulated cylindrical cage, a metallic disk designed to close one end of the cage and being provided with an opening adjacent its edge thereof and there being a rounded aperture arranged in its center, a second disk designed to close the opposite end of the cage and being provided with a square aperture arranged in its center, a plurality of spaced plates arranged between said disks and in contacting engagement with the inner face of said cylindrical cage, a shank adapted to support the cage and being reduced square in cross section to engage the square aperture of the disk, said shank extending through the cage and being reduced round in cross section to accommodate itself to the round aperture of the second mentioned disk, a door pivotally secured to the rounded reduction and adapted to slide laterally over said opening and means for rotating said shank.

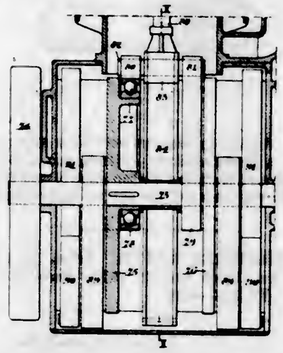
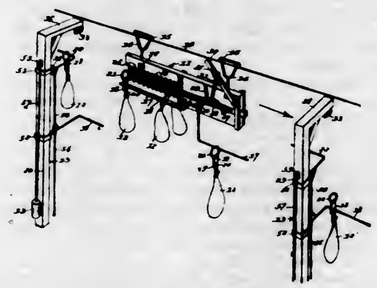
1,430,512. HAIR CUTTER. ARCHIE LANGLAIS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed July 7, 1921. Serial No. 482,887. 3 Claims. (Cl. 30—13.)



1. The combination with a pair of hair cutting shears, of an arm connected to the pivot pin between the shear blades, a connection between said arm and the handle of one of the shear blades, and a channel-shaped holder projecting from the forward end of said arm alongside of the blade to which said arm is connected.

1,430,513. HORSE COLLAR. REINHOLD S. LENE, Lexington, Nebr., assignor of one-half to Harpham Brothers Company, Lincoln, Nebr., a Corporation of Nebraska. Filed Oct. 11, 1920, Serial No. 416,130. Renewed Aug. 2, 1922. Serial No. 579,237. 3 Claims. (Cl. 54—19.)



1. The combination with a collar split at the top, connector-securing hooks in pairs transversely of the collar in the collar-ends formed by the split, an outside connector having a series of holes to receive said hooks and fasten the collar-ends to the connector at different distances apart of the ends, an adjustable pad opposite the split and on the inside of the collar, and loops secured to the pad and loosely receiving the collar-ends between the respective loops and pad.

1,430,514. EQUILIBRATED DEVICE FOR TRANSFORMING INTO CIRCULAR MOTION THE LINEAR MOTION OF THE PISTON OF A MOTOR. JULES LEROY, Paris, France. Original application filed July 10, 1920, Serial No. 395,338. Divided and this application filed Jan. 9, 1922. Serial No. 528,117. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—14.)

1. In a motor, the combination with the piston and piston rod connected thereto, of equilibrated means for transforming the linear motion of the piston into rotary motion, comprising two parallel plates disposed upon opposite sides of the path of the piston rod and mounted for rotation, each of said plates carrying on its opposite faces oppositely arranged eccentrics, means connecting the eccentrics on the inner faces of the plates with the piston rod, said means cooperating with said eccentrics to transform the linear motion of the piston rod into rotary motion about said plates, and a counterpoise connected to and movable with the eccentric on the outer faces of said plates.

DECISIONS

COMMISSIONER OF PATENTS

AND OF

UNITED STATES COURTS IN PATENT CASES.

DECISIONS OF THE U. S. COURTS.

Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

LINDAU v. SMULSKI.

No. 3[illegible]. Decided April 3, 1922.

[280 Fed. Rep., 463.]

PATENTS—INTERFERENCE—RIGHT TO MAKE CLAIM.

Held that S., the junior party, had no right to make the claim of the issue, and the award of priority to L., the senior party, affirmed.

Mr. E. S. Clarkson and Mr. James A. Carr for the appellant.

Mr. Thomas B. Booth for the appellee.

ROBB, J.:

Appeal from a decision of the Commissioner of Patents in an interference proceeding awarding priority to Smulski, on the ground that Lindau has no right to make the claims.

The invention relates to a reinforcement for concrete floor construction and is expressed in two claims, of which the second is sufficiently illustrative, as follows:

2. In a concrete slab construction, the combination with a supporting column of reinforcing members diverging from the axis of the column, each of said members having a reverse bend near the column and presenting a tension reinforcement portion near the upper surface of the slab, and a prolonged compression reinforcement portion near the lower surface of the slab.

Smulski was the first to conceive the invention but, at the time Lindau filed his application in April of 1910, was lacking in diligence, his inactivity continuing until a short time prior to the filing of his application on January 8, 1913. This application, containing the claims of the issue, ripened into a patent on September 21, 1915.

Prior to the granting of the Smulski patent his construction had been embodied in at least two structures. In October of 1915 there was published in the Engineering Record a full description of the Smulski system of reinforcement as embodied in the Youths Companion Building at Boston, Massachusetts, and at a meeting of the American Concrete Institute, Mr Lindau being present, Smulski read a paper descriptive of his system, which later was published in the Engineering Record. In February of 1917 Lindau, with two other employees of the Corrugated Bar Company, Lindau's assignee, met Smulski in Chicago and there discussed with him, according to a letter subsequently written Smulski by Lindau, Smulski's "system of flat slab construction." According to Smulski, the purpose of this interview was to obtain from him, for the Corrugated Bar Company, the right to use his invention. Soon after it became apparent that these overtures on behalf of the Corrugated Bar Company would not be successful, Lindau, on October 14, 1917, copied the two claims of the issue from the Smulski patent for the purpose of this interference. Down to that time there was no claim in the Lindau application embracing this subject matter. Smulski, as might have been expected, challenged Lindau's right to make the claims, his contention then and now being that Lindau's member "8" is not so located as to constitute—a prolonged compression reinforcement portion near the lower surface of the slab.

The Law Examiner ruled in favor of Lindau. On final hearing the Examiner of Interferences did not consider the question of Lindau's right to make the claims, as he felt himself bound by the action of the Law Examiner. The Examiners in Chief, while recognizing that Lindau had not mentioned in his application compression reinforcement, and that his method of reinforcement differed from that of Smulski, nevertheless were of the view that Lindau could make the claims. The Board said:

It appears to be a fact that the reinforcement member 8 of Lindau is not shaped and located in a manner to effect most efficient reinforcement against compression stresses in the slab, but nevertheless we are of the opinion that as shown and described it serves inherently as a compression reinforcement to a substantial degree.

The Commissioner, however, appreciating that the claims were copied from the Smulski patent, the character of the claims, the circumstances under which the amendment carrying them was made, the meagerness of the Lindau specification and the actual and (as he conceived) material difference between the two structures, ruled that Lindau did not have the right to make the claims, and therefore awarded priority to Smulski.

This is a comparatively new art and it is apparent that Smulski had a very definite object in mind when he devised the structure described in these two claims. That Lindau must have appreciated this is clear from what occurred, and yet it was not until after he had failed to obtain the benefits of the invention through other means that he asserted a right to make these claims. The fact that he then entertained a doubt about that right, that the claims were copied from the Smulski patent and must therefore be read in the light of the Smulski specification, coupled with the other facts and circumstances to which we have alluded and the inherent probabilities of the case, lead us to accept the conclusion and reasoning of the Commissioner.

The decision therefore must be affirmed.

Affirmed.

Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

IN RE POWER.

No. 1492. Decided June 5, 1922.

PATENTS—CLAIMS SUBSTANTIALLY THE SAME AS THE ISSUES OF AN INTERFERENCE NOT PATENTABLE TO THE LOSING PARTY OF THE INTERFERENCE.

Where in an interference between P. and L. priority is awarded to L., a patentee, and thereafter P. presents claims not materially different from the issues of the interference, Held that P. is not entitled to the claims.

Mr. W. B. Morton for the appellant.

Mr. T. A. Hostetler for the Commissioner of Patents.

VAN ORSDEL, J.:

The Commissioner of Patents rejected the claims in issue, for the reason that they are not patentable over the counts of an interference in which appellant was defeated. From the decision of the Commissioner this appeal was taken.

It appears that a patent was issued to one Le Roy. Thereafter appellant filed the present application copying seven claims from the Le Roy patent. Five of the claims were canceled, and an interference was declared between appellant and Le Roy with respect to the other two claims. In the interference appellant took no testimony, but relied upon an earlier application. Le Roy prevailed and was awarded priority.

After careful examination we have reached the conclusion that the tribunals below were right in holding that the appealed claims, though couched in different language, are not materially different from the claims upon which Le Roy was awarded priority. Appellant, therefore, is not entitled to claims which are covered in terms by the invention to which Le Roy has been awarded priority.

The decision of the Commissioner is affirmed.

U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals—Eighth Circuit.

FORE ELECTRICAL MFG. CO. ET AL. v. ST. LOUIS ELECTRICAL WORKS ET AL.

Decided March 25, 1922.

[280 Fed. Rep., 49.]

1. PATENTS—NO. 1,239,249, FOR IMPROVEMENT IN RECTIFIERS OF ALTERNATING CURRENT, NOT INFRINGED.

The Ballman patent, No. 1,239,249, for an improvement in rectifiers of an alternating electric current, Held not infringed by the device covered by the Wehmeier patent, No. 1,247,759, the proof not showing that the means and manner of accomplishing the result are equivalents, or the mode of operation the same.

2. SAME—PRESUMED VALID, AND BURDEN ON PLAINTIFF TO SHOW INVALIDITY OF DEFENDANT'S PATENT CLAIMED TO INFRINGE.

In a suit for infringement of a patent by a device manufactured under a subsequent patent, defendant's patent is presumptively valid and noninfringing, and the burden is on plaintiff's to overcome the presumption.

APPEAL from the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Missouri; Charles B. Faris, judge.

Suit by the St. Louis Electrical Works and others against the Fore Electrical Manufacturing Company and others. From a decree for plaintiffs (287 Fed., 440), defendants appeal. Reversed, with directions.

Mr. Rodney Bedell and Mr. F. R. Cornwall for the appellants.

Mr. John H. Bruninga for the appellees.

Before LEWIS, Circuit Judge, and TRIEBER and POLLOCK, District Judges.

LEWIS, Cir J.:

[1] Each of the parties held a patent for improvement in rectifiers of an alternating electric current, Ballman's 1,239,249 belongs to appellees, plaintiff below, and is an earlier issue than Wehmeier's 1,247,759, which is owned by appellants, defendants below. Neither was a pioneer. The selection and storage of a unidirectional current from an alternating current called rectification, was old in the electrical art. Ballman's application was first, but Wehmeier's had been pending and under consideration by the Examiner in the Patent Office for more than a year before Ballman's patent issued. The beneficial purpose of the structure is the charging of a battery, and the like, but the patented improvement in each related only to means to be employed in closing and opening the contacts with a vibratory switch, so that the selected impulse would pass through the battery and the contrary impulse would be cut out. Each made and sold rectifiers having the improvement called for in the respective patents, but the appellees claim that the improvements in the two are equivalents structurally, mechanically, electrically, and functionally, that they operate in the same way and achieve the same result, and the difference between the two, if any, is only colorable. On this they sued for and obtained a decree for an injunction, on the ground of infringement; from which this appeal.

Points common to both, about which there is no controversy, are these: The means used by both to close the switch on the contacts, thus letting the selected impulse of the alternating current through the battery, is magnetism; and as this magnetic force is withdrawn or sufficiently reduced, the switch opens on its spring and the contacts through which the selected impulse passes through the battery are released, thus excluding the opposite current impulse. The switch is pivoted at one end and carries an armature intermediate its ends, positioned to complete the magnetic circuit, thus raising the switch against the tension of its spring and closing the contacts at the open end, as desired. Also, the means used by each to close the switch requires both a permanent magnet and an electromagnet.

There is quite a difference between the patents in the physical relation of the electromagnet to the permanent magnet, and to the switching armature. Another physical difference is in the shape of the permanent magnet. The differences are these—to make up Ballman's rectifier, take a magnet of the common horseshoe type, shorten one leg, bend the short leg at a right angle directly toward the long leg, leaving an air gap or open space between the end of the bent leg and the long leg. This is Ballman's permanent magnet. Fasten a soft iron core, placed parallel to the long leg, to the bent leg immediately under the angle, and around the core an alternating-current winding. This is Ballman's electromagnet. To make up Wehmeier's rectifier, take a magnet of the common horseshoe type, its legs of equal length and unchanged in shape. This is Wehmeier's permanent magnet. Place a soft-iron core between the legs of the permanent magnet, near their ends or poles, and around the core an alternating-current winding. This is Wehmeier's electromagnet.

We pass now from differences in structure to the question as to whether there be difference in operation or function of the two devices. These accepted facts will be borne in mind. The alternating-current winding around the soft-iron core in each device sets up an impulse in the electromagnet, first in one direction and then in the opposite, changing in impulse with the alternating current, and if both impulses are permitted to pass into the permanent magnet the latter will cease to function, because magnetic flux continues in one direction, presumably from pole to pole and around the yoke of the magnet, thus closing the circuit. Ballman knew the field was narrow. He says so in his specification, and states the problem which he was attempting to solve thus:

> Vibrating rectifiers, as now constructed, utilize a magnet of constant polarity, and provided with an alternating current winding for superimposing on the constant flux an alternating flux which is in step with the current to be rectified. There are two general types of these rectifiers. In one of these types the constant flux is set up by a direct current winding in circuit with the battery to be charged, the magnet core being, in this case, of soft iron. This construction is, however, open to the objection that, where the battery to be charged has not a sufficient residual charge to effect the alternating flux sufficiently to produce synchronous operation in the proper direction the battery is liable to receive current in the wrong direction. In another type, the magnet is a permanent magnet and the constant flux is set up by the permanent magnetism. While this construction obviates the objection to the battery excited magnet construction, the passage of that component of an alternating flux which is opposite to the permanent flux, through the entire magnetic circuit of the permanent magnet will tend to demagnetise this permanent magnet and, therefore, vary the value of the constant flux and affect the permanency of the magnet.
> Some of the objects of this invention therefore are, to construct a rectifier system which is permanent and uniform in its action, which is arranged to be connected to the direct current load without liability of a reversal of current, which has a wide range of frequency, and in which the sparking is reduced to a minimum.
> Other objects are, to provide a rectifier which is simple in construction, effective in its operation, and cheap to manufacture.

With this in mind he attempted to preserve his permanent magnet and operate the switch with a small part of the main magnetic flux, plus the alternating flux in the electromagnet. So that the theory of his patent, confirmed and fortified by expert testimony, is that the main path of the permanent magnetic flux is around the yoke of his magnet, down the long leg to and across the air gap to the short leg, but that owing to the resistance of the air gap a small part of this flux continues down the long leg, through the armature and up the electromagnet. This he denominates a leakage or shunt path of the magnetic flux of the permanent magnet. It is not of sufficient attractive force to close the switch on the contacts until a flux passing in the same direction is set up in the electromagnet, and thus with the alternating impulse of that flux the switch closes and then opens on its spring. It thus appears to us that the switch is chiefly operated by the electromagnet. Whereas, the theory of Wehmeier's patent, confirmed and fortified by expert testimony, is that there is no shunt or leakage path in his device and that the switch is operated wholly by the flux of his permanent magnet, that the soft-iron core between the legs of his magnet, and near their ends, is a bridge or path for the flux of the permanent magnet, although he concedes that a part of that flux passes down to the end of the leg, through the armature and up the other leg, but claims that when an impulse is set up in the electromagnet in opposition to the flux in the permanent magnet, its resistance on the bridge to the flux of the permanet magnet causes the permanent magnetic flux to pass down the leg and through the armature, thus closing the switch with the flux of the permanent magnet, and that the electromagnetic flux does not cooperate in attracting the switching armature, except as it is utilized to cause the permanent magnetic flux to perform that function. On this point Wehmeier's claims call for means (electromagnet) for diverting the magnetic circuit of the permanent magnet or varying the path of the magnetic field of the permanent magnet relative to the vibratory switch. On the subject of equivalents and differences that are merely colorable, this court, in James Heekin Co. v. Baker, (138 Fed., 63, 70 C. C. A., 559,) said:

> Identity of result is, however, not a sufficient test of infringement. There must also be substantial identity of the means and manner of its accomplishment. The appellant's invention being obviously not a pioneer, but only an improvement upon the prior art, its claims cannot be given a liberal interpretation; but there is yet a right to a reasonable range of equivalents, measured by the character and extent of the improvement, and infringement cannot be avoided by mere colorable modifications of some of its elements, not essentially varying its principle or mode of operation.

And again, this court held in Sander v. Rose, 121 Fed., 835, 58 C. C. A., 171:

> When two inventors have each adopted the substantial features or elements of an earlier invention making, respectively, but slight changes in or improvements upon the earlier device, each will be limited to his own specific form of device; and, if there are differences therein, neither device will be held to be an infringement of the other.

[2] Presumptively, appellants' patent is valid, and does not infringe (Boyd v. Tool Co., 158 U. S. 260; 15 Sup. Ct., 837; 39 L. Ed., 973), and the burden was on the appellees to overcome that presumption. Expert witnesses for the two parties seem equally competent and well informed,—for appellees that the two devices are in every way equivalents, for appellants that they are not so in any respect. We are not convinced that the means and manner of accomplishing the result are equivalents, nor that the mode of operation of the two does not vary in principle, under the proof adduced; but rather that there is material difference, structurally and functionally, in the two devices.
